TRUMAN SEES COLD WAR VICTORY

President's Release Of Tidelands Touches Off Storm Of Protest From Coastal States

Offshore Wealth In Oil Is Turned Over To The Navy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — President Truman touched off a major storm today with an eleventh-hour decision to turn the great oil wealth in offshore lands over to the U. S. Navy.

Truman told his final news conference that before leaving office next Tuesday he will issue an executive order setting aside the off-shore lands, often called the tidelands, as a navy petroleum reserve.

On Capitol Hill, legislators from coastal states affected by such an order promptly set up a roar of protest.

Daniel Voices Protest

Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex), former state's attorney general of Texas, called it an act of "personal spite and political revenge."

"It is just as arbitrary and just as illegal as Mr. Truman's unconstitutional seizure of the steel industry," Daniel said.

Several senators confidently predicted that President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower will reverse Truman's projected order soon after taking the oath of office.

In New York, Eisenhower's headquarters indicated there would be no comment inasmuch as the President-elect's views on the "tidelands" dispute are well known.

During the campaign, Eisenhower came out in favor of state control of off-shore oil. He won considerable support, particularly in Texas, by taking that stand in opposition to the view advocated by Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic nominee. Stevenson favored federal control.

Laurence F. Lee, president of the U. S. chamber of commerce, denounced Truman's proposed order as "political obstructionism of the worst order."

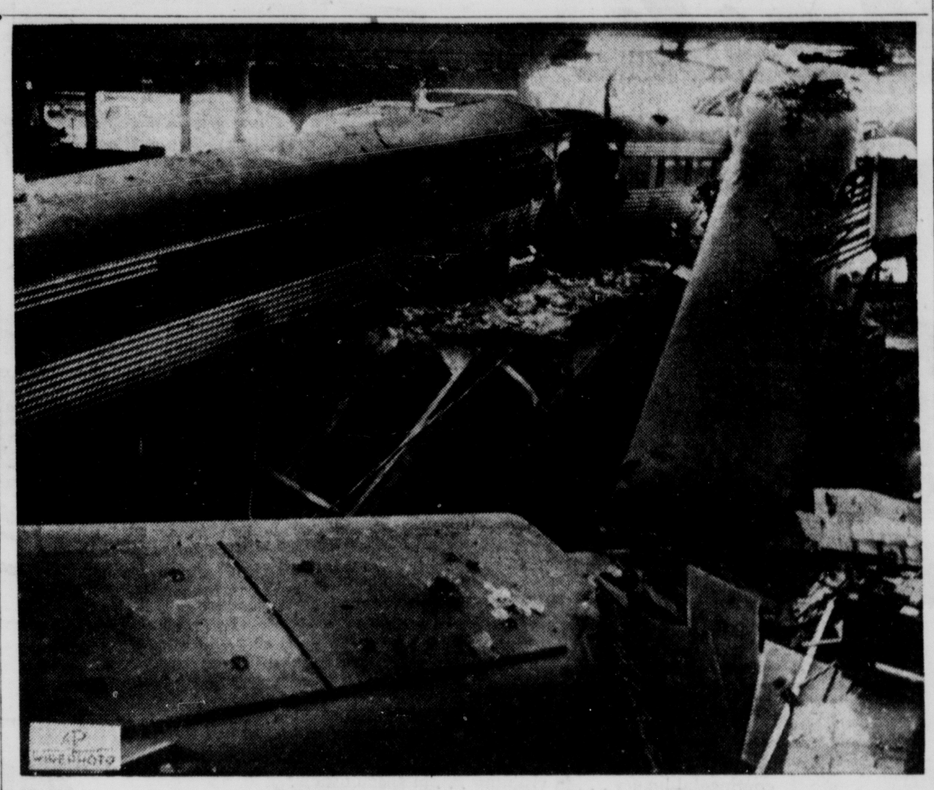
Would Amount To Steal

Truman told newsmen that if private oil companies got control of the off-shore oil it would amount to a 100-billion-barrel steal.

Some industry experts have estimated that the "tidelands'" oil and gas resources have a potential value of roughly 40 billion dollars.

The so-called tidelands are the marginal regions lying between low-tide line and the individual state's seaward boundaries. The latter usually extend to the three-mile limit, but reach out 10½ miles in the cases of Texas and the Gulf coast of Florida because of special circumstances under which those states were admitted to the union.

Long and bitter controversy has centered on the question of ownership of the oil-yielding coastal lands. The states have claimed ownership, but the Supreme Court has ruled three times that the federal government has "paramount" dominion.



Train Wreck Scene

The concourse of Union Station in Washington is thoroughly chewed up in a heap of wreckage after a Pennsylvania express train smashed through the gates and fell through the concourse floor after its brakes failed as it moved into the terminal yesterday. Forty-one persons were injured.

Crack Express Train Smashes Union Station

Crew's Quick Action Averts Catastrophe

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — A crack express train, out of control and with its horn blasting an ominous warning, today crashed into Union Station and partially wrecked the huge building in the shadow of the U. S. Capitol.

No one was killed, but at least 41 persons were hurt, seven of them seriously.

In its wild flight the engine mowed down the station master's office, swept away a steel fence that keeps visitors from going out to the trains, demolished a giant news stand and then crashed through the floor of the concourse to the basement.

The train was the Pennsylvania Railroad's Federal Express from Boston, due here at around 8:30 a. m., EST. Some spectators said it must have been going 50 miles an hour when it plunged off the end of the rails.

Railroad officials said only quick action by the engineer, Henry W. Brower, 66, and the crew saved the wreck from turning into a major catastrophe.

The railroad, in a statement issued in New York, said it could not explain why the air brakes on the 150-ton electric locomotive failed.

But it said that Brower, warning with his horn that his brakes would not hold and his train was out of control, enabled station officials to clear the concourse of persons who otherwise would be directly in front of the locomotive.

The railroad said injuries among the estimated 400 passengers on the train were lessened by warnings from crew men that they should clear the aisles and should keep seated.

The time, too, kept down the injuries. Often during the day the concourse, a block long roofed room, is jammed with friends and relatives waiting for, or seeing off, passengers.

West Bloc Shows Senate Strength

State Legislature Takes Up Vetoes

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 15 (AP)—The weight of a new bloc of Democratic delegates on the western side of Chesapeake Bay was felt immediately after it was organized today.

The 27 delegates came out of a caucus they organized and successfully pressed to override a veto and then were on the winning side to sustain another.

Group Wins Twice

It was significant that the Eastern Shore delegation, an established caucus of 26 Democrat votes, was the loser in the first showdown with the new group.

The square-off, over whether one member of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission should be required to be a working waterman, wasn't a clear-cut battle between the two forces, but it might well be a harbinger of things to come in the 90-day session.

The idea for the Western Shore caucus originated with Del. A. Gordon Boone of Baltimore County. The Eastern Shore delegation was instrumental in ousting him as majority floor leader and got the job for one of its own, Del. John Wood Logan of Caroline. The move has rankled Boone.

The House division into blocs now is similar to that in the Senate. On the Senate side, the Democrats were split at last known count 11 to 7 and the Republicans forming another coalition of 11.

The nine bills Gov. McKeldin vetoed after last year's session were the first real legislative business taken up by the General Assembly.

Sustain Pay Raise Veto

The senate easily sustained vetoes of two bills to give school teachers a raise. Instead, bills recommended by a governor's commission to raise salaries up to $300 a year are to be introduced.

Sen. Lofstrand (R-Montgomery) served notice that while he went along with the vetoes he intends to offer some changes in the commision's proposal when the new bills arrive.

The new caucus is composed of delegates from the western part of the state except Baltimore City and Allegany, Carroll, Charles, Garrett and Montgomery Counties. The 35 city delegates have a caucus of their own and the other counties are solidly Republican. So there now are four House blocs, the Republicans numbering 35 and the Democrats totaling 88.

ACQUITTED—PFC. Warren G. McConnell was acquitted by a courts-martial yesterday on a charge of going to sleep at the front in Korea 14 months ago. The 21-year-old soldier from Alloway, N. J., is stationed at Ft. Meade.

Declares Use Of A-Bomb Is Not Needed

Korea Intervention Dashed Soviet Hopes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—President Truman told the American people tonight they are on the way to victory in the cold war with Soviet Russia without an atomic conflict that might "dig the grave of the free world and communism alike."

"We have set the course that can win," he said.

In an emotional farewell address, broadcast from the White House by coast-to-coast radio and TV networks, the President declared his belief that American intervention in Korea has dashed Russia's hope of easy conquest and may have averted a third world war "as far ahead as man can see."

Answer Quite Simple

And to those impatient with the world-wide struggle against communism—to those who ask, "Why don't we get it over with? Why don't we issue an ultimatum, make an all-out war, drop the atomic bomb?"—Truman declared:

"For most Americans, the answer is quite simple: we are not made that way. We are a moral people. Peace is our goal, and justice and freedom. We cannot, of our own free will, violate the very principles that we are striving to defend.

"The whole purpose of what we are doing is to prevent the World War III. Starting a war is no way to make peace.

"But if anyone still thinks that just this once, bad means can bring good ends, then let me remind you of this: we are living in the eighth year of the atomic age. We are not the only nation that is learning to unleash the power of the atom. A third world war might dig the grave not only of our Communist opponents but also of our own society, our world as well as theirs."

Ike Has Three More Cabinet Members Okayed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — Senate committees endorsed three more of President-elect Eisenhower's cabinet choices today, approving John Foster Dulles for Secretary of State, Douglas McKay for Secretary of the Interior and Ezra Taft Benson for Secretary of Agriculture.

A vote on Charles E. Wilson, designated to be Secretary of Defense, was delayed until tomorrow, but several influential senators expressed confidence that he would be okayed too. Wilson has given up his job as president of General Motors to accept government service.

All committee votes must be confirmed by the full Senate. Republican leaders hope to get the nine members of the new cabinet confirmed next Tuesday, inauguration day.

There was one string attached to the agriculture committee's approval of Benson, a Mormon church leader from Salt Lake City, Utah. While the vote behind closed doors was unanimous, Chairman Aiken (R-Vt) reported that Sen. Young (R-ND) reserved the right to oppose Benson's nomination on the floor of the Senate.

Benson was peppered with questions about his farm policy during the hearing. He told the committee he favors continuing present farm price supports for two years, but he declined to commit himself beyond that.

Queen Elizabeth Confers 3 Titles On Her Husband

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)— Queen Elizabeth II made her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, an admiral of the British Navy, a field marshal of the Army and a marshal of the Royal Air Force today.

The duke gets the rank but not the pay, which means his new commissions are entirely honorary. Queen Elizabeth's father, the late King George VI, held the same rank in each of the three services.

Buckingham Palace circles regarded the three-ply promotion of the duke, who has been a commander in the Navy, as a further step by the Queen toward giving him the formal title of prince consort before her coronation June 2.

British Arrest Former Nazis In Communist Plot

BONN, Germany, Jan. 15 (AP) — British authorities today clapped into jail seven former Nazis suspected of a "potentially very dangerous" Nazi-Communist plot to seize power in West Germany.

The accused men, including two named to high office in Hitler's will, were seized in raids by British police.

The British said the suspects had been in contact with ex-Nazis, and possibly Communists in other countries, both East and West.

Squads of investigators went to work tracing the ramifications of the movement.

The British high commissioner, Sir Ivone Kirkpatrick, who ordered the arrests under his occupation powers, said the plotters represented a threat to the security of the 400,000 Allied troops in West Germany.

"These leading Nazis were plotting to regain power," he said. "And they were potentially very dangerous."

He told reporters that the incident should not be exaggerated and said it should have no effect whatever on Allied plans to make West Germany an independent and armed ally in a six-nation European Army.

Vienna Spy Roundup Begins

VIENNA, Austria, Jan. 15 (AP)—A wholesale roundup of Americans by U. S. authorities was underway in Vienna tonight in connection with the Washington indictment of two Austrian-born American ex-soldiers on spy charges.

A U. S. Embassy spokesman said a substantial number of Americans, including some who were at work for American government agencies up to noon yesterday, had been taken into custody for questioning. He added that a great many would likely be arrested for questioning in the next few weeks.

Vienna is reported to be an operating center for dozens of intelligence services eager to gather information from both sides of the Iron Curtain. The city is open to espionage and intrigue of all sorts. There are no barriers between the Western and Soviet sectors of this four-power capital which, like Berlin, lies behind the Iron Curtain.

Both the U. S. State Department and the Army have large staffs in Vienna.

UN Curtails Immunity For Red Convoys

MUNSAN, Korea, Friday, Jan. 16 (AP)—The United Nations command announced Thursday it was drastically curtailing the attack-free movement of Red convoys supplying the Communist armistice delegation until the suspended negotiations are resumed.

In a formal letter of notification handed to Communist liaison officers at Panmunjom, the U. N. command said that effective Jan. 25 it was withdrawing the immunity granted daily Communist supply convoys for the past 14 months because the Reds had been abusing the privilege.

Hereafter small convoys to and from Kaesong, a restricted area and headquarters of the Red truce delegation, will be free from attack only on Sundays, between 6 a. m. and 8 p. m. Kaesong is behind the western front and 35 miles northwest of Seoul.

The Allied note emphasized that the U. N. command "stands ready to reconsider Communist requirements at any time that delegation meetings are resumed."

The note also reminded that resumption of truce meetings "awaits U. N. C. receipt of a letter from the senior Communist delegate signifying that he is ready to accept one of the U. N. command proposals for the attainment of an armistice, or offering a constructive proposal which could lead to an honorable armistice."

The U. N. command called an indefinite recess last September in a deadlock over exchange of war prisoners. The Reds insisted that the Allies release all prisoners, including those ready to resist to the death a return to Red rule.

Commie Trial Goes To Jury

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP) — The eight and a half months trial of 13 second string Communists leaders finally ended today. The case went to a jury of six men and six women at 2:23 p. m. (EST).

Federal Judge Edward J. Dimock spent two hours in a final charge. He warned the jury that even in the case of dedicated Reds their "ideas are not crimes." He said mere membership in the party is not at issue.

Instead, he gravely outlined the charge against the 13—conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the United States government.

Conviction carries a maximum penalty for each defendant of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The defendants are 10 men and three women, who took control of the Communist Party in America after 11 top Red leaders were convicted in an historic 1949 trial. It lasted nine months.

Only four of the defendants are American-born. Five came here from Russia originally.

The 13 second stringers were among 21 Communists indicted June 20, 1951. Four disappeared and still are fugitives. Two became too ill to try. Two others were acquitted during the trial at the direction of Judge Dimock.

Violence Flares In Iran Debate

TEHRAN, Iran, Jan. 15 (AP)—The rivalry between supporters of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and Mullah Ayatullah Kashani, Iran's powerful Moslem religious leader, flamed into angry words in Parliament and vicious fistfights in the spectators' gallery today.

Some of the spectators were nearly beaten into insensibility before guards separated the combatants and cleared the gallery of all but three newspapermen.

Muzaffer Baghaie, once one of Mossadegh's stalwarts, was explaining why he could not support the bill.

"You are a hypocrite," shouted Karim Sanjabi, a strong Mossadegh supporter.

Angry yells of "death to Sanjabi" and "down with Baghaie" sounded in the gallery. Fist fights broke out.

The session was adjourned, and the free-for-all in the gallery finally was quieted.

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico, Jan. 15 (AP)—A 19-year-old girl bullfighter from El Paso, Tex., was gored in the thigh by a young bull yesterday while making some practice passes on a breeder's ranch near here.

Slim and blonde Patricia McCormick was brought to a clinic here for treatment of a 10-inch wound. She has faced about 20 bulls in small rings. This was her first serious goring. Her doctor said she would be back in the ring in 15 days, barring complications.

Explosion Kills One

ALEXANDRIA, Scotland, Jan. 15 (AP)—An explosion in the Royal Navy torpedo factory today killed one workman and injured 10 others critically. A compressed air cylinder blew up in a crowded workshop.

Inaugural Air Armada Canceled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — The Air Force today cancelled the planned flight of some 400 warplanes over the Inaugural Parade and ceremones on Tuesday.

Secretary of the Air Force Finletter said the cancellation was ordered after consultation with the White House, the new Republican administration, and the other military services.

The Air Force said Finletter declined to give an explanation.

Last Friday it was disclosed that the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, a private organization, had protested against what it called "this hazardous program."

The association noted that the planes were to fly as low as 2,000 feet and at speeds as high as 400 miles an hour.

It said its protest was based upon safety considerations for the thousands of sightseers who will jam the inaugural route and was made "in the interests of all civil aviation."

The original plan called for about 400 Navy, Army, Marine Corps and Air Force aircraft to fly over the Capitol to the White House.

The air armada was to have included everything from helicopters to giant (B36) intercontinental bombers, with jet aircraft flying in formation.

Miners Threaten Strike

BOCHUM, Germany, Jan. 15 (AP) —West Germany's 400,000 coal miners gave notice tonight they will go on strike Monday to back up demands for a 45-hour week. They now work 48.

Soviet Diplomat, Ex-GI's Found Involved In Military Spy Ring

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The government cracked open today what it called an international plot, directed by a Soviet diplomat here, to spy out American military secrets.

It handed Yuri V. Novikov, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy, his walking papers; announced the indictment on spy charges of two ex-GIs living in Vienna; the arrest of a third man for questioning, and predicted a wholesale roundup by U. S. authorities in Austria.

The alleged espionage ring was smashed after several years surveillance.

Two Austrians who became American citizens and served in the U. S. Army during World War II were seized in Vienna yesterday and flown back to Washington to face trial.

A U. S. Embassy official in Vienna said a substantial number of other Americans have been arrested for questioning and predicted that still others will be picked up during the next few weeks.

The cracking of the spy ring was disclosed with announcement by Atty. Gen. McGranery that the two former U. S. Army men had been arrested in the Austrian capital and were being returned for trial on an indictment handed up secretly here Tuesday.

As a co-conspirator the indictment named Novikov, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington. He cannot be tried because of his diplomatic status, but the government demanded his immediate recall.

The Kremlin has no choice in the matter, under international protocol.

The two ex-Army men who were hustled aboard a Washington-bound plane immediately after their arrest by U. S. Military Police in occupied Vienna were identified as:

Otto Verber, 31, who served as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army and as a member of a military intelligence team in Europe.

Ike Names Holland To Tax Division Post

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower's headquarters announced he had chosen H. Brian Holland of Boston as assistant attorney general in charge of the tax division of the Department of Justice.

The British-born Holland, 48, was naturalized in 1929. He came to this country in 1915, was graduated from Yale College and Harvard law school, and is a partner in the Boston law firm of Ropes, Gray, Best, Coolidge and Rugg.

He will replace Charles S. Lyons in the $15,000-a-year post. The position once was held by T. Lamar Caudle, who was ousted by President Truman during a congressional investigation of the division.

G. I. Gets Thailand Medal; Never Served With Troops

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Korea, Friday, Jan. 16 (AP) — It was the darndest thing. One minute Pvt. Walter M. Johnson was in the line and the next he was plucked out and hustled off to a spit and polish ceremony in Seoul.

Three days ago division headquarters rang up his front line anti-aircraft outfit and told them to send back the 21-year-old soldier, only eight months in the army and only two of those in Korea.

An order is an order, and so back he jeeped to the division command post. There the division commander said the Greeley, Neb., soldier was going to get a medal from Thailand. So was the division commander.

"I told them it was some sort of a mistake," he related. But no, the next thing he knew he was in a plane bound for Seoul along with the division general.

In Seoul he washed off the battle-front grime and was given a brand new dress uniform. Next morning a sedan picked him up and took him to Eighth Army headquarters.

There Pvt. Johnson was lined up with seven high-ranking officers. A Thai officer came along and pinned on his chest the "silver medal of the crown of Thailand." Bands played. An honor guard marched.

Then the affair was over. A sedan took him back to the airport. Back at battalion headquarters he swapped his dress uniform for battle dress and then went back to his gun position, still scratching his head.

"I don't have the slightest idea why I got the medal," Johnson said. "I never saw Thailanders before I got the medal. I've never been to Thailand and — by the way — where is Thailand?"

Irish Lassies Need Whistles For Help

SOMERTON, Northern Ireland, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Northern Ireland Housewives League suggested today women and girls who go out after dark carry police whistles. The league proposed that as a means of combating a recent outbreak of attacks on women that has led to assigning of extra police for night patrols.

Soldier Is Freed On Charge Of Sleeping On Guard Duty

FT. MEADE, Md., Jan. 15 (AP) — A young New Jersey soldier, once sentenced to 10 years at hard labor for going to sleep at his post in Korea, was acquitted of the charges at his second court martial today.

The plight of Warren G. McConnell had aroused the sympathy of his neighbors in Alloway and Penns Grove, N. J. They organized and financed the effort which won his acquittal today.

The government's case collapsed when two men stationed with him in an ambush outpost on the night of Nov. 14, 1951, answered, "I can't remember" to question after question when they testified today.

The two were Joseph Hoffman of Philadelphia and James Bynum of Baltimore, long since home from Korea and discharged from the Army.

McConnell, Hoffman and Bynum had been stationed at a lookout post to block Chinese Reds from sneaking into positions of the 32nd Regiment, Seventh Infantry Division.

Myron G. Erhlich, Washington attorney who was hired by McConnell's neighbors to appeal the case, argued the case's testimony did not show the soldier was properly posted as a sentinel nor that he was the one who was supposed to be awake.

Twice, the defense moved for a directed acquittal on this basis. Twice the law officer of the court martial, corresponding to the judge in a civilian trial, turned the motion down. Both times one of the nine officers on the court challenged this ruling.

The first time the nine officers, in secret, upheld the law officer. The second time, after hearing a parade of character witnesses testify that McConnell had an excellent reputation, the court retired again. This time, they voted against the law officer and closed the case.

While the vote behind closed doors was unanimous, Chairman Aiken (R-Vt) reported that Sen. Young (R-ND) reserved the right to oppose Benson's nomination on the floor of the Senate.

Benson was peppered with questions about his farm policy during the hearing. He told the committee he favors continuing present farm price supports for two years, but he declined to commit himself beyond that.

Queen Elizabeth Confers 3 Titles On Her Husband

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)— Queen Elizabeth II made her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, an admiral of the British Navy, a field marshal of the Army and a marshal of the Royal Air Force today.

The duke gets the rank but not the pay, which means his new commissions are entirely honorary. Queen Elizabeth's father, the late King George VI, held the same rank in each of the three services.

Buckingham Palace circles regarded the three-ply promotion of the duke, who has been a commander in the Navy, as a further step by the Queen toward giving him the formal title of prince consort before her coronation June 2.

British Arrest Former Nazis In Communist Plot

BONN, Germany, Jan. 15 (AP) — British authorities today clapped into jail seven former Nazis suspected of a "potentially very dangerous" Nazi-Communist plot to seize power in West Germany.

The accused men, including two named to high office in Hitler's will, were seized in raids by British police.

The British said the suspects had been in contact with ex-Nazis, and possibly Communists in other countries, both East and West.

Squads of investigators went to work tracing the ramifications of the movement.

The British high commissioner, Sir Ivone Kirkpatrick, who ordered the arrests under his occupation powers, said the plotters represented a threat to the security of the 400,000 Allied troops in West Germany.

"These leading Nazis were plotting to regain power," he said. "And they were potentially very dangerous."

He told reporters that the incident should not be exaggerated and said it should have no effect whatever on Allied plans to make West Germany an independent and armed ally in a six-nation European Army.

Miners Threaten Strike

BOCHUM, Germany, Jan. 15 (AP) —West Germany's 400,000 coal miners gave notice tonight they will go on strike Monday to back up demands for a 45-hour week. They now work 48.

Vienna Spy Roundup Begins

VIENNA, Austria, Jan. 15 (AP)— A wholesale roundup of Americans by U. S. authorities was underway in Vienna tonight in connection with the Washington indictment of two Austrian-born American ex-soldiers on spy charges.

A U. S. Embassy spokesman said a substantial number of Americans, including some who were at work for American government agencies up to noon yesterday, had been taken into custody for questioning. He added that a great many would likely be arrested for questioning in the next few weeks.

Vienna is reported to be an operating center for dozens of intelligence services eager to gather information from both sides of the Iron Curtain. The city is open to espionage and intrigue of all sorts. There are no barriers between the Western and Soviet sectors of this four-power capital which, like Berlin, lies behind the Iron Curtain.

Both the U. S. State Department and the Army have large staffs in Vienna.

Commie Trial Goes To Jury

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP) — The eight and a half months trial of 13 second string Communists leaders finally ended today. The case went to a jury of six men and six women at 2:23 p. m. (EST).

Federal Judge Edward J. Dimock spent two hours in a final charge. He warned the jury that even in the case of dedicated Reds their "ideas are not crimes." He said mere membership in the party is not at issue.

Instead, he gravely outlined the charge against the 13—conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the United States government.

Conviction carries a maximum penalty for each defendant of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The defendants are 10 men and three women, who took control of the Communist Party in America after 11 top Red leaders were convicted in an historic 1949 trial. It lasted nine months.

Only four of the defendants are American-born. Five came here from Russia originally.

The 13 second stringers were among 21 Communists indicted June 20, 1951. Four disappeared and still are fugitives. Two became too ill to try. Two others were acquitted during the trial at the direction of Judge Dimock.

UN Curtails Immunity For Red Convoys

MUNSAN, Korea, Friday, Jan. 16(AP)—The United Nations command announced Thursday it was drastically curtailing the attack-free movement of Red convoys supplying the Communist armistice delegation until the suspended negotiations are resumed.

In a formal letter of notification handed to Communist liaison officers at Panmunjom, the U. N. command said that effective Jan. 25 it was withdrawing the immunity granted daily Communist supply convoys for the past 14 months because the Reds had been abusing the privilege.

Hereafter small convoys to and from Kaesong, a restricted area and headquarters of the Red truce delegation, will be free from attack only on Sundays, between 6 a. m. and 8 p. m. Kaesong is behind the western front and 35 miles northwest of Seoul.

The Allied note emphasized that the U. N. command "stands ready to reconsider Communist requirements at any time that delegation meetings are resumed."

The note also reminded that resumption of truce meetings "awaits U. N. C. receipt of a letter from the senior Communist delegate signifying that he is ready to accept one of the U. N. command proposals for the attainment of an armistice, or offering a constructive proposal which could lead to an honorable armistice."

The U. N. command called an indefinite recess last September in a deadlock over exchange of war prisoners. The Reds insisted that the Allies release all prisoners, including those ready to resist to the death a return to Red rule.

Have Spy Jitters

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Spy jitters in Communist Albania were revealed today. Tirana radio reported the round-up of 12 "spies and diversionists."

Violence Flares In Iran Debate

TEHRAN, Iran, Jan. 15 (AP)—The rivalry between supporters of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and Mullah Ayatullah Kashani, Iran's powerful Moslem religious leader, flamed into angry words in Parliament and vicious fistfights in the spectators' gallery today.

Some of the spectators were nearly beaten into insensibility before guards separated the combatants and cleared the gallery of all but three newspapermen.

Muzaffer Baghaie, once one of Mossadegh's stalwarts, was explaining why he could not support the bill.

"You are a hypocrite," shouted Karim Sanjabi, a strong Mossadegh supporter.

Angry yells of "death to Sanjabi" and "down with Baghaie" sounded in the gallery. Fist fights broke out.

The session was adjourned, and the free-for-all in the gallery finally was quieted.

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico, Jan. 15 (AP)—A 19-year-old girl bullfighter from El Paso, Tex., was gored in the thigh by a young bull yesterday while making some practice passes on a breeder's ranch near here.

Slim and blonde Patricia McCormick was brought to a clinic here for treatment of a 10-inch wound. She has faced about 20 bulls in small rings. This was her first serious goring. Her doctor said she would be back in the ring in 15 days, barring complications.

Explosion Kills One

ALEXANDRIA, Scotland, Jan. 15 (AP)—An explosion in the Royal Navy torpedo factory today killed one workman and injured 10 others critically. A compressed air cylinder blew up in a crowded workshop.

Inaugural Air Armada Canceled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — The Air Force today cancelled the planned flight of some 400 warplanes over the Inaugural Parade and ceremones on Tuesday.

Secretary of the Air Force Finletter said the cancellation was ordered after consultation with the White House, the new Republican administration, and the other military services.

The Air Force said Finletter declined to give an explanation.

Last Friday it was disclosed that the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, a private organization, had protested against what it called "this hazardous program."

The association noted that the planes were to fly as low as 2,000 feet and at speeds as high as 400 miles an hour.

It said its protest was based upon safety considerations for the thousands of sightseers who will jam the inaugural route and was made "in the interests of all civil aviation."

The original plan called for about 400 Navy, Army, Marine Corps and Air Force aircraft to fly over the Capitol to the White House.

The air armada was to have included everything from helicopters to giant (B36) intercontinental bombers, with jet aircraft flying in formation.

SOMERTON, Northern Ireland, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Northern Ireland Housewives League suggested today women and girls who go out after dark carry police whistles. The league proposed that as a means of combating a recent outbreak of attacks on women that has led to assigning of extra police for night patrols.

Soviet Diplomat, Ex-GI's Found Involved In Military Spy Ring

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The government cracked open today what it called an international plot, directed by a Soviet diplomat here, to spy out American military secrets.

It handed Yuri V. Novikov, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy, his walking papers; announced the indictment on spy charges of two ex-GIs living in Vienna; the arrest of a third man for questioning, and predicted a wholesale roundup by U. S. authorities in Austria.

The alleged espionage ring was smashed after several years surveillance.

Two Austrians who became American citizens and served in the U. S. Army during World War II were seized in Vienna yesterday and flown back to Washington to face trial.

A U. S. Embassy official in Vienna said a substantial number of other Americans have been arrested for questioning and predicted that still others will be picked up during the next few weeks.

The cracking of the spy ring was disclosed with announcement by Atty. Gen. McGranery that the two former U. S. Army men had been arrested in the Austrian capital and were being returned for trial on an indictment handed up secretly here Tuesday.

As a co-conspirator the indictment named Novikov, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington. He cannot be tried because of his diplomatic status, but the government demanded his immediate recall.

The Kremlin has no choice in the matter, under international protocol.

The two ex-Army men who were hustled aboard a Washington-bound plane immediately after their arrest by U. S. Military Police in occupied Vienna were identified as:

Otto Verber, 31, who served as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army and as a member of a military intelligence team in Europe.

Ike Names Holland To Tax Division Post

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower's headquarters announced he had chosen H. Brian Holland of Boston as assistant attorney general in charge of the tax division of the Department of Justice.

The British-born Holland, 48, was naturalized in 1929. He came to this country in 1915, was graduated from Yale College and Harvard law school, and is a partner in the Boston law firm of Ropes, Gray, Best, Coolidge and Rugg.

He will replace Charles S. Lyons in the $15,000-a-year post. The position once was held by T. Lamar Caudle, who was ousted by President Truman during a congressional investigation of the division.

G. I. Gets Thailand Medal; Never Served With Troops

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Korea, Friday, Jan. 16 (AP) — It was the darndest thing. One minute Pvt. Walter M. Johnson was in the line and the next he was plucked out and hustled off to a spit and polish ceremony in Seoul.

Three days ago division headquarters rang up his front line anti-aircraft outfit and told them to send back the 21-year-old soldier, only eight months in the army and only two of those in Korea.

An order is an order, and so back he jeeped to the division command post. There the division commander said the Greeley, Neb., soldier was going to get a medal from Thailand. So was the division commander.

"I told them it was some sort of a mistake," he related. But no, the next thing he knew he was in a plane bound for Seoul along with the division general.

In Seoul he washed off the battle-front grime and was given a brand new dress uniform. Next morning a sedan picked him up and took him to Eighth Army headquarters.

There Pvt. Johnson was lined up with seven high-ranking officers. A Thai officer came along and pinned on his chest the "silver medal of the crown of Thailand." Bands played. An honor guard marched.

Then the affair was over. A sedan took him back to the airport. Back at battalion headquarters he swapped his dress uniform for battle dress and then went back to his gun position, still scratching his head.

"I don't have the slightest idea why I got the medal," Johnson said. "I never saw Thailanders before I got the medal. I've never been to Thailand and — by the way — where is Thailand?"

Soldier Is Freed On Charge Of Sleeping On Guard Duty

FT. MEADE, Md., Jan. 15 (AP) — A young New Jersey soldier, once sentenced to 10 years at hard labor for going to sleep at his post in Korea, was acquitted of the charges at his second court martial today.

The plight of Warren G. McConnell had aroused the sympathy of his neighbors in Alloway and Penns Grove, N. J. They organized and financed the effort which won his acquittal today.

The government's case collapsed when two men stationed with him in an ambush outpost on the night of Nov. 14, 1951, answered, "I can't remember" to question after question when they testified today.

The two were Joseph Hoffman of Philadelphia and James Bynum of Baltimore, long since home from Korea and discharged from the Army.

McConnell, Hoffman and Bynum had been stationed at a lookout post to block Chinese Reds from sneaking into positions of the 32nd Regiment, Seventh Infantry Division.

Myron G. Erhlich, Washington attorney who was hired by McConnell's neighbors to appeal the case, argued the case's testimony did not show the soldier was properly posted as a sentinel nor that he was the one who was supposed to be awake.

Twice, the defense moved for a directed acquittal on this basis. Twice the law officer of the court martial, corresponding to the judge in a civilian trial, turned the motion down. Both times one of the nine officers on the court challenged this ruling.

The first time the nine officers, in secret, upheld the law officer. The second time, after hearing a parade of character witnesses testify that McConnell had an excellent reputation, the court retired again. This time, they voted against the law officer and closed the case.

New Cardinals Receive Red Hats In Basilica

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 15 (AP) — A procession of 17 new cardinals of the Roman Catholic church, clad in scarlet and ermine, knelt before Pope Pius XII today in the grandeur of St. Peter's Basilica and received the red hats symbolic of their princely rank.

James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, archbishop of Los Angeles, the first American prelate from west of St. Louis to be elevated to the College of Cardinals, was the 11th honored at the public consistory.

The frail, 77-year old Pontiff rested a single broad-brimmed red galero briefly upon the head of each new cardinal and intoned in Latin:

"For the praise of Almighty God and the honor of the holy apostolic see, receive the red hat, the special badge of a cardinal's rank. By this you are to understand that you must show yourself fearless, even to the shedding of your blood, in making our holy faith respected, in securing peace for Christian people and in promoting the welfare of the Roman church. In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

Later the pontifical master of robes was to deliver a red hat to each of the new cardinals at the cardinal's place of residence. The hat will never be worn by the cardinal, but it will be displayed again when he dies and then hung permanently in his cathedral.

The world's biggest church was splashed with dazzling light and color for the solemn pontifical rites. The pageant was watched reverently by a crowd of more than 35,000. The crowd broke into cheers of "Viva il Papa" (Long live the Pope) upon the Pope's entrance and exit on his portable throne.

The 17 new cardinals are among 24 the Pope raised in rank this week to bring the College of Cardinals, the church's senate, to its full strength of 70 for the first time in almost 200 years.

Studios Withdraw "Oscar" Support

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15 (AP) — The Motion Picture Academy's yearly awards program is threatened again by withdrawal of financial support by four of the industry's leading studios.

The money crisis came Monday, at a meeting of directors of the Motion Picture Association of America, composed of the biggest film producing companies.

Studios withdrawing their support are Warner Brothers, Universal-International, Columbia and Republic. This action was confirmed today by a spokesman for the MPAA board chairman, Y. Frank Freeman.

Reserve Board Hikes Bank Loan Interest

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board today raised its interest rates on loans to banks to 2 per cent, effective tomorrow morning. The old rate was 1¾ per cent.

The interest rates set by the board generally are considered a basis for the interest rate structure throughout the country. Changes in the board's rate may have far reaching effects.

Authorities indicated, however, that in this case the board was acting more to put its interest rates in line with rates charged by banks and commercial lenders rather than to try to set in motion a major shift in commercial rates.

Ike To Deliver Address Personally

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower will deliver his State of the Union message to Congress personally.

His headquarters said today the date has not been decided but that Eisenhower would go before Congress within a reasonably short time after taking office next Tuesday.

Navy Orders Four More Viking Guided Rockets

RECALL ASKED — State Department officials asked Russia to recall Yuri V. Novikov (above), secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, following disclosure he and two former U. S. Army men were involved in a spy plot.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Navy said tonight it has ordered four more Martin Viking rockets capable of climbing 200 miles into space.

The new, improved rockets will be designed for speeds which would enable them, if they had sufficient fuel, to make a weekend flight to the moon.

The Navy said the new rockets are designed for a maximum speed of 5,800 miles an hour.

"The moon could be reached in 41½ hours at this speed," a Navy news release said.

The Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, Md., already has built 10 Vikings for the Navy. All but one have been expended in an upper-air research program which has been under way for more than six years.

A naval research laboratory spokesman estimated that the four additional rockets might extend this program two or three more years. He said there probably will be at least one launching this year.

No cost figures for the Vikings have been made public.

President Truman last week asked for $152,800,000 for guided missile work for the Navy in the year starting next July 1, compared with $31,146,500 for the current year. The President's estimate of Navy guided missile need for the year starting July 1, 1954, is $172,170,000.

The first Viking was fired, at the Army's White Sands proving grounds, Las Cruces, N. M., May 3, 1949. It reached an altitude of 51½ miles, and a speed of 2,250 miles an hour.

Viking No. 7, fired Aug. 7, 1951, at White Sands, reached an altitude of 135 miles and a speed of 4,100 miles an hour—a record for single-stage rockets. Viking No. 9 equalled this mark last Dec. 15.

11 Are Injured As Ships Collide

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP) — A Staten Island ferry, inching through a pea soup harbor fog with 1,900 persons aboard, rammed a freighter four times her size today near the Statue of Liberty. Neither ship sank.

Eleven persons on the city-owned ferry, Gold Star Mother, were hurt, none critically. Hundreds were shaken up. The impact set automobiles aboard the ferry to banging and shivering noisily.

"It must have been a hell of an impact," Marine Commissioner Edward F. Cavanagh, Jr., commented grimly after he inspected the damage to the ferry and the freighter, the 8,000-ton American Veteran of the United States Lines. Radar devices failed to prevent the crash.

"No panic but some excitement," was the report from the Ferry's skipper, Capt. Robert Lathrop.

Tire Shop Explosion Injures Fire Chief

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP) — An explosion in a burning tire shop critically injured Fire Chief Millard Sutton, hurled five firemen across the street and sent a total of 34 persons to the hospital today.

Fire officials said the blast apparently came from pent-up gases in the basement or from a "back draft" resulting when fresh air hits smouldering fire.

Damage was estimated at $100,000.

As in his State of the Union message, Truman forecast that the Soviets ystem will ultimately crack up or its leaders will change their policies. He said that in the long run free society "will prevail over a system that has respectf or neither God nor man."

At the end, capping his final White House talk to the nation, the 68-year-old President said:

"When Franklin Roosevelt died, I felt there must be a million men better qualified than I, to take up the presidential task. But the work was mine to do, and I had to do it. I have tried to give it everything that was in me . . .

"And now, the time has come for me to say good night and—God bless you all."

Two Planes Collide, 23 Feared Dead

VALETTA, Malta, Jan. 15 (AP)—Two British Royal Air Force planes — a transport loaded with soldiers and a four-engined bomber—crashed into the Mediterranean off Malta today. There was little hope for any survivors among the 25 persons aboard.

Crack Express

This morning only a few were in the concourse.

The Union Station, one of the nation's finest, is three blocks from the Capitol.

The tracks are on the ground floor, and come to a dead end outside the concourse.

Some trains back in. The Federal Express came in head first.

When it came to rest, the engine and the first coach formed a twisted V, with the engine's nose at about ground level and stuck in a door leading into the station. Its rear was in the basement, still coupled to the first coach. The coach's rear end was about on ground level, completing the V.

Another coach had slithered off to one side, and seemed to be balanced precariously on a steel post from the basement.

The engine hit with such force that something—no one knew exactly what—was thrown off and tore a gaping hole in the roof.

Steam, smoke and dust were everywhere.

But within a half hour nearly all the injured had been taken to hospitals. Within 45 minutes the Washington Terminal Company, which owns the station, was busy cleaning up.

The total area of public lands in the United States amounts to some 413 million acres.

As in his State of the Union message, Truman forecast that the Soviets ystem will ultimately crack up or its leaders will change their policies. He said that in the long run free society "will prevail over a system that has respectf or neither God nor man."

At the end, capping his final White House talk to the nation, the 68-year-old President said:

"When Franklin Roosevelt died, I felt there must be a million men better qualified than I, to take up the presidential task. But the work was mine to do, and I had to do it. I have tried to give it everything that was in me . . .

"And now, the time has come for me to say good night and—God bless you all."

Two Planes Collide, 23 Feared Dead

VALETTA, Malta, Jan. 15 (AP)—Two British Royal Air Force planes — a transport loaded with soldiers and a four-engined bomber—crashed into the Mediterranean off Malta today. There was little hope for any survivors among the 25 persons aboard.

Crack Express

This morning only a few were in the concourse.

The Union Station, one of the nation's finest, is three blocks from the Capitol.

The tracks are on the ground floor, and come to a dead end outside the concourse.

Some trains back in. The Federal Express came in head first.

When it came to rest, the engine and the first coach formed a twisted V, with the engine's nose at about ground level and stuck in a door leading into the station. Its rear was in the basement, still coupled to the first coach. The coach's rear end was about on ground level, completing the V.

Another coach had slithered off to one side, and seemed to be balanced precariously on a steel post from the basement.

The engine hit with such force that something—no one knew exactly what—was thrown off and tore a gaping hole in the roof.

Steam, smoke and dust were everywhere.

But within a half hour nearly all the injured had been taken to hospitals. Within 45 minutes the Washington Terminal Company, which owns the station, was busy cleaning up.

The total area of public lands in the United States amounts to some 413 million acres.

U. S. Traffic Jam Is Target Of Project--Adequate Roads

By JOHN GOETTE

Our national traffic jam is the target of Project-Adequate Roads. Forty major organizations, in turn including 1,200 others, are joined together in PAR to fight for a highway construction program aimed at bringing the nation's road network up to date.

Thirty years ago motorized America got to work on road building with the slogan, "Get Us Out of the Mud." The results might have been currently adequate, but today they leave us in a jam which inspires PAR's slogan, "Get Us Out of the Muddle."

During the whole of 1951, says Vice President B. E. Hutchinson of the Chrysler corporation, the total number of new roads constructed in the entire United States did not provide enough space to park all of the new cars produced that year.

The crisis of neglected highways, stressed by Vice President Albert Bradley of General Motors, grows faster than even his own expert computations.

In 1946, he estimated 45,000,000 motor vehicles by 1960. Bradley's prediction missed by 10 years—we had that number in 1950. He estimated again on 53,000,000 by 1960. This time Bradley was off by seven years. America, with 76 per cent of the world's motor vehicles, has 53,000,000 in 1952.

Another source, the president's Materials Policy commission, offers as a long range estimate that by 1975 our motor vehicles will hit the 85,000,000 mark.

That will be one vehicle for each 2½ Americans over 14, compared with 1950's one for each three persons. Still the national ability to absorb automotive output continues boundless. Looking ahead only to 1953, General Motors Vice President Harlow T. Curtice expects a 6,000,000-car year, with probably 1,200,000 trucks. In future years he sees 8,000,000-car years.

Roads constructed in the building boom of the 1920's, and there has been no great boom since then, were aimed at the traffic volume of the era—not for today's higher speeds and trucks.

This is where our present muddle arises. In terms of the 1941 dollar, annual highway expenditures for 1939-41 averaged $2.5 billions. The same expenditures for 1949-51, 10 years later, were only $2.3 billions.

With a 10-year increase of 20,000,000 vehicles, more than one-half of our driving is on only 75,000 miles of city streets, and only one per cent of our highway system carries 20 per cent of all traffic.

Such traffic jam factors inspire PAR's campaign of alleviation designed to avoid the obvious threat of a car-minded nation becoming immobilized.

The goal of more and better roads would likewise materially reduce deaths and injuries, and bring economic savings to millions. On better roads, it will cost less per mile to run a car; fewer accidents mean fewer repair bills, lower insurance rates and lower cost for everythnig moving by truck.

Project-Adequate Roads, seeking for better roads on national and local levels, believes that everyone commercially or professionally concerned with traffic is aware that the time has come for such a campaign. PAR goes on the theory that the public is ahead of the politicians and engineers, with the people wanting good roads and being willing to pay for them.

Patronage And The Senate

The tradition of senatorial "courtesy" comes up for re-examination as Republicans go about resolving the "confusion" over patronage arising from their return to power after 20 years of patronage starvation.

Senator Taft, one of the GOP senators who worked out a formula with President-elect Eisenhower in New York, has given his version of a senator's perquisites: "On national appointments, no senator can claim a right to have the man appointed he recommends. If a man is to be appointed from his state he may insist on the veto power, so to speak, since the Senate has to confirm the appointment." The next day President-elect Eisenhower announced he will "clear" future designations for appointments with Republican senators.

The tradition of senatorial courtesy is rooted in the constitutional requirement of "advice and consent" of the Senate for some Presidential appointments. In the early days senators from a nominee's state might be expected to know him best. If a President made an appointment without consulting senators from the appointee's state—or if the Presidential appointment was contrary to the senators' advice—presumably the President was ignoring the constitutional requirement.

To invoke the time-hallowed tradition, a senator asks the Senate committee considering the appointment for an unfavorable report on the ground that the appointee is "personally obnoxious" to the senator. Or the senator may rise on the Senate floor to make the same objection. The Senate, if it follows the tradition, will reject the nominee personally obnoxious to a senator from the nominee's state who is of the same party as the President submitting the nomination.

The tradition is generally regarded as more binding on the Senate when the objection is made by the senior senator (of the President's party) from the nominee's state, or by both senators from that state. And the senator's case is stronger if he has a record of party loyalty.

Students of government frequently call the tradition merely a device to maintain senatorial patronage. President Taft said that senatorial courtesy turned the Constitution upside down, inasmuch as in effect it gave the Senate the power of appointment subject to Presidential approval.

In the most recent exercise of senatorial courtesy the objection was on the ground that "the manner and method of selection" was obnoxious to a senator. This was when, on October 9, 1952, Senator Douglas (D-Ill), objected to President Truman's nominations of two men to be federal district judges in Chicago. The nominees themselves, Democrats both, one a nephew of the late Representative Sabath, were "estimable men and fine citizens," according to Douglas. The Senate voted to reject.

The late Senator Borah in 1938 offered a resolution to put the Senate on record against senatorial courtesy. Nominees should be confirmed if fit, in the terms of the resolution, regardless of "personal feelings, likes or dislikes of a senator." The Borah resolution was not acted upon. The following year the Senate—as it had frequently done before and has done since—extended senatorial courtesy in rejecting (by a vote of 72 to 9) a nomination for a federal judgeship in Virginia of a man "personally obnoxious" to both Virginia senators.

Price Of Security

It will probably be a surprise to most people to learn that the United States Air Force enjoyed one of its "safest" years during 1952. In testimony before the House Armed Services Committee Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, said his pilots were currently flying approximately 8,000,000 hours a year with an accident rate of 29 crashes per 100,000 hours—the lowest accident rate in history.

The reason the Air Force's top brass is on the carpet is the seven military plane crashes which took place in November and December, most of them in the northern Pacific area. This list includes aviation's worst accident, the crash of an Air Force transport near Seattle on December 20 in which 86 servicemen were killed.

The seven crashes cost 233 lives. Congressmen want to know if there is something wrong with training, or equipment, or maintenance.

General Vandenberg, and other Air Force generals, testified that there was nothing wrong with the planes, or with the pilots, or with the maintenance. Nor was sabotage a factor. Lessons learned in each crash are applied to future training procedures. Safety is not the only consideration, he added. The lives lost in all operations, he concluded, are part of the price of security.

This is a moving argument, but it has some holes in it. Congress is specifically probing the cause of the transport plane disasters. The general's argument takes in the full scope of Air Force operations, including those in Korea. No one doubts that the price of security is high. But when it figures out to six crashes a day in a "safe" year, then the whole operation is open to question.

Shipment Refused

Italy, as eager as any European nation to engage in favorable trade relations with the United States, refuses to accept one American export: Rotten yeggs.

This is a human commodity of initial Italian derivation that various investigations have been dredging up from the underworld and as a result has been earmarked for shipment. But the Italian Foreign Office adamantly refuses to accept delivery.

The Italians argue that the sour specimens the U. S. now wants to deport were mostly sweet and unsullied—many of them bambinos—when they left their native shores. The implication is that whatever influences caused these imports to turn to racketeering and other anti-social pursuits were American-made and not to be pinned on the homeland.

International law has never been explicit on what to do with former nationals who become undesirable in an adopted land. Such individuals, refused admittance by their native country, may apply for entry into a third country.

In commercial practice when a shipment of eggs turns bad in transit the whole lot is thrown out. Perhaps it will not be long until U. S. immigration officials begin to wish they had so easy a solution.

Editorialgraph

Pollsters, in convention in Chicago, say they would like to abandon political polls because they are too difficult. The Washington correspondent, who said the day before the last election he refused to make a prediction "in an election as close as this," knows how they feel.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Children With Diabetes

Before the discovery of insulin the life expectancy of a diabetic child was two years. These youngsters starved to death despite the best medical care of the day. The change took place in 1922 when insulin was placed on the market. Many children who began receiving the hormone at that time are alive today; they still have diabetes but it has been kept under control with a minimum of trouble and inconvenience.

The hereditary aspect of diabetes is well established. It has been stated that all youngsters from the union of two diabetics will develop the disease eventually. On the other hand, an individual from a diabetic family may carry the trait without developing the malady. Should such a person marry some one with diabetes, one-half of all the offspring will acquire the condition. The non-diabetic in this instance passes on the trait to the next generation via the germ cell. If two such non-diabetics carry the trait into wedlock, one child out of every four will become diabetic.

However, not every one with diabetes has a family history of the ailment. Some have made a meticulous search of the family tree without uncovering a single case among even distant cousins. But what they frequently neglect to take into consideration is that diabetes may appear at any time of life. Thus if the grandmother died of influenza at the age of 40, there is no way of knowing whether she would have been diabetic had she lived to the age of 60. In this respect, we never know our family medical background unless all live to a ripe old age or its members are tainted with diseases that usually are acquired early in life.

Diabetes manifests itself in children in much the same way as in adults. The disease always is suggested when the youngster's appetite and desire for drinking water increase, particularly when he fails to gain weight despite a greater intake of food and water. In time weight is lost and unless the disorder is brought under control the child wastes away as he becomes weaker and weaker. There also is increased urination and now and then parents seek medical care because of bedwetting. Other suggestive findings are dry skin, itching, and a tendency towards boils and pimples. Occasionally the disturbance escapes detection entirely until the tike goes into coma. When this occurs, drowsiness ensues and the cheeks become flushed and the lips, cherry red. Nausea, vomiting, and abdominal pain may precede stupor. The breath has the sweetish odor of acetone.

Children receive the same treatment as adults except that they must be thoroly indoctrinated with the need for insulin and taking excellent care of themselves. Many become so intent along this line they know almost as much as the physician about diabetes. Others take no interest at all and are always in hot water so far as the disease is concerned. They are most uncooperative during adolescence when problems peculiar to this age are added; they rebel against authority and restraint and often refuse to follow the diet or take insulin. As a result, coma occurs, requiring emergency care. But the majority come to their senses because there is no alternative to diet and insulin in diabetes.

ONE DRINK: RED FACE

W. F. writes: What causes my face to become fiery red whenever I take even one cocktail?

REPLY

This reaction stems from the dilating effect of alcohol on the capillaries of the skin. Apparently you are overly sensitive along this line.

BACKACHE

J. H. writes: Please tell me in plain English the meaning of myalgia lumbosacral spine?

REPLY

Myalgia means muscle pain. The lumbosacral part of the spine refers to the lower back. When added together, the term means low back pain of muscular origin.

HEART MURMUR

T. W. writes: Can any one ever get over a heart murmur?

REPLY

This depends upon the cause. When the murmur is associated with anemia for example, it disappears after the basic condition is corrected. Murmurs develop occasionally in the course of rheumatic fever; when the infection subsides these abnormal sounds vanish in some, whereas in others they remain. In a small percentage the murmur becomes louder.

NOT IMAGINARY

D. H. writes: Following an operation eight months ago I developed shingles, which remains extremely painful. Some well meaning friends suggested that I see a psychiatrist because this prolonged pain is self-induced. I resent the implication but wonder if the suggestion has any merit.

REPLY

Post-herpetic neuralgia is a stubborn and difficult condition to treat. It is not a psychiatric problem.

Churchill Talks Should Prove Future Help To Eisenhower; Prime Minister Favors Big Three Confab, Frowns On Using Chiang's Troops In Korea

WASHINGTON—It is now possible to report the chief highlights of the Churchill-Eisenhower and the Churchill-Washington conversations; also some of the amusing sidelights for no conversation with the British prime minister is without its whimsical moments.

During the New York talks when Churchill was urging Anglo-American co-operation on atomic energy, Eisenhower remarked that one of his problems was to keep the committees on Congress advised.

"Yes," grunted Churchill, "I've had considerable experience in advising your committees. My friend Mr. Roosevelt had trouble advising the comittees of Congress. And my friend Mr. Truman had the same trouble. And when I have come over here I have had to advise them myself."

During the dinner at the British embassy in Washigton, the top statesmen of the Anglo-American world also spent some little time discussing such weighty matters as American and British slang, how certain colloquialisms got started, and seemed especially intrigued over the origin of one of Mr. Truman's pet phrases referring to a pain in a certain portion of the anatomy.

President Truman told Churchill not to be surprised if he showed up in London soon; and after the President played a couple of his favorite pieces on the embassy's grand piano, the prime minister quipped: "I wonder if General Eisenhower can do as well?"

Meet With Stalin

The Churchill-Eisenhower talks in New York were inconclusive but extremely helpful for future guidance. Here is a summary of their main points:

Big Three Meeting — Churchill virtually paraphrased Governor Stevenson's advice that the solution to the Korean War was in Moscow and deftly suggested that Ike not take his eye off Moscow. He urged that Eisenhower think seriously about accepting Stalin's idea of a joint meeting, emphasizing that he would want to be present at such a meeting, said that even if nothing came of it, the meeting would at least show we are not warmongers and that the West is not afraid to meet with Stalin. Eisenhower appeared sympathetic.

Korea—The prime minister objected vigorously to plans for using Chiang Kai-shek's troops in Korea and the idea of blockading the Chinese mainland. This was perhaps the only discordant note of the session. Churchill argued eloquently that this would spread the war to the Chinese mainland. Finally, Eisenhower told him he hadn't definitely decided what to do.

Eisenhower also said he hadn't made up his mind what should be done about a new offensive in Korea, though it is under consideration. He was convinced that some new strategy must be developed in a hurry to end the stalemate, agreed to talk more conclusively after he became President. No new offensive, he promised, would be undertaken without prior consultation. Details of a proposed offensive were discussed, but cannot be revealed here.

Far East — Churchill expressed concern over the economic threat of Japan, said Japanese cheap labor might knock the United Kingdom out of world markets, warned that England might need stronger barriers against both Japan and Germany. If help was forthcoming on this, Churchill hinted that England would be more helpful in defending Europe.

He seemed miffed that Truman hadn't worked out a deal with the British Labor government to include England in "ANZUS," the Australia, New Zealand, U.S.A. pact for defense of the Far East, and proposed that Britain be admitted, together with France and perhaps India or Indonesia.

Atom Bomb—The prime minister detailed the large amount of money England recently spent developing atomic energy, argued that it was senseless for the free world to drain its resources by such duplication, emphasized the importance for exchanging atomic information. On this point Eisenhower is bound by law not to exchange information with any other country, so could only promise to examine the entire matter with Congress.

Middle East—Churchill put great emphasis on co-operation in this delicate area, especially Iran. A compromise for the arbitration of the Iranian oil dispute, more acceptable to the British, is being negotiated secretly in London; so part of the urgency of this problem was eased. Churchill suggested that U. S. troops patrol the Suez Canal along with the British.

The Moroccan Bases

The importance of the Moroccan bases which the United States has been building is often overlooked in the confusing reports and charges which led to a reprimand of General Lewis A. Pick, chief of Engineers, by the secretary of War, Frank Pace, Jr.

Actually, three investigations have been made and three reports have been issued. Two of these reports are favorable; one is critical. The critical report, issued by the Senate Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee and signed by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, made headlines because, if read carelessly, it indicated that hundreds of millions of dollars of the American taxpayers' money were being buried in the sands of the Sahara. The House Subcommittee on Military Public Works issued a report by its chairman, Representative John J. Riley, who gave evidence as to a remarkable job done under almost impossible conditions. The secretary of War engaged Glenn W. Maxon, an engineer of reputation and experience, to make an independent survey of the bases, and Maxon's report is most favorable to the work that had been done under crash conditions.

From all three reports, it is possible to observe that whatever faults exist in this particular operation, they were due to high level decisions, to delayed negotiations with the French, and to Washington indecision and red-tape.

In spite of Mr. Pace's running to cover on the eve of a national election and his throwing the blame on a military officer who cannot answer back without being insubordinate, a tremendous lot has been accomplished in Morocco.

These bases, the largest in the world designed to make it possible for our planes to cover the whole of Europe, were ordered in a hurry to be ready in July 1951, an apparent impossibility. Yet in 82 days, after ground was broken, the Army Engineers had built a field that was usable. This is called "crash construction" under the circumstances of which costs are not taken into account, because the results are so important and pressing.

The contractors had to build not only airfields that would hold the largest planes already in existence, some projected and still on paper, but also five cities with all facilities necessary for a defensible airbase of primary magnitude.

No one questions the importance of these bases in the defense of the United States, should Russia attempt the conquest of Western Europe.

The issue is whether they have been wastefully built and if anyone is culpable. When ordered, the top policy makers believed that Russia intended war and rushed to the defenses. Rush jobs always are badly planned and costs lost of money. If any error is involved, it is in the rush factor. Also a factor is the usual military method of constantly changing plans without regard to a contractor's costs in such changes.

Mr. Riley made the point in his report:

". . . where one year before there had been nothing, there existed at two locations in Morocco at the time these hearings began in April 1952, usable air bases and there was in the process of establishment an important link in the defense of the West.

"As the investigation continued it was seen that all of this had been accomplished under incredible working conditions. There had been no advance plans or specifications, or even more important there were no master plans; construction and planning had to be done simultaneously . . ."

Another problem that arose is also due to the characteristic Washington habit of making big appropriations and then tying them into a knot of red-tape. Of this Representative Riley said:

". . . the district engineer was forced to work under conditions of almost month-to-month bankruptcy. At hardly no time after heavy work had commenced was he supplied with sufficient funds to see further ahead than 30 days, although the lead time required for procurement of construction materials was several months long."

I have now read the reports available on this subject, as well as a good deal of the testimony at hearings and find that the work is progressing remarkably well. What I cannot understand is why Mr. Pace chose General Lewis A. Pick, chief of Engineers, as a scapegoat when none was necessary. All he needed to do was to present the facts. He might even have taken credit for them.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President-elect Eisenhower has an opportunity when he takes office to create an American institution of transcendent importance — a press conference once a week that will really be comparable to the questioning done in the British Parliament.

The press conference itself is relatively new in American history, having been introduced on a regular basis during the administration of President Woodrow Wilson, but it never has been developed effectively and it has lost much of its value because of its disorganized nature and the tendency to embarrass a President with tricky questions asked by opposition critics. In Britain's Parliament opposition questions must be submitted several days in advance.

General Eisenhower had been reported as lukewarm about the idea of press conferences, but it turns out that he merely has been considering ways and means of improving the relationship between a President and the press.

Time Might Help

A system of written questions has often been suggested, but, while this can be utilized to some extent, it is not the whole answer to the problem. Preparation by a President to answer many of the questions leveled at him during a press conference would be helpful all around. Thus, a President who says he can't comment on an item pertaining to one of the many departments of the government would probably gladly do so if he had the question long enough in advance to get the desired information from the department concerned.

Merely to permit written questions, on the other hand, would confine the subject matter too strictly. An alternative is to require that the questions be submitted in writing not later than three hours before the press conference is scheduled to be held. Then, if the President decides to answer certain of the written questions — perhaps holding over some others for further inquiry — the rule might be that any topic thus introduced into the press conference would be subject to the usual repartee between the President and the members of the press.

By having written questions submitted in advance, the President would be able to summon to his press conference different members of the cabinet who were more familiar than he with certain questions that it had been decided by the administration to answer.

There is no reason why, under these circumstances, much of the material should not be given out later for first-person quotation, leaving the other items to be treated by paraphrase as has been the custom heretofore.

Members of the press could improve the conferences by preparing their queries early enough to afford an opportunity to look up the data needed. This would permit an orderly grouping of the questions related to a specific subject. There has been heretofore a much too casual attitude on the part of members of the press toward the weekly conferences. While some have given thought to questions, there never has been any attempt to organize questions for the whole conference in advance of the meeting.

It has been rumored that General Eisenhower thought possibly he would not hold scheduled press conferences but would call them whenever he had something special to say. This does not, however, meet the main objective of press conferences. The basic purpose is to allow the representatives of the people to ask questions of a President, especially when top news is breaking around the world and there is public anxiety. A regularly fixed day once a week for press conferences is essential, subject occasionally to cancellation when extraordinary events require the presence of the chief executive at other conferences.

Press Conference Helpful

Most Presidents, despite their outward acquiescence in press conferences, have not liked them. President Wilson was irked by the fact that statements on problems on which the discussions were not completed were sought and it was not, as he saw it, in the public interest to give them out piecemeal. Mr. Wilson finally was glad to abandon the press conferences during the period before America entered World War I. He gave privately his reason that he didn't want to talk before representatives of Germany, who were then free to move around Washington and to report to their governments.

President Harding was a victim of a serious misunderstanding internationally when, during the World Armaments Conference, he made a statement directly opposite to that of Secretary of State Hughes simply because he was not abreast of something that had been said an hour or so before at the State Department.

President Coolidge insisted on use of the term "White House spokesman" and was disinclined to answer many questions asked him.

President Hoover utilized the press conference to give out vital information.

President Franklin Roosevelt enjoyed the press conferences and let them at times become frivolous. President Truman has frequently employed the conferences more to disseminate his own political propaganda than to answer questions of the press.

The press conference — once established as a dignified institution with written questions as well as impromptu questioning — can be a useful instrument of government in America and can by its example help to develop similar relationships between the press and executive officials in other free governments of the world.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

Sad Awakening

WASHINGTON

The jubilant orgy of the inauguration has not yet started. But even now, some days before President-elect Eisenhower and his new team tackle their great task, the signs of a sad but probably healthy awakening may be rather plainly seen.

In the aftermath of the election, there was a tendency, even among very sensible people, to think that the change of party in power in Washington had somehow changed and lessened the great problems confronting this country. But during these last weeks of earnest preparation, Eisenhower and the wiser men around him have had to face the fact that these problems remain as thorny as ever. A good illustration is the problem of Korea, which has such great political urgency.

It is pretty well known, now, what President-elect Eisenhower was told by the military commanders on the scene when he made his Korean journey. Generals Mark Clark and James Van Fleet and the Korean air commander, Gen. O. P. Weyland, have not been especially secretive about their views. The collective judgment of these key personalities may be crudely but authoritatively summarized as follows:

Objections To Plan

First, an offensive in Korea is not impossible, given the time and resources to prepare it. A frontal attack on the existing Chinese line cannot be considered, since the line is now 20 miles deep, and the enemy forces are much too well dug in. For the same reasons, the tactical employment of atomic bombs in Korea would probably be fruitless. We can still exploit our command of the sea and air, however, by landing in the rear of the enemy as we did at Inchon. This time, co-ordinated landings on both coasts of the Korean peninsula are probably required, in order to trap the enemy armies in their present positions.

There are three objections to this plan. Gathering the needed resources will take at least nine months. We cannot be sure that the landings will be almost unopposed, as at Inchon—casualties can run up to 50,000 or more, and worst of all, there are very large Chinese armies stationed just above the Yalu which can easily enter the fight. If these Northern armies join the enemy armies now in Korea in a double envelopment, our landing parties will be caught in a sort of nutcracker.

Second, therefore, purely military considerations are all on the side of breaking one jaw of this giant nutcracker. Several different kinds of diversionary attacks in China and Manchuria are therefore urged, with an attack on Mukden topping the list. Mukden is the key to the whole enemy position, both on the Yalu River and in Korea proper. All supplies, all reinforcements, are channeled into Mukden by rail and thence towards the front. The destruction of Mukden by air bombardment is not absolutely essential reinsurance for an offensive in Korea; but it is extremely desirable reinsurance.

Could Shatter Alliance

There are also very obvious objections to all such ventures as the attack on Mukden, although president-elect Eisenhower was strongly advised to consider them. "Extending the war," entails very terrible risks. If it is successful, the complaints of our allies will be drowned by the rejoicing over the end of the Korean fight. But suppose an attack on Mukden does not end the fighting in Korea, and leads, instead, to a much wider and more costly war in the Far East. The Western Alliance will then probably be shattered, while even the most MacArthur-minded American public opinion will denounce "the administration blunderers."

Third, there is the project for using Chiang Kai-shek's troops in Korea. This was not advocated by the commanders on the scene in Korea, but enjoys some support in the Pentagon and very strong support among Republicans in Congress. Even the Truman administration's deputy secretary of defense, William C. Foster, has advocated "consideration" of this plan. Foster only argued that we ought to get some military return on the $500,000,000 a year now being invested in Formosa; that the value of Chiang's forces needs to be tested; and that a test of perhaps one division may be worth while. Yet the position taken by Foster suggests that this project cannot be laughed off.

Again, the objections are very grave, as President-elect Eisenhower recognized in the heat of recent campaign. Korean President Syngman Rhee is bitterly opposed to "transferring the Chinese civil war to Korea," on the ground that it would end all hope of a Korean settlement. Chiang himself is far from enthusiastic. Such a move would induce nothing short of hysteria among our European allies. And nothing more would be gained from using a couple of Chinese divisions, than from creating the same number of new Korean divisions.

Patronage And The Senate

The tradition of senatorial "courtesy" comes up for re-examination as Republicans go about resolving the "confusion" over patronage arising from their return to power after 20 years of patronage starvation.

Senator Taft, one of the GOP senators who worked out a formula with President-elect Eisenhower in New York, has given his version of a senator's perquisites: "On national appointments, no senator can claim a right to have the man appointed he recommends. If a man is to be appointed from his state he may insist on the veto power, so to speak, since the Senate has to confirm the appointment." The next day President-elect Eisenhower announced he will "clear" future designations for appointments with Republican senators.

The tradition of senatorial courtesy is rooted in the constitutional requirement of "advice and consent" of the Senate for some Presidential appointments. In the early days senators from a nominee's state might be expected to know him best. If a President made an appointment without consulting senators from the appointee's state—or if the Presidential appointment was contrary to the senators' advice—presumably the President was ignoring the constitutional requirement.

To invoke the time-hallowed tradition, a senator asks the Senate committee considering the appointment for an unfavorable report on the ground that the appointee is "personally obnoxious" to the senator. Or the senator may rise on the Senate floor to make the same objection. The Senate, if it follows the tradition, will reject the nominee personally obnoxious to a senator from the nominee's state who is of the same party as the President submitting the nomination.

The tradition is generally regarded as more binding on the Senate when the objection is made by the senior senator (of the President's party) from the nominee's state, or by both senators from that state. And the senator's case is stronger if he has a record of party loyalty.

Students of government frequently call the tradition merely a device to maintain senatorial patronage. President Taft said that senatorial courtesy turned the Constitution upside down, inasmuch as in effect it gave the Senate the power of appointment subject to Presidential approval.

In the most recent exercise of senatorial courtesy the objection was on the ground that "the manner and method of selection" was obnoxious to a senator. This was when, on October 9, 1952, Senator Douglas (D-Ill), objected to President Truman's nominations of two men to be federal district judges in Chicago. The nominees themselves, Democrats both, one a nephew of the late Representative Sabath, were "estimable men and fine citizens," according to Douglas. The Senate voted to reject.

The late Senator Borah in 1938 offered a resolution to put the Senate on record against senatorial courtesy. Nominees should be confirmed if fit, in the terms of the resolution, regardless of "personal feelings, likes or dislikes of a senator." The Borah resolution was not acted upon. The following year the Senate—as it had frequently done before and has done since—extended senatorial courtesy in rejecting (by a vote of 72 to 9) a nomination for a federal judgeship in Virginia of a man "personally obnoxious" to both Virginia senators.

Price Of Security

It will probably be a surprise to most people to learn that the United States Air Force enjoyed one of its "safest" years during 1952. In testimony before the House Armed Services Committee Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, said his pilots were currently flying approximately 8,000,000 hours a year with an accident rate of 29 crashes per 100,000 hours—the lowest accident rate in history.

The reason the Air Force's top brass is on the carpet is the seven military plane crashes which took place in November and December, most of them in the northern Pacific area. This list includes aviation's worst accident, the crash of an Air Force transport near Seattle on December 20 in which 86 servicemen were killed.

The seven crashes cost 233 lives. Congressmen want to know if there is something wrong with training, or equipment, or maintenance.

General Vandenberg, and other Air Force generals, testified that there was nothing wrong with the planes, or with the pilots, or with the maintenance. Nor was sabotage a factor. Lessons learned in each crash are applied to future training procedures. Safety is not the only consideration, he added. The lives lost in all operations, he concluded, are part of the price of security.

This is a moving argument, but it has some holes in it. Congress is specifically probing the cause of the transport plane disasters. The general's argument takes in the full scope of Air Force operations, including those in Korea. No one doubts that the price of security is high. But when it figures out to six crashes a day in a "safe" year, then the whole operation is open to question.

Shipment Refused

Italy, as eager as any European nation to engage in favorable trade relations with the United States, refuses to accept one American export: Rotten yeggs.

This is a human commodity of initial Italian derivation that various investigations have been dredging up from the underworld and as a result has been earmarked for shipment. But the Italian Foreign Office adamantly refuses to accept delivery.

The Italians argue that the sour specimens the U. S. now wants to deport were mostly sweet and unsullied—many of them bambinos—when they left their native shores. The implication is that whatever influences caused these imports to turn to racketeering and other anti-social pursuits were American-made and not to be pinned on the homeland.

International law has never been explicit on what to do with former nationals who become undesirable in an adopted land. Such individuals, refused admittance by their native country, may apply for entry into a third country.

In commercial practice when a shipment of eggs turns bad in transit the whole lot is thrown out. Perhaps it will not be long until U. S. immigration officials begin to wish they had so easy a solution.

How To Keep Well

Children With Diabetes

Before the discovery of insulin the life expectancy of a diabetic child was two years. These youngsters starved to death despite the best medical care of the day. The change took place in 1922 when insulin was placed on the market. Many children who began receiving the hormone at that time are alive today; they still have diabetes but it has been kept under control with a minimum of trouble and inconvenience.

The hereditary aspect of diabetes is well established. It has been stated that all youngsters from the union of two diabetics will develop the disease eventually. On the other hand, an individual from a diabetic family may carry the trait without developing the malady. Should such a person marry some one with diabetes, one-half of all the offspring will acquire the condition. The non-diabetic in this instance passes on the trait to the next generation via the germ cell. If two such non-diabetics carry the trait into wedlock, one child out of every four will become diabetic.

However, not every one with diabetes has a family history of the ailment. Some have made a meticulous search of the family tree without uncovering a single case among even distant cousins. But what they frequently neglect to take into consideration is that diabetes may appear at any time of life. Thus if the grandmother died of influenza at the age of 40, there is no way of knowing whether she would have been diabetic had she lived to the age of 60. In this respect, we never know our family medical background unless all live to a ripe old age or its members are tainted with diseases that usually are acquired early in life.

Diabetes manifests itself in children in much the same way as in adults. The disease always is suggested when the youngster's appetite and desire for drinking water increase, particularly when he fails to gain weight despite a greater intake of food and water. In time weight is lost and unless the disorder is brought under control the child wastes away as he becomes weaker and weaker. There also is increased urination and now and then parents seek medical care because of bedwetting. Other suggestive findings are dry skin, itching, and a tendency towards boils and pimples. Occasionally the disturbance escapes detection entirely until the tike goes into coma. When this occurs, drowsiness ensues and the cheeks become flushed and the lips, cherry red. Nausea, vomiting, and abdominal pain may precede stupor. The breath has the sweetish odor of acetone.

Children receive the same treatment as adults except that they must be thoroly indoctrinated with the need for insulin and taking excellent care of themselves. Many become so intent along this line they know almost as much as the physician about diabetes. Others take no interest at all and are always in hot water so far as the disease is concerned. They are most uncooperative during adolescence when problems peculiar to this age are added; they rebel against authority and restraint and often refuse to follow the diet or take insulin. As a result, coma occurs, requiring emergency care. But the majority come to their senses because there is no alternative to diet and insulin in diabetes.

Churchill Talks Should Prove Future Help To Eisenhower; Prime Minister Favors Big Three Confab, Frowns On Using Chiang's Troops In Korea

WASHINGTON—It is now possible to report the chief highlights of the Churchill-Eisenhower and the Churchill-Washington conversations; also some of the amusing sidelights for no conversation with the British prime minister is without its whimsical moments.

President Truman told Churchill not to be surprised if he showed up in London soon; and after the President played a couple of his favorite pieces on the embassy's grand piano, the prime minister quipped: "I wonder if General Eisenhower can do as well?"

Meet With Stalin

The Churchill-Eisenhower talks in New York were inconclusive but extremely helpful for future guidance. Here is a summary of their main points:

Big Three Meeting — Churchill virtually paraphrased Governor Stevenson's advice that the solution to the Korean War was in Moscow and deftly suggested that Ike not take his eye off Moscow. He seemed miffed that Truman hadn't worked out a deal with the British Labor government to include England in "ANZUS," the Australia, New Zealand, U.S.A. pact for defense of the Far East, and proposed that Britain be admitted, together with France and perhaps India or Indonesia.

Atom Bomb—The prime minister detailed the large amount of money England recently spent developing atomic energy, argued that it was senseless for the free world to drain its resources by such duplication, emphasized the importance for exchanging atomic information. On this point Eisenhower is bound by law not to exchange information with any other country, so could only promise to examine the entire matter with Congress.

Middle East—Churchill put great emphasis on co-operation in this delicate area, especially Iran. A compromise for the arbitration of the Iranian oil dispute, more acceptable to the British, is being negotiated secretly in London; so part of the urgency of this problem was eased. Churchill suggested that U. S. troops patrol the Suez Canal along with the British.

The Moroccan Bases

The importance of the Moroccan bases which the United States has been building is often overlooked in the confusing reports and charges which led to a reprimand of General Lewis A. Pick, chief of Engineers, by the secretary of War, Frank Pace, Jr.

Actually, three investigations have been made and three reports have been issued. Two of these reports are favorable; one is critical. The critical report, issued by the Senate Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee and signed by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, made headlines because, if read carelessly, it indicated that hundreds of millions of dollars of the American taxpayers' money were being buried in the sands of the Sahara. The House Subcommittee on Military Public Works issued a report by its chairman, Representative John J. Riley, who gave evidence as to a remarkable job done under almost impossible conditions. The secretary of War engaged Glenn W. Maxon, an engineer of reputation and experience, to make an independent survey of the bases, and Maxon's report is most favorable to the work that had been done under crash conditions.

From all three reports, it is possible to observe that whatever faults exist in this particular operation, they were due to high level decisions, to delayed negotiations with the French, and to Washington indecision and red-tape.

In spite of Mr. Pace's running to cover on the eve of a national election and his throwing the blame on a military officer who cannot answer back without being insubordinate, a tremendous lot has been accomplished in Morocco.

These bases, the largest in the world designed to make it possible for our planes to cover the whole of Europe, were ordered in a hurry to be ready in July 1951, an apparent impossibility. Yet in 82 days, after ground was broken, the Army Engineers had built a field that was usable. This is called "crash construction" under the circumstances of which costs are not taken into account, because the results are so important and pressing.

The contractors had to build not only airfields that would hold the largest planes already in existence, some projected and still on paper, but also five cities with all facilities necessary for a defensible airbase of primary magnitude.

No one questions the importance of these bases in the defense of the United States, should Russia attempt the conquest of Western Europe.

The issue is whether they have been wastefully built and if anyone is culpable. When ordered, the top policy makers believed that Russia intended war and rushed to the defenses. Rush jobs always are badly planned and costs lost of money. If any error is involved, it is in the rush factor. Also a factor is the usual military method of constantly changing plans without regard to a contractor's costs in such changes.

Mr. Riley made the point in his report:

". . . where one year before there had been nothing, there existed at two locations in Morocco at the time these hearings began in April 1952, usable air bases and there was in the process of establishment an important link in the defense of the West.

"As the investigation continued it was seen that all of this had been accomplished under incredible working conditions. There had been no advance plans or specifications, or even more important there were no master plans; construction and planning had to be done simultaneously . . ."

Another problem that arose is also due to the characteristic Washington habit of making big appropriations and then tying them into a knot of red-tape. Of this Representative Riley said:

". . . the district engineer was forced to work under conditions of almost month-to-month bankruptcy. At hardly no time after heavy work had commenced was he supplied with sufficient funds to see further ahead than 30 days, although the lead time required for procurement of construction materials was several months long."

I have now read the reports available on this subject, as well as a good deal of the testimony at hearings and find that the work is progressing remarkably well. What I cannot understand is why Mr. Pace chose General Lewis A. Pick, chief of Engineers, as a scapegoat when none was necessary. All he needed to do was to present the facts. He might even have taken credit for them.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President-elect Eisenhower has an opportunity when he takes office to create an American institution of transcendent importance — a press conference once a week that will really be comparable to the questioning done in the British Parliament.

The press conference itself is relatively new in American history, having been introduced on a regular basis during the administration of President Woodrow Wilson, but it never has been developed effectively and it has lost much of its value because of its disorganized nature and the tendency to embarrass a President with tricky questions asked by opposition critics. In Britain's Parliament opposition questions must be submitted several days in advance.

General Eisenhower had been reported as lukewarm about the idea of press conferences, but it turns out that he merely has been considering ways and means of improving the relationship between a President and the press.

Time Might Help

A system of written questions has often been suggested, but, while this can be utilized to some extent, it is not the whole answer to the problem. Preparation by a President to answer many of the questions leveled at him during a press conference would be helpful all around. Thus, a President who says he can't comment on an item pertaining to one of the many departments of the government would probably gladly do so if he had the question long enough in advance to get the desired information from the department concerned.

Merely to permit written questions, on the other hand, would confine the subject matter too strictly. An alternative is to require that the questions be submitted in writing not later than three hours before the press conference is scheduled to be held. Then, if the President decides to answer certain of the written questions — perhaps holding over some others for further inquiry — the rule might be that any topic thus introduced into the press conference would be subject to the usual repartee between the President and the members of the press.

By having written questions submitted in advance, the President would be able to summon to his press conference different members of the cabinet who were more familiar than he with certain questions that it had been decided by the administration to answer.

There is no reason why, under these circumstances, much of the material should not be given out later for first-person quotation, leaving the other items to be treated by paraphrase as has been the custom heretofore.

Members of the press could improve the conferences by preparing their queries early enough to afford an opportunity to look up the data needed. This would permit an orderly grouping of the questions related to a specific subject. There has been heretofore a much too casual attitude on the part of members of the press toward the weekly conferences. While some have given thought to questions, there never has been any attempt to organize questions for the whole conference in advance of the meeting.

It has been rumored that General Eisenhower thought possibly he would not hold scheduled press conferences but would call them whenever he had something special to say. This does not, however, meet the main objective of press conferences. The basic purpose is to allow the representatives of the people to ask questions of a President, especially when top news is breaking around the world and there is public anxiety. A regularly fixed day once a week for press conferences is essential, subject occasionally to cancellation when extraordinary events require the presence of the chief executive at other conferences.

Press Conference Helpful

Most Presidents, despite their outward acquiescence in press conferences, have not liked them. President Wilson was irked by the fact that statements on problems on which the discussions were not completed were sought and it was not, as he saw it, in the public interest to give them out piecemeal. Mr. Wilson finally was glad to abandon the press conferences during the period before America entered World War I. He gave privately his reason that he didn't want to talk before representatives of Germany, who were then free to move around Washington and to report to their governments.

President Harding was a victim of a serious misunderstanding internationally when, during the World Armaments Conference, he made a statement directly opposite to that of Secretary of State Hughes simply because he was not abreast of something that had been said an hour or so before at the State Department.

President Coolidge insisted on use of the term "White House spokesman" and was disinclined to answer many questions asked him.

President Hoover utilized the press conference to give out vital information.

President Franklin Roosevelt enjoyed the press conferences and let them at times become frivolous. President Truman has frequently employed the conferences more to disseminate his own political propaganda than to answer questions of the press.

The press conference — once established as a dignified institution with written questions as well as impromptu questioning — can be a useful instrument of government in America and can by its example help to develop similar relationships between the press and executive officials in other free governments of the world.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

Sad Awakening

WASHINGTON

The jubilant orgy of the inauguration has not yet started. But even now, some days before President-elect Eisenhower and his new team tackle their great task, the signs of a sad but probably healthy awakening may be rather plainly seen.

In the aftermath of the election, there was a tendency, even among very sensible people, to think that the change of party in power in Washington had somehow changed and lessened the great problems confronting this country. But during these last weeks of earnest preparation, Eisenhower and the wiser men around him have had to face the fact that these problems remain as thorny as ever. A good illustration is the problem of Korea, which has such great political urgency.

It is pretty well known, now, what President-elect Eisenhower was told by the military commanders on the scene when he made his Korean journey. Generals Mark Clark and James Van Fleet and the Korean air commander, Gen. O. P. Weyland, have not been especially secretive about their views. The collective judgment of these key personalities may be crudely but authoritatively summarized as follows:

Objections To Plan

First, an offensive in Korea is not impossible, given the time and resources to prepare it. A frontal attack on the existing Chinese line cannot be considered, since the line is now 20 miles deep, and the enemy forces are much too well dug in. For the same reasons, the tactical employment of atomic bombs in Korea would probably be fruitless. We can still exploit our command of the sea and air, however, by landing in the rear of the enemy as we did at Inchon. This time, co-ordinated landings on both coasts of the Korean peninsula are probably required, in order to trap the enemy armies in their present positions.

There are three objections to this plan. Gathering the needed resources will take at least nine months. We cannot be sure that the landings will be almost unopposed, as at Inchon—casualties can run up to 50,000 or more, and worst of all, there are very large Chinese armies stationed just above the Yalu which can easily enter the fight. If these Northern armies join the enemy armies now in Korea in a double envelopment, our landing parties will be caught in a sort of nutcracker.

Second, therefore, purely military considerations are all on the side of breaking one jaw of this giant nutcracker. Several different kinds of diversionary attacks in China and Manchuria are therefore urged, with an attack on Mukden topping the list. Mukden is the key to the whole enemy position, both on the Yalu River and in Korea proper. All supplies, all reinforcements, are channeled into Mukden by rail and thence towards the front. The destruction of Mukden by air bombardment is not absolutely essential reinsurance for an offensive in Korea; but it is extremely desirable reinsurance.

Could Shatter Alliance

There are also very obvious objections to all such ventures as the attack on Mukden, although president-elect Eisenhower was strongly advised to consider them. "Extending the war," entails very terrible risks. If it is successful, the complaints of our allies will be drowned by the rejoicing over the end of the Korean fight. But suppose an attack on Mukden does not end the fighting in Korea, and leads, instead, to a much wider and more costly war in the Far East. The Western Alliance will then probably be shattered, while even the most MacArthur-minded American public opinion will denounce "the administration blunderers."

Third, there is the project for using Chiang Kai-shek's troops in Korea. This was not advocated by the commanders on the scene in Korea, but enjoys some support in the Pentagon and very strong support among Republicans in Congress. Even the Truman administration's deputy secretary of defense, William C. Foster, has advocated "consideration" of this plan. Foster only argued that we ought to get some military return on the $500,000,000 a year now being invested in Formosa; that the value of Chiang's forces needs to be tested; and that a test of perhaps one division may be worth while. Yet the position taken by Foster suggests that this project cannot be laughed off.

Again, the objections are very grave, as President-elect Eisenhower recognized in the heat of recent campaign. Korean President Syngman Rhee is bitterly opposed to "transferring the Chinese civil war to Korea," on the ground that it would end all hope of a Korean settlement. Chiang himself is far from enthusiastic. Such a move would induce nothing short of hysteria among our European allies. And nothing more would be gained from using a couple of Chinese divisions, than from creating the same number of new Korean divisions.

Mrs. William VanNewkirk, group chairman, was discussion leader. The discussion centered around the "New Ways in Discipline," recently published book on child psychology by Dorothy Walter Baruck. The group dealt mainly with the problems in disciplining preschool children.

The introvert and extrovert child is to be the topic for the discussion at the next meeting, being held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Friedland, 1907 Bedford Street, February 11.

Others attending were Mrs. Henry Sauer, Mrs. Maurice Milberg, Mrs. David Whitworth, Mrs. John Thomas, Mrs. Alfred Schwalb, Mrs. David Sigel, Mrs. Robert M. King, Mrs. R. J. Boniece, Mrs. Friedland, Mrs. Malcolm Campbell, Mrs. Milton Granet, Mrs. Robert L. Ebert, Mrs. Alice Maguire and Mrs. Arlene Russell.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

In private conclave, women sometimes discuss men — or so men, particularly husbands, believe. It is not surprising therefore that men sometimes discuss women as they did recently when several of us were lunching together. The younger men present were lamenting what they termed "loss in charm" by the fair sex—particularly business women — little lapses in courtesies and the gentler manners. Men cherish such feminine ways. They charm them into returning courtesy in kind — thereby helping the poor male to feel proud of himself!

Whether this was just a gripe session or whether their claims were justified, I would rather let you decide. What do you think about the following charges?

Male Complaints

1. When a man holds a heavy door to allow a lady to pass, too many fail to return the courtesy with a "thank you." 2. When a woman goes through an entrance door and a man is immediately behind her, she could hesitate and hold the door long enough for him to catch it. Does she? No, said the men — she usually let's it slam in his face!

3. If a gentleman inadvertantly jostles a girl in a crowded elevator or bus and asks her pardon, he generally gets nothing more than a glare as though his action had been deliberate. When the situation is reversed, she ignores her error without so much as an apologetic smile.

4. Too often, a member of the fair sex tries to weasel ahead (and usually succeeds) instead of taking her proper turn in line for a cab or seat at the lunch counter. 5. Most of the smoking in elevators is perpetrated by femmes returning from the snack bar.

Courtesy Returned

6. Should you be out when a career woman calls, she expects you to phone her promptly on your return. But in the opposite situation, a man can generally depend on having to call her again. 7. In any office when something has been borrowed and not returned, you can almost be sure that getting it back is a matter of "cherchez la femme."

How about it, careerists? Do business women use one standard of courtesy in the office — and a completely different one in their private lives? If so, it's a practice that cannot long be sustained. Sooner or later their charm will be permanently impaired.

And the worst of it is men will become less and less gentlemanly. Only your courtesy inspires our courtesy to you!

YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE

You can achieve an appealing, resonant, sonorous voice — one that can be a vibrant attribute to charm and success — by reading the new booklet, YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE, which gives complete instructions on how to overcome such wearisome speaking qualities as tonelessness, dullness and lack of proper modulation. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Tomorrow: The winning smile.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—I got into one of my customary arguments about Penn Station and Grand Central Terminal the other day, and this time I lost. My opponent threw the book at me.

We have a lot of railroad stations in and around the five boroughs of New York, but those two are the big Berthas, Penn Station being the big depot for Pennsylvania and Long Island railroad trains and Grand Central being the home of New York Central and New York, New Haven and Hartford cabooses.

They are as unalike as Katharine Hepburn and Betty Hutton and I always argue that Penn Station is by far the more attractive of the two because it is big dingy, echoing, gloomy and altogether like some of those European depots, like the Gare St. Lazare in Paris, which look the way train stations should look. Grand Central is airy, clean, shiny and altogether like a bank. This is a railroad station?

When my foe the other day got through with me, however, I had a little more respect for G. C. He started off by pointing out that 61,000,000 passengers pass through the place each year and that 30,000 men and women can find standing room in the station at one time—and then he went on from there, flooding me with amazing figures that I now pass along to you.

The present Grand Central Terminal, which was fashioned in 1913 at a cost of $65 million, is almost completely underground, like an iceberg that is seven-eights below the sea. It is 110 feet deep—or around nine stories—and has two track levels, upper and lower. They contain 67 tracks and over these tracks about 510 trains enter or leave daily. In 1902 there was a train collision in a Grand Central tunnel that cost 17 lives but there hasn't been a really serious wreck since that time.

The legitimate business in the terminal—railroad business—employs about 3,100 men and women, but there are another 3,000 who work in the shops and offices in the building proper. There are around 200 shops and restaurants in the Terminal, and 30 magazine stands. A pride and joy is the famous Oyster Bar, which, I was informed caustically, peddles five million oysters and clams to brave souls each year. I prefer hamburgers.

The main room on the upper level is called the Concourse. It is 108 feet by 185 feet and its staggering sky-blue ceiling is 117 feet in the air, as well as being 25,728 feet square. It is decorated with the constellations of Aquarius, Pisces, Gemini, Musca, Orion, Tarus, Cancer, Aries, Triangulum and Pegasus, in gold, and cost $40,000 when painted by Paul Hellu, a Frenchman. Astronomers would go nuts looking at it. The stars are painted on in reverse.

The focal point of Grand Central Terminal is the upper level information booth, and surmounting this is what is known as the Golden Clock. Actually it's brass and is one of around 80 clocks visible to the public in the terminal. A Swiss named Jake Bachtold, 50 years on the job, takes care of it and also is responsible for about 1,000 more clocks on and along the tracks for about 70 miles outside the station.

Grand Central Terminal was built originally by Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt in 1869 and a statue of the old boy, looking extremely meditative, is situated now outside the windows on the Concourse's south side, facing down lower Park Avenue. The terminal's official address is 89 E. 42nd Street.

There is a police station, with about 40 cops, in the terminal, along with two morgues—one for photos and one for what morgues were meant for—and the word is that two or three persons die per month in the station or on trains entering it. At one end of the Concourse, on a kind of balcony, is a color transparency measuring 18 feet by 60 feet, undoubtedly one of the terminal's show pieces.

Best known of all the inhabitants of Grand Central is Judy, a 9-year-old cat which sits on the newspapers at a stand near the newsreel movie house and occasionally hauls herself down and into the cinema. It was from that movie house that one commuter, possibly a little boiled, came darting out one day with the question "Have we reached 14th Street yet?"

Are business women guilty of courtesy slips and a lapse in gentler manners? Some men say so!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

In private conclave, women sometimes discuss men — or so men, particularly husbands, believe. It is not surprising therefore that men sometimes discuss women as they did recently when several of us were lunching together. The younger men present were lamenting what they termed "loss in charm" by the fair sex—particularly business women — little lapses in courtesies and the gentler manners. Men cherish such feminine ways. They charm them into returning courtesy in kind — thereby helping the poor male to feel proud of himself!

Whether this was just a gripe session or whether their claims were justified, I would rather let you decide. What do you think about the following charges?

Male Complaints

1. When a man holds a heavy door to allow a lady to pass, too many fail to return the courtesy with a "thank you." 2. When a woman goes through an entrance door and a man is immediately behind her, she could hesitate and hold the door long enough for him to catch it. Does she? No, said the men — she usually let's it slam in his face!

3. If a gentleman inadvertantly jostles a girl in a crowded elevator or bus and asks her pardon, he generally gets nothing more than a glare as though his action had been deliberate. When the situation is reversed, she ignores her error without so much as an apologetic smile.

4. Too often, a member of the fair sex tries to weasel ahead (and usually succeeds) instead of taking her proper turn in line for a cab or seat at the lunch counter. 5. Most of the smoking in elevators is perpetrated by femmes returning from the snack bar.

Courtesy Returned

6. Should you be out when a career woman calls, she expects you to phone her promptly on your return. But in the opposite situation, a man can generally depend on having to call her again. 7. In any office when something has been borrowed and not returned, you can almost be sure that getting it back is a matter of "cherchez la femme."

How about it, careerists? Do business women use one standard of courtesy in the office — and a completely different one in their private lives? If so, it's a practice that cannot long be sustained. Sooner or later their charm will be permanently impaired.

And the worst of it is men will become less and less gentlemanly. Only your courtesy inspires our courtesy to you!

YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE

You can achieve an appealing, resonant, sonorous voice — one that can be a vibrant attribute to charm and success — by reading the new booklet, YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE, which gives complete instructions on how to overcome such wearisome speaking qualities as tonelessness, dullness and lack of proper modulation. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Tomorrow: The winning smile.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—I got into one of my customary arguments about Penn Station and Grand Central Terminal the other day, and this time I lost. My opponent threw the book at me.

We have a lot of railroad stations in and around the five boroughs of New York, but those two are the big Berthas. Penn Station being the big depot for Pennsylvania and Long Island railroad trains and Grand Central being the home of New York Central and New York, New Haven and Hartford cabooses.

They are as unalike as Katharine Hepburn and Betty Hutton and I always argue that Penn Station is by far the more attractive of the two because it is big dingy, echoing, gloomy and altogether like some of those European depots, like the Gare St. Lazare in Paris, which look the way train stations should look. Grand Central is airy, clean, shiny and altogether like a bank. This is a railroad station?

When my foe the other day got through with me, however, I had a little more respect for G. C. He started off by pointing out that 61,000,000 passengers pass through the place each year and that 30,000 men and women can find standing room in the station at one time—and then he went on from there, flooding me with amazing figures that I now pass along to you.

The present Grand Central Terminal, which was fashioned in 1913 at a cost of $65 million, is almost completely underground, like an iceberg that is seven-eights below the sea. It is 110 feet deep—or around nine stories—and has two track levels, upper and lower. They contain 67 tracks and over these tracks about 510 trains enter or leave daily. In 1902 there was a train collision in a Grand Central tunnel that cost 17 lives but there hasn't been a really serious wreck since that time.

The legitimate business in the terminal—railroad business—employs about 3,100 men and women, but there are another 3,000 who work in the shops and offices in the building proper. There are around 200 shops and restaurants in the Terminal, and 30 magazine stands. A pride and joy is the famous Oyster Bar, which, I was informed caustically, peddles five million oysters and clams to brave souls each year. I prefer hamburgers.

The main room on the upper level is called the Concourse. It is 108 feet by 185 feet and its staggering sky-blue ceiling is 117 feet in the air, as well as being 25,728 feet square. It is decorated with the constellations of Aquarius, Pisces, Gemini, Musca, Orion, Tarus, Cancer, Aries, Triangulum and Pegasus, in gold, and cost $40,000 when painted by Paul Hellu, a Frenchman. Astronomers would go nuts looking at it. The stars are painted on in reverse.

The focal point of Grand Central Terminal is the upper level information booth, and surmounting this is what is known as the Golden Clock. Actually it's brass and is one of around 80 clocks visible to the public in the terminal. A Swiss named Jake Bachtold, 50 years on the job, takes care of it and also is responsible for about 1,000 more clocks on and along the tracks for about 70 miles outside the station.

Grand Central Terminal was built originally by Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt in 1869 and a statue of the old boy, looking extremely meditative, is situated now outside the windows on the Concourse's south side, facing down lower Park Avenue. The terminal's official address is 89 E. 42nd Street.

There is a police station, with about 40 cops, in the terminal, along with two morgues—one for photos and one for what morgues were meant for—and the word is that two or three persons die per month in the station or on trains entering it. At one end of the Concourse, on a kind of balcony, is a color transparency measuring 18 feet by 60 feet, undoubtedly one of the terminal's show pieces.

Best known of all the inhabitants of Grand Central is Judy, a 9-year-old cat which sits on the newspapers at a stand near the newsreel movie house and occasionally hauls herself down and into the cinema. It was from that movie house that one commuter, possibly a little boiled, came darting out one day with the question "Have we reached 14th Street yet?"

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. Car Tags Go On Sale Soon

Issuance of 1953 automobile tags will be started March 2 at the office of Ernest B. Treat, county tax collector, at the Court House here.

The new tags, with orange numerals on a black background, must be displayed on all automobiles and motorcycles by midnight, March 31, expiration date of the 1952 plates.

New tags for trucks and other commercial vehicles will be issued starting April 1 to replace the present ones which expire at midnight, April 30.

An official of the Motor Vehicles Department said the new tags may be displayed as soon as they are received and that it is not necessary to wait until the expiration dates.

The new plates are divided into three sets of double letters or numbers, separated by hyphens. On automobile tags the letters—any two, from "A" to "J," excepting "I"—are on the left of the two sets of double numbers. The letters are reversed to the right side of commercial vehicle tags.

Rates, which would be raised under a proposal now before the legislature, are now set at $15 for passenger cars weighing 3,700 pounds or less and $23 for those over 3,700 pounds.

It has been proposed that the legislature raise the passenger car rate to $20.

Marine Reservists Are Commended

First Lieutenant Billy C. Menges, 303 Decatur Street, and T/Sgt. Richard K. Jackson, 468 Central Avenue, members of the local Marine Reserve unit, have been awarded certificates of devotion and loyalty to duty in attaining perfect attendance and achievement records in the Organized Marine Corps Reserve.

Lt. Menges' award covered the period from December 5, 1951 to December 5, 1952 while Sgt. Jackson's award covered the period December 10, 1951 to December 10, 1952. Awards are based on perfect drill attendance and two weeks of summer training each year.

Presentation was made by Captain Patsy Algieri, commanding officer of the 6th Special Infantry Company, Marine Corps Reserve. Captain Algieri was the first member of the local unit to receive this award in October, 1952. He had a perfect attendance since the unit was activated in October, 1951.

Local Officials Seen In Magazine

They are Dr. Karl W. Kolb, Health Department dentist, and Miss Grace Hardman, city health nurse.

The view is part of an article, "Your Town Can Be a Champion," and illustrates the way power companies can aid communities to develop healthier people.

The picture, taken by the magazine in 1946 as part of a review of the work of the Health Department, shows Dr. Kolb examining the teeth of Sue Kiser, a student of Gephart School, assisted by Miss Hardman.

Board Gets Draft, Physical Orders

Two induction and physical examination calls for February 4 were received yesterday by Selective Service headquarters here.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator, said orders called for 11 draftees and eight registrants for tests in Board 27, and eight inductees and ten physicals from Board 29.

The group will leave the Union Street County Building at 7 a. m. via Blue Ridge bus.

Mayor To Urge Central File System

Mayor Roy W. Eves yesterday said he will seek a personnel filing center on municipal employes for the Civil Service Commission.

He pointed out files on employes are kept by each of the commissioners and the mayor, and the city clerk, but none are specifically for the Civil Service board.

He said he wishes to incorporate it in the Civil Service bill that is being drawn up for presentation to the Allegany County delegation to the General Assembly.

Celanese Workers Given Watches

Two Celanese Corporation employes, Elmer C. Hovatter of 711 Princeton Street, and Raymond R. Richardson of Cresaptown, were presented gold wrist watches Monday in recognition of 25 years of service at the Amcelle Plant. Both received quarter-century certificates and five-star emblems.

Hovatter has been employed as a machine fixer in the textile engineering department for more than 14 years. Originally, he worked in the weaving department.

A native of Tucker County (W. Va.), he came to Cumberland in 1926. Two daughters are graduates of the Memorial Hospital School of Nursing.

Richardson, a jet driller, is the second member of his family to receive the 25-year award within the past two months. A sister, Mrs. Elizabeth McCusker of the jet drilling department, was honored November 22.

Since 1928, his employment date in drilling, Richardson has never missed a day's work due to furlough. The father of two children, he is a member of Cumberland Aerie 245, FO Eagles, and Cresaptown Methodist Church.

Detective Law Is Cited For Solving Thefts

Detective Leo E. P. Law was commended yesterday by Chief R. Emmett Flynn for "outstanding work in clearing up a number of robberies that have cluttered up our files for some time."

Flynn added that "It is such work as this that makes the thief think twice before committing any depredation in our community." The commendation was placed on Law's service record.

Detective Law was instrumental in solving four thefts and an arson case over the weekend. Two suspects who have signed statements are being held.

Letters To The Editor

Communications to The Cumberland News must contain name and address of the sender. We will withhold both on request.

To the Editor of the News
Sir:

As a member of the Legislature of Maryland, I am appealing to you and through your paper to the people of Maryland to oppose the proposed legislation to license all Chesapeake Bay sport fishermen.

First, it is not a conservation measure; second, it is not a revenue raising measure; third, I am opposed generally to any more taxes. We want to retain something free in this Free State of Maryland—the wonderful and magnificent Chesapeake Bay and its tidewater tributaries.

Sport fishing whether it be from the banks of your front yard, a rowboat or a commercial-party boat should not be taxed. Too much tax is one of the causes of the defeat of the Democratic party in Maryland as well as on a national level. Anyone who favors an increase in taxes or new taxes is not keeping faith with the electorate.

Those who propose to license the bay pleasure-fisherman may have good intentions but the likely results would be detrimental. It would increase the bureaucracy of jobs and law enforcement. Tax collection would take a greater part of the revenue and it would be difficult to collect.

The nuisance and antagonism to the pleasure fisherman by having to buy a license would keep more people out of the Chesapeake Bay country, thereby causing more loss of revenue from purchases than the gain from the fishing tax.

Tax on fishing would retard and neutralize our effort to bring people to the great Free State of Maryland. A large percentage of pleasure fishermen are from out of the state; this applies especially to Southern Maryland and the Eastern Shore. We profit much more from their presence, which is recognized by the fact that all business in tidewater Maryland fares much better during the pleasure-fishing season than any other period.

Youth Jailed For Theft Of Auto

Frederick Calhoun, 18, of 131 Paca Street, was given a 30-day jail sentence Tuesday in Trial Magistrates Court on state motor charges involving the theft of an auto in Ridgeley.

Also found guilty of driving without a license, Calhoun received a 15-day term which will run concurrently with the other sentence. Time spent in jail since his arrest Christmas Day on Pershing Street was deducted.

Magistrate J. Milton Dick gave the youth a suspended sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Car Tags Go On Sale Soon

Issuance of 1953 automobile tags will be started March 2 at the office of Ernest B. Treat, county tax collector, at the Court House here.

The new tags, with orange numerals on a black background, must be displayed on all automobiles and motorcycles by midnight, March 31, expiration date of the 1952 plates.

New tags for trucks and other commercial vehicles will be issued starting April 1 to replace the present ones which expire at midnight, April 30.

An official of the Motor Vehicles Department said the new tags may be displayed as soon as they are received and that it is not necessary to wait until the expiration dates.

The new plates are divided into three sets of double letters or numbers, separated by hyphens. On automobile tags the letters—any two, from "A" to "J," excepting "I"—are on the left of the two sets of double numbers. The letters are reversed to the right side of commercial vehicle tags.

Rates, which would be raised under a proposal now before the legislature, are now set at $15 for passenger cars weighing 3,700 pounds or less and $23 for those over 3,700 pounds.

It has been proposed that the legislature raise the passenger car rate to $20.

Marine Reservists Are Commended

First Lieutenant Billy C. Menges, 303 Decatur Street, and T/Sgt. Richard K. Jackson, 468 Central Avenue, members of the local Marine Reserve unit, have been awarded certificates of devotion and loyalty to duty in attaining perfect attendance and achievement records in the Organized Marine Corps Reserve.

Lt. Menges' award covered the period from December 5, 1951 to December 5, 1952 while Sgt. Jackson's award covered the period December 10, 1951 to December 10, 1952. Awards are based on perfect drill attendance and two weeks of summer training each year.

Presentation was made by Captain Patsy Algieri, commanding officer of the 6th Special Infantry Company, Marine Corps Reserve. Captain Algieri was the first member of the local unit to receive this award in October, 1952. He had a perfect attendance since the unit was activated in October, 1951.

Local Officials Seen In Magazine

They are Dr. Karl W. Kolb, Health Department dentist, and Miss Grace Hardman, city health nurse.

The view is part of an article, "Your Town Can Be a Champion," and illustrates the way power companies can aid communities to develop healthier people.

The picture, taken by the magazine in 1946 as part of a review of the work of the Health Department, shows Dr. Kolb examining the teeth of Sue Kiser, a student of Gephart School, assisted by Miss Hardman.

Board Gets Draft, Physical Orders

Two induction and physical examination calls for February 4 were received yesterday by Selective Service headquarters here.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator, said orders called for 11 draftees and eight registrants for tests in Board 27, and eight inductees and ten physicals from Board 29.

The group will leave the Union Street County Building at 7 a. m. via Blue Ridge bus.

Mayor To Urge Central File System

Mayor Roy W. Eves yesterday said he will seek a personnel filing center on municipal employes for the Civil Service Commission.

He pointed out files on employes are kept by each of the commissioners and the mayor, and the city clerk, but none are specifically for the Civil Service board.

He said he wishes to incorporate it in the Civil Service bill that is being drawn up for presentation to the Allegany County delegation to the General Assembly.

Celanese Workers Given Watches

Two Celanese Corporation employes, Elmer C. Hovatter of 711 Princeton Street, and Raymond R. Richardson of Cresaptown, were presented gold wrist watches Monday in recognition of 25 years of service at the Amcelle Plant. Both received quarter-century certificates and five-star emblems.

Hovatter has been employed as a machine fixer in the textile engineering department for more than 14 years. Originally, he worked in the weaving department.

A native of Tucker County (W. Va.), he came to Cumberland in 1926. Two daughters are graduates of the Memorial Hospital School of Nursing.

Richardson, a jet driller, is the second member of his family to receive the 25-year award within the past two months. A sister, Mrs. Elizabeth McCusker of the jet drilling department, was honored November 22.

Since 1928, his employment date in drilling, Richardson has never missed a day's work due to furlough. The father of two children, he is a member of Cumberland Aerie 245, FO Eagles, and Cresaptown Methodist Church.

Detective Law Is Cited For Solving Thefts

Detective Leo E. P. Law was commended yesterday by Chief R. Emmett Flynn for "outstanding work in clearing up a number of robberies that have cluttered up our files for some time."

Flynn added that "It is such work as this that makes the thief think twice before committing any depredation in our community." The commendation was placed on Law's service record.

Detective Law was instrumental in solving four thefts and an arson case over the weekend. Two suspects who have signed statements are being held.

Letters To The Editor

Communications to The Cumberland News must contain name and address of the sender. We will withhold both on request.

To the Editor of the News
Sir:

As a member of the Legislature of Maryland, I am appealing to you and through your paper to the people of Maryland to oppose the proposed legislation to license all Chesapeake Bay sport fishermen.

First, it is not a conservation measure; second, it is not a revenue raising measure; third, I am opposed generally to any more taxes. We want to retain something free in this Free State of Maryland—the wonderful and magnificent Chesapeake Bay and its tidewater tributaries.

Sport fishing whether it be from the banks of your front yard, a rowboat or a commercial-party boat should not be taxed. Too much tax is one of the causes of the defeat of the Democratic party in Maryland as well as on a national level. Anyone who favors an increase in taxes or new taxes is not keeping faith with the electorate.

Those who propose to license the bay pleasure-fisherman may have good intentions but the likely results would be detrimental. It would increase the bureaucracy of jobs and law enforcement. Tax collection would take a greater part of the revenue and it would be difficult to collect.

The nuisance and antagonism to the pleasure fisherman by having to buy a license would keep more people out of the Chesapeake Bay country, thereby causing more loss of revenue from purchases than the gain from the fishing tax.

Tax on fishing would retard and neutralize our effort to bring people to the great Free State of Maryland. A large percentage of pleasure fishermen are from out of the state; this applies especially to Southern Maryland and the Eastern Shore. We profit much more from their presence, which is recognized by the fact that all business in tidewater Maryland fares much better during the pleasure-fishing season than any other period.

Magistrate J. Milton Dick gave the youth a suspended sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Rabbi Plans Sermon Series

Rabbi Samuel Umen, spiritual director of B'er Chayim Congregation, will begin a series of sermons on Paul of Tarsus tonight.

The sermons will be presented each Friday at 8 p. m. at B'er Chayim Temple, 107 Union Street, for the next five weeks.

Rabbi Umen, who gave a series of sermons on Christ during December, decided to begin the new series after several Jews and Christians who had heard the "Christ" series requested another on Paul.

Subject of tonight's talk will be "The Immediate Followers of Christ after the Crucifixion."

Later subjects include "Paul as a Jew and as Hellenist," "Paul's Understanding of Christ," "Paul's Abrogation of the Law," and "Paul and Jesus Compared."

Plan To

Ordinarily, all local bills are referred right back to the delegates from that county. If they approve it, so does the rest of the assembly. But the bills pile up in the machinery of legislation.

Westernport Plan

Coincident with the arrival of Della's bill also came one from the Allegany County delegation to repeal the charter of Westernport and reenact 28 sections for a new one.

Sen. Della introduced another commission bill to streamline regulatory agencies of the state. The 23 bodies that issue licenses would all come under supervision of the State Employment Commission in administration and clerical duties. Uniform rules for appointments, powers and procedures would be adopted to cover all.

The offices of the bank commissioner would be consolidated with one commissioner.

A call for another study of the state's parole and probation systems also was sounded by Sen. Dippel (D-Balto Third.) He introduced a resolution proposing a study committee composed of five members from the House and Senate.

There were an estimated 30 million students enrolled in United States schools in the 1950-51 school year.

Local Authorities To Extradite Basilio

The State's Attorney's office last night said it will prepare extradition papers and dispatch them to Florida to bring back Ralph D. Basilio, 27, of Columbia Street, who was arrested Monday in Fort Lauderdale on a warrant charging him with sodomy in this county.

Edward J. Ryan, Basilio's attorney here, notified the State's Attorney's Office that the wanted man refuses to return to Allegany County willingly for prosecution and demanded extradition.

Basilio was picked up in Florida after local authorities sent the warrant to that state. A pickup for Basilio was issued by police November 12 after a runaway girl gave a statement implicating him in a morals case. Police said the local man is wanted in connection with cases involving at least three minor girls.

Rabbi Plans Sermon Series

Rabbi Samuel Umen, spiritual director of B'er Chayim Congregation, will begin a series of sermons on Paul of Tarsus tonight.

The sermons will be presented each Friday at 8 p. m. at B'er Chayim Temple, 107 Union Street, for the next five weeks.

Rabbi Umen, who gave a series of sermons on Christ during December, decided to begin the new series after several Jews and Christians who had heard the "Christ" series requested another on Paul.

Subject of tonight's talk will be "The Immediate Followers of Christ after the Crucifixion."

Later subjects include "Paul as a Jew and as Hellenist," "Paul's Understanding of Christ," "Paul's Abrogation of the Law," and "Paul and Jesus Compared."

Ordinarily, all local bills are referred right back to the delegates from that county. If they approve it, so does the rest of the assembly. But the bills pile up in the machinery of legislation.

Westernport Plan

Coincident with the arrival of Della's bill also came one from the Allegany County delegation to repeal the charter of Westernport and reenact 28 sections for a new one.

Sen. Della introduced another commission bill to streamline regulatory agencies of the state. The 23 bodies that issue licenses would all come under supervision of the State Employment Commission in administration and clerical duties. Uniform rules for appointments, powers and procedures would be adopted to cover all.

The offices of the bank commissioner would be consolidated with one commissioner.

A call for another study of the state's parole and probation systems also was sounded by Sen. Dippel (D-Balto Third.) He introduced a resolution proposing a study committee composed of five members from the House and Senate.

There were an estimated 30 million students enrolled in United States schools in the 1950-51 school year.

Local Authorities To Extradite Basilio

The State's Attorney's office last night said it will prepare extradition papers and dispatch them to Florida to bring back Ralph D. Basilio, 27, of Columbia Street, who was arrested Monday in Fort Lauderdale on a warrant charging him with sodomy in this county.

Edward J. Ryan, Basilio's attorney here, notified the State's Attorney's Office that the wanted man refuses to return to Allegany County willingly for prosecution and demanded extradition.

Basilio was picked up in Florida after local authorities sent the warrant to that state. A pickup for Basilio was issued by police November 12 after a runaway girl gave a statement implicating him in a morals case. Police said the local man is wanted in connection with cases involving at least three minor girls.

The program, which was interrupted several weeks ago, will be resumed tonight at 7 o'clock with Mrs. Robert E. Pence and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Often as chaperones.

Pence said enough parents have volunteered as chaperones to assure the program, but that more volunteers will be appreciated.

Veteran Star Route Mail Carrier Retires From Position At Keyser

John Rader, 68, Has Travelled 741,000 Miles

JOHN RADER

KEYSER — John Rader, a 68-year old local man who traveled some 741,000 miles by horse-drawn vehicles and automobiles in delivering mail on star routes in West Virginia, finally has retired after more than 36 years of service, according to Postmaster Thomas Ward.

Rader began his mail career in 1909 by delivering mail between Keyser and Maysville six days a week. On this daily 59-mile round trip he delivered mail to five post offices along the route. He had to change horse-teams at a halfway point in this trip each day.

In 1912, Rader left Keyser and went to Elkins to take another star route operating to Huttonsville. He handled mail for four post offices and made two trips each, traveling a total of 74 miles daily. He held that job six years. Then he transferred to a route from Elkins to Coalton and Mabie. In this post he traveled 34 miles a day and stayed there four years. Then he took another 34-mile haul between Elkins and Belington, serving one year.

Next on his career was a seven-year stretch handling mail between the Elkins post office and the B&O - Western Maryland Union Depot and return.

Back to Keyser came Rader to the Keyser-Maysville star route. He has worked this route the past 15½ years, traveling 59 miles daily, until his retirement with the start of 1953. For one year before returning to Keyser he was baggage man at the Western Maryland depot in Cumberland.

In all his long years as a mail carrier, Rader reports that he never has been seriously ill. He did lose a day or two "once in a great while" because of a bad cold. About six years ago he did have a cataract removed from one of his eyes at the Winchester, Va., hospital and was off work about 12 days during this illness.

Health Movies Show Methods Of Disposal

Public Meeting Held In Lonaconing

LONACONING—Two representatives of the Division of Sanitation Engineering of the State Health Department showed two colored films at a meeting at the Town Hall sponsored by the Mayor and Council Wednesday evening.

The movies were on the storage, collection and disposal of refuse and garbage and the sanitation land-fill type of disposal. This type requires heavy equipment and the initial cost of the equipment is a problem for the smaller communities.

Smaller equipment can be used taking more time in garbage disposal. It was discussed that ravines of this area or coal stripping places might be used for disposing of garbage and the proper covering of two foot of earth poured over it during winter and summer months as necessary.

Both engineers discussed the diseases which are carried by flies and mosquitoes that harbor where garbage is left open, either in garbage cans or on dumps. The movies are of particular interest to the housewife, and these films will be shown again to any organization desiring them.

The Mayor and Council and citizens of the town were present at the public discussion and viewed the colored movies.

Frostburg Asks Bill Prepared For New Charter

$50,000 Bond Issue Will Be Advertised

FROSTBURG—The Mayor and City Council met Monday night and instructed City Attorney Edward Ryan to draw up a new city charter for Frostburg.

The Mayor and Council approved the proposed charter and agreed to have Ryan send it to the Allegany County Delegation of the General Assembly.

Mayor Jesse Jacobs stated the new charter is patterned after the one suggested at a recent meeting of the Maryland Municipal League.

Mayor Jacobs said the new charter does not contain any drastic changes, but brings the old charter up to date. One new provision concerns the floating of bonds for the promotion of industry.

Before any bonds may be sold, however, the plan would have to be voted on by the city residents, Jacobs said. This new plan does not give the Mayor and City Commissioners power to sell the city "short," because they must first hold a referendum on any bond issue, Jacobs pointed out.

The council also instructed Attorney Ryan to draw up the necessary papers to advertise a bond issue for $50,000. Of this amount, $25,000 will be used for water improvements and $25,000 for street improvements.

McCoole Homemakers Discuss Home First Aid

McCOOLE—The answer to roll call by members of the McCoole Homemakers Club at their meeting a recent afternoon, was "Do You have a first aid kit in your home?"

The club is stressing the seriousness of being prepared to meet home emergencies. The meeting was held at th home of Mrs. Harold Bishop on Orchard Street, Keyser.

The club voted a donation of $5 to the McCoole Community Church.

The following matters were discussed: increased costs for Blue Cross and a clothing school to be held in Cumberland soon.

Mrs. Holmes Cessna, county president, discussed matters concerning the homemakers in Allegany County, and gave information concerning the Civil Defense activity in the county.

Each member was given three books on emergency action in life saving work, first aid kits and national blood programs for the year Mrs. Cessna showed samples of bed room slippers and wash clothes that may be made by members, and the club decided to begin a project for the making of the articles to be sold, the receipts for which will be added to the club treasury.

Refreshments were served at the close of the business session to the group, by the hostess, Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. M. E. Dye, co-hostess. Present in addition to Mrs. Cessna were: Mrs. L. H. Shafferman, Mrs. Albert Smouse and Miss Maude Bean, all of Cumberland. Mrs. Bishop's mother was also present. There were 16 members and six visitors.

Spencer individually designed supports. Mrs. K. Kight, 59 Ashfield Street, Piedmont, West Virginia, Phone 28021.

Hyndman Plant Ready To Open

Machinery in the new Hyndman Undergarment Plant has been given a test run after members of the borough's electrical staff completed wiring and installation of lights.

The plant is in the old Hyndman High School industrial arts shops, ready for operation, officials of the Hyndman Industrial Promotion Association noted.

All that remains is the training of the 35 to 60 persons in the operations of the knitting machinery.

The industrial association also reported it is considering a request from the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce for a complete survey of available manpower within a ten-mile radius of the borough.

The survey was recommended at a conference of the association representatives with state officials in Harrisburg.

Pastor Addresses Keyser Rotary Club

KEYSER—Dr. Charles W. Kernan, former pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Moorefield and now pastor of Mizpah Presbyterian Church in Richmond, Va., was guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of Keyser Rotary recently.

The speaker is here this week as the minister speaking at the nightly meetings in observance of Universal Week of Prayer conducted in Grace Methodist Church, under the sponsorship of the Keyser Ministerium. The services are conducted by all of the local churches affiliated with the Ministerium, and all pastors participate.

Dr. Kernan spoke on forming good habits for the new year. One good habit for the year, he said, will pay off in big dividends—better than 10 or 20 resolutions made and broken very easily.

"Citizens of Tomorrow," this week's high school students, who were guests of the club, were George K. Oss and Gorman Mosser Jr. Tom Whelan, Piedmont, was a visiting Rotarian at the luncheon.

Rev. Nair Will Open Series Of Revivals

KEYSER — Rev. Robert Nair, pastor of the Antioch Charge, will open a series of revival meetings at the Mt. Zion Evangelical United Brethren Church, RFD 2, about four miles off Highway Route 46 on Sunday.

He will continue to January 30 except Saturday and Sunday, January 24 and 25, when there will not be any services.

Area Man Fined For Striking Child

KEYSER—Joseph Gank, 54, of the Keyser-Piedmont road area, was fined $10 and costs for assault and battery on an 11-year-old child, and $5 and costs on a drunk charge by Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle Tuesday night, following his arrest by State Police.

He was charged with entering the home of James Lewis, Newton Street, Potomac Heights, Tuesday about 6 p. m., where he is said to have struck Gerald Lewis, aged 11 years, on the head, knocking him to the floor.

James Lewis, a constable for New Creek District, arrived home shortly after the assault and when he attempted to arrest Gank, the latter doubted Lewis' authority to make the arrest, and Lewis called state police.

Health Movies Show Methods Of Disposal

Public Meeting Held In Lonaconing

LONACONING—Two representatives of the Division of Sanitation Engineering of the State Health Department showed two colored films at a meeting at the Town Hall sponsored by the Mayor and Council Wednesday evening.

The movies were on the storage, collection and disposal of refuse and garbage and the sanitation land-fill type of disposal. This type requires heavy equipment and the initial cost of the equipment is a problem for the smaller communities.

Smaller equipment can be used taking more time in garbage disposal. It was discussed that ravines of this area or coal stripping places might be used for disposing of garbage and the proper covering of two foot of earth poured over it during winter and summer months as necessary.

Both engineers discussed the diseases which are carried by flies and mosquitoes that harbor where garbage is left open, either in garbage cans or on dumps. The movies are of particular interest to the housewife, and these films will be shown again to any organization desiring them.

The Mayor and Council and citizens of the town were present at the public discussion and viewed the colored movies.

Frostburg Asks Bill Prepared For New Charter

$50,000 Bond Issue Will Be Advertised

FROSTBURG—The Mayor and City Council met Monday night and instructed City Attorney Edward Ryan to draw up a new city charter for Frostburg.

The Mayor and Council approved the proposed charter and agreed to have Ryan send it to the Allegany County Delegation of the General Assembly.

Mayor Jesse Jacobs stated the new charter is patterned after the one suggested at a recent meeting of the Maryland Municipal League.

Mayor Jacobs said the new charter does not contain any drastic changes, but brings the old charter up to date. One new provision concerns the floating of bonds for the promotion of industry.

Before any bonds may be sold, however, the plan would have to be voted on by the city residents, Jacobs said. This new plan does not give the Mayor and City Commissioners power to sell the city "short," because they must first hold a referendum on any bond issue, Jacobs pointed out.

The council also instructed Attorney Ryan to draw up the necessary papers to advertise a bond issue for $50,000. Of this amount, $25,000 will be used for water improvements and $25,000 for street improvements.

McCoole Homemakers Discuss Home First Aid

McCOOLE—The answer to roll call by members of the McCoole Homemakers Club at their meeting a recent afternoon, was "Do You have a first aid kit in your home?"

The club is stressing the seriousness of being prepared to meet home emergencies. The meeting was held at th home of Mrs. Harold Bishop on Orchard Street, Keyser.

The club voted a donation of $5 to the McCoole Community Church.

The following matters were discussed: increased costs for Blue Cross and a clothing school to be held in Cumberland soon.

Mrs. Holmes Cessna, county president, discussed matters concerning the homemakers in Allegany County, and gave information concerning the Civil Defense activity in the county.

Each member was given three books on emergency action in life saving work, first aid kits and national blood programs for the year Mrs. Cessna showed samples of bed room slippers and wash clothes that may be made by members, and the club decided to begin a project for the making of the articles to be sold, the receipts for which will be added to the club treasury.

Refreshments were served at the close of the business session to the group, by the hostess, Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. M. E. Dye, co-hostess. Present in addition to Mrs. Cessna were: Mrs. L. H. Shafferman, Mrs. Albert Smouse and Miss Maude Bean, all of Cumberland. Mrs. Bishop's mother was also present. There were 16 members and six visitors.

Area Man Fined For Striking Child

KEYSER—Joseph Gank, 54, of the Keyser-Piedmont road area, was fined $10 and costs for assault and battery on an 11-year-old child, and $5 and costs on a drunk charge by Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle Tuesday night, following his arrest by State Police.

He was charged with entering the home of James Lewis, Newton Street, Potomac Heights, Tuesday about 6 p. m., where he is said to have struck Gerald Lewis, aged 11 years, on the head, knocking him to the floor.

James Lewis, a constable for New Creek District, arrived home shortly after the assault and when he attempted to arrest Gank, the latter doubted Lewis' authority to make the arrest, and Lewis called state police.

Hyndman Plant Ready To Open

Machinery in the new Hyndman Undergarment Plant has been given a test run after members of the borough's electrical staff completed wiring and installation of lights.

The plant is in the old Hyndman High School industrial arts shops, ready for operation, officials of the Hyndman Industrial Promotion Association noted.

All that remains is the training of the 35 to 60 persons in the operations of the knitting machinery.

The industrial association also reported it is considering a request from the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce for a complete survey of available manpower within a ten-mile radius of the borough.

The survey was recommended at a conference of the association representatives with state officials in Harrisburg.

Pastor Addresses Keyser Rotary Club

KEYSER—Dr. Charles W. Kernan, former pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Moorefield and now pastor of Mizpah Presbyterian Church in Richmond, Va., was guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of Keyser Rotary recently.

The services are conducted by all of the local churches affiliated with the Ministerium, and all pastors participate.

Dr. Kernan spoke on forming good habits for the new year. One good habit for the year, he said, will pay off in big dividends—better than 10 or 20 resolutions made and broken very easily.

"Citizens of Tomorrow," this week's high school students, who were guests of the club, were George K. Oss and Gorman Mosser Jr. Tom Whelan, Piedmont, was a visiting Rotarian at the luncheon.

Rev. Nair Will Open Series Of Revivals

Local Woman Slightly Hurt As Train Runs Wild In D. C.

A Cumberland woman who was recently married and was on her way to join her husband in Alexandria, Va., was among the 49 persons injured yesterday when a runaway Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train smashed into Union Station at Washington.

She is Mrs. Doris Salesky, 28, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Muscatell, 515 East Oldtown Road. She was in the station when the train rocketed into the structure on its wild run. Mrs. Salesky had only a short time previously alighted from the Ambassador, a B&O Railroad passenger train, with her mother.

Mrs. Salesky said she and her mother were just about to go from the concourse to the main waiting room of the station when she was injured.

She said she noticed people running but at no time did she see the rampaging locomotive or cars of the train. Mrs. Salesky said she "fell through" the broken glass of the door into the main waiting room and suffered a cut on the side of her face and on the hand.

Emergency Hospital in Washington said after she had several stitches taken in cuts she suffered she was released and taken to her new home in Alexandria.

An employe of the Millenson Furniture Store at 317 Virginia Avenue for a number of years, she had been helping the firm complete its year-end inventory prior to joining her husband, to whom she was married November 22 here.

Her husband, Donald Salesky, formerly of Westernport, was an accountant here until recently when he accepted a position as assistant cost accountant with Mel Par, Inc., in Alexandria.

The fifth of five boys tried December 31 in Juvenile Court for stealing 63 cases of beer and other articles has been released to the custody of Rev. Louis Glantz, OFM Cap., pastor of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church.

Magistrate Alban C. Thompson said yesterday the other four teenagers had received suspended sentences and were turned over to Father Glantz, who volunteered his services in aiding the court.

Thompson said the fifth youth to be freed was held for a time in detention quarters at the Allegany County Home.

Scouts Schedule Weekend Camp

Members of Potomac Boy Scout Council will learn winter camping practices this weekend at an outing at Camp Potomac near Oldtown.

The session will open this afternoon and continue through tomorrow afternoon, Willis V. Smith, council executive, said.

A program of winter sports and games will be included and a feature will be a period devoted to the correct searching tactics for lost persons in winter time.

The entire program, Smith said, will be conducted outdoors and the buildings at the camp will be used only in case of necessity. Parents and leaders of Scouts planning to attend are to be sure that the Scouts have plenty of matter for insulation and a waterproof ground cloth on which the Scouts can sleep.

Smith added that the Scouts would be "on their own" as they will sleep in tents and cook outdoors, providing their own menus, food and cooking equipment.

Ross Decker, chairman of the Council camping and activities committee, said that considerable interest has been shown in the winter camp and that representatives are expected from troops in every district.

City Has 557 Lots For Sale At 'Dirt Cheap' Price

The City of Cumberland has lots for sale—557 of them.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum reported that the lots are scattered in various sections of the city and may be bought for as low as $25 each.

Nuzum explained that William V. Keegan, finance commissioner, is conducting an extensive campaign to get these properties back on the tax books.

Keegan has pointed out that in addition to getting tax revenue from them the City of Cumberland could realize $13,925 from the sale.

Most of these are located in additions and have been acquired through sales because of tax delinquencies, Keegan has stated.

Many of them are in the Ridgedale Addition, Nuzum said. In this section, Gephart Drive and Greene Street, are 425 city-owned properties.

Others are located in Dorns Addition, Reinhart and Chaney Addition, Eastern Addition, Gross and Tanzer Addition, on Maryland Avenue, Ford Avenue, Roberts Street.

There are some on Fort Avenue, Roberts Street, Potomac Street, Frank's Lane, Quebec Street, Laing Avenue, Montreal Avenue and Offutt Street.

"The city is a reluctant property owner," Nuzum noted. In addition to losing tax revenue, municipal employes must cut weeds on these, in the summer time and shovel snow off sidewalks in front of them, he said.

When Alaska was under Russian ownership, Sitka was the capital.

Hank May Come Here

Kemp At Des Moines

By C. V. BURNS

JOHNNY MULLANEY was talking the other day about defensive basketball.

He and Art Kamens alternated at center for LaSalle Institute's W. M. I. League championship team that turned in a 12-0 record in 1927 and probably set a flock of defensive records.

"High Pockets" particularly recalled the two contests that LaSalle played with Beall High that season. In the opener at Frostburg, LaSalle won by the score of 16-9 after being held to a single point in the first half. Neither team scored a point in the first period and Beall led at halftime, 3-1. LaSalle held a 10-5 advantage when the third period was concluded. Beall was limited to three field goals in this game.

In the return contest here, LaSalle won 36 to 3. The score was 14-0 at the half. Ducky Kyle's field goal and Joe Timmons' foul late in the game averted a shutout for the Mountain City quint.

Central of Lonaconing was held to three baskets on its home court and beaten by LaSalle, 26-15.

That was the LaSalle outfit that whipped Allegany, 25-4, at the State Armory. The score was 4-0 at the quarter and 9-0 at intermission. And AHS scored only two field goals.

Barton was held to four baskets and defeated 62-13.

These probably are the standout defensive performances in the 33-year history of the W. M. I. League.

And much of the credit belongs to a pair of guards who were really the "iron men" of 26 years ago — Matthew "Jerry" Mullaney, now a well known local attorney, and Joe "Butch" Neubeiser, salesman for Swift and Company. Cletus "Vic" May and Jack Stakem were the regular forwards.

THREE YEARS LATER LaSalle hung up a defensive record in football.

That was achieved in 1930 when Denny Shay's club won eight and tied one and limited its nine opponents to 12 points while scoring 174.

Waynesboro and Windber scored the touchdowns. The game with Waynesboro was a 6-6 tie.

Seven of LaSalle's wins were via the shutout route.

COACH "EBBIE" FINZEL will blow his stack when he reads this.

The Frederick paper credits Frederick High with defeating Beall High of Frostburg in a game staged there on Tuesday night, 52-39. Beall played Allegany here the same evening.

It should have been the Bell Vocational School playing at Frederick because we don't believe the Frostburg school has two teams on the road this season.

THE TOLEDO SHOW on Tuesday night in which Chuck Davey stopped Johnny Williams in seven heats and Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Wiley Ford, W. Va., light-heavy kayoed Cecil Graff of Detroit in three stanzas, attracted 6,281 paying patrons and a gate of $18,407.

CURTIS CROWE predicts the New York Yankees will win the American League pennant by 10 games this year and they'll play the Phillies in the World Series.

Mr. Crowe has it all doped out that Mickey Mantle will hit .425 this season.

JOHN SOMMA of Staten Island, N. Y., advises William V. "Bill" Keegan that he hopes to bring Henry "Hank" Majeski, well known major league third baseman, to Cumberland for the Dapper Dan dinner Sunday, February 1 at the K. of C. Home.

Majeski, who is of Polish ancestry, has played with five different major league teams and Newark of the International League in the last 12 years and at the close of the 1952 season was with the Cleveland Indians.

Hank has played both major leagues being with the Boston Braves, New York Yankees, Philadelphia Athletics, Chicago White Sox and Cleveland. He's a resident of Staten Island.

Somma had hoped to bring Bobby Thomson, Giants' slugger, he is not available. Bobby was recently married and is now on his honeymoon.

KEMP WICKER, the southpaw who pitched for the Cumberland Colts in 1932, is still in organized ball.

He's signed to manage Des Moines in the Western League this year.

We got an assist on the play that brought Wicker to Cumberland 21 years ago.

President Elmer Daily of the Middle Atlantic League called on the phone early one morning to inform the writer that Jeannette, Pa., was dropping out of the league and he

Moorefield, Romney Out To Extend Win Streak In PVC Race

Allegany High School's engagement with Central High School's Tigers at Lonaconing and the Fort Hill-Beall contest in Frostburg head tonight's program in the W. M. I. Basketball League.

The third contest of the evening sends Bruce against Barton on the Braves' court.

Allegany leads the race at the present time with a 2-0 record, having whipped Barton and Beall. Central is hitting .500 with a win over Barton and a loss at the hands of Fort Hill.

Bruce Seeks 8th In Row

Officials for the league contests are Bill Hahn and Joe Stanislawczyk at Lonaconing, Clifton Van Roby and Eddie Diehl at Frostburg and Bob Pence and Fred "Tack" Clark at Barton.

Art Slocum's LaSalle Explorers will be angling for their 7th win tonight when they host Petersburg High School's Vikings on SS. Peter and Paul court at 8 o'clock in the only scholastic tilt billed here. LaSalle has a 6-3 record to date while Coach Jesse Riggleman's outfit has won five and lost three. Catholic Youth Loop First Half Race Ends With Teams Tied 9-1

Coach Bob Mattingly's SS. Peter and Paul basketeers cracked the nine-game winning streak of St. Michael's of Frostburg last night on SS. Peter and Paul court by the score of 24-20 and forced a playoff for the first half championship of the Catholic Youth League.

In handing the Mountain City quint its first loss of the season in the five-club circuit, the locals registered their ninth win in 10 starts, tying up the race on the final day of the first half schedule.

Bolt Sets Pace With Score 66

32 Shoot Under Par In San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 15 (AP)—Tommy Bolt rapped out a six under par 66 today to take the lead at the end of the first 18 holes of the $10,000 San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

Exactly 32 players shot under the par 36-36—72, 6,600-yard layout, playing before a gallery of several thousand under a hot sun.

Bolt put together nine hole scores of 32-34 in what he called "one of my better rounds of golf."

One shot back of the pace setter was Jerry Barber of La Canada, Calif., with 31-36—67.

Tied at 68 were four formidable challengers — Lloyd Mangrum, Jimmy Demaret, Jim Turnesa and Doug Ford.

But Houbregs moved into fourth place with 26.2 by scoring 35 Friday and 49, single-game high for the season in major competition, Saturday. The previous high was Beck's 47 against Duke. Bevo Francis Sets National Scoring Mark

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 15 (AP)—Clarence "Bevo" Francis of tiny Rio Grande College, set a new national collegiate single season basketball scoring record of 1,072 points, as Rio Grande defeated Bliss College, 102-53, here tonight. Francis scored 51 points.

The six-foot, nine-inch Francis, who learned his basketball in a barn near his family home in Hammondsville, O., broke the record of 1,051 points set by five-foot, nine-inch Johnny O'Brien of Seattle University in the 1951-52 season.

Francis is already holder of the national college single game record of 116 points set against Ashland, Ky., College, Jan. 9. He still has 18 games left in which to add to his already phenomenal total.

Seixas Bows To Rosewell

Aussies Reach Finals In Melbourne Tourney

MELBOURNE, Jan. 15 (AP) — Young Ken Rosewall administered a shocking defeat to Vic Seixas of Philadelphia today in the semi-finals of the Australian tennis championships, leaving two Aussies to fight it out for the title and raising hopes the Davis Cup will remain Down Under another year.

Rosewall clipped Seixas, U. S. Davis Cup playing captain 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4. It was the same Rosewall who ousted Seixas from the U. S. Nationals last fall at Forest Hills, N. Y. 3-6, 6-2, 7-5, 5-7, 6-3.

His opponent in Saturday's finals will be lefthander Mervyn Rose, seeded first among Australians. Rosewall was second. Australia's hopes of retaining the Davis Cup next December will rest heavily with this pair.

Rose, after trailing badly against Ian Ayre, won 4-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4.

Some slight solace was seen in the fact that Maureen Connolly of San Diego, U. S. and Wimbledon champion, and Julie Sampson of San Marino, Calif., are cleaning up in their division. They entered the finals in both women's singles and doubles.

Miss Connolly defeated Mary Bawton 6-2, 6-1, while Miss Sampson eliminated Dron Fegarty, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4. In doubles they defeated Dwen Thiele and Helen Angwin, 6-3, 6-3. The meet Miss Hawton and Beryl Penrose in the doubles.

Hank May Come Here

Kemp At Des Moines

By C. V. BURNS

JOHNNY MULLANEY was talking the other day about defensive basketball.

He and Art Kamens alternated at center for LaSalle Institute's W. M. I. League championship team that turned in a 12-0 record in 1927 and probably set a flock of defensive records.

"High Pockets" particularly recalled the two contests that LaSalle played with Beall High that season. In the opener at Frostburg, LaSalle won by the score of 16-9 after being held to a single point in the first half. Neither team scored a point in the first period and Beall led at halftime, 3-1. LaSalle held a 10-5 advantage when the third period was concluded. Beall was limited to three field goals in this game.

In the return contest here, LaSalle won 36 to 3. The score was 14-0 at the half. Ducky Kyle's field goal and Joe Timmons' foul late in the game averted a shutout for the Mountain City quint.

Central of Lonaconing was held to three baskets on its home court and beaten by LaSalle, 26-15.

That was the LaSalle outfit that whipped Allegany, 25-4, at the State Armory. The score was 4-0 at the quarter and 9-0 at intermission. And AHS scored only two field goals.

Barton was held to four baskets and defeated 62-13.

These probably are the standout defensive performances in the 33-year history of the W. M. I. League.

And much of the credit belongs to a pair of guards who were really the "iron men" of 26 years ago — Matthew "Jerry" Mullaney, now a well known local attorney, and Joe "Butch" Neubeiser, salesman for Swift and Company. Cletus "Vic" May and Jack Stakem were the regular forwards.

THREE YEARS LATER LaSalle hung up a defensive record in football.

That was achieved in 1930 when Denny Shay's club won eight and tied one and limited its nine opponents to 12 points while scoring 174.

Waynesboro and Windber scored the touchdowns. The game with Waynesboro was a 6-6 tie.

Seven of LaSalle's wins were via the shutout route.

COACH "EBBIE" FINZEL will blow his stack when he reads this.

The Frederick paper credits Frederick High with defeating Beall High of Frostburg in a game staged there on Tuesday night, 52-39. Beall played Allegany here the same evening.

It should have been the Bell Vocational School playing at Frederick because we don't believe the Frostburg school has two teams on the road this season.

THE TOLEDO SHOW on Tuesday night in which Chuck Davey stopped Johnny Williams in seven heats and Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Wiley Ford, W. Va., light-heavy kayoed Cecil Graff of Detroit in three stanzas, attracted 6,281 paying patrons and a gate of $18,407.

CURTIS CROWE predicts the New York Yankees will win the American League pennant by 10 games this year and they'll play the Phillies in the World Series.

Mr. Crowe has it all doped out that Mickey Mantle will hit .425 this season.

JOHN SOMMA of Staten Island, N. Y., advises William V. "Bill" Keegan that he hopes to bring Henry "Hank" Majeski, well known major league third baseman, to Cumberland for the Dapper Dan dinner Sunday, February 1 at the K. of C. Home.

Majeski, who is of Polish ancestry, has played with five different major league teams and Newark of the International League in the last 12 years and at the close of the 1952 season was with the Cleveland Indians.

Hank has played both major leagues being with the Boston Braves, New York Yankees, Philadelphia Athletics, Chicago White Sox and Cleveland. He's a resident of Staten Island.

Somma had hoped to bring Bobby Thomson, Giants' slugger, he is not available. Bobby was recently married and is now on his honeymoon.

KEMP WICKER, the southpaw who pitched for the Cumberland Colts in 1932, is still in organized ball.

He's signed to manage Des Moines in the Western League this year.

We got an assist on the play that brought Wicker to Cumberland 21 years ago.

President Elmer Daily of the Middle Atlantic League called on the phone early one morning to inform the writer that Jeannette, Pa., was dropping out of the league and he

Moorefield, Romney Out To Extend Win Streak In PVC Race

Allegany High School's engagement with Central High School's Tigers at Lonaconing and the Fort Hill-Beall contest in Frostburg head tonight's program in the W. M. I. Basketball League.

The third contest of the evening sends Bruce against Barton on the Braves' court.

Allegany leads the race at the present time with a 2-0 record, having whipped Barton and Beall. Central is hitting .500 with a win over Barton and a loss at the hands of Fort Hill.

Defeated by AHS, Beall is hopeful of halting Fort Hill in the Mountain City tonight. The Sentinels won over Central and lost to Bruce.

Officials for the league contests are Bill Hahn and Joe Stanislawczyk at Lonaconing, Clifton Van Roby and Eddie Diehl at Frostburg and Bob Pence and Fred "Tack" Clark at Barton.

Art Slocum's LaSalle Explorers will be angling for their 7th win tonight when they host Petersburg High School's Vikings on SS. Peter and Paul court at 8 o'clock in the only scholastic tilt billed here. LaSalle has a 6-3 record to date while Coach Jesse Riggleman's outfit has won five and lost three. The Explorers won the series opener at Petersburg, 49-37.

Catholic Youth Loop First Half Race Ends With Teams Tied 9-1

Coach Bob Mattingly's SS. Peter and Paul basketeers cracked the nine-game winning streak of St. Michael's of Frostburg last night on SS. Peter and Paul court by the score of 24-20 and forced a playoff for the first half championship of the Catholic Youth League.

32 Shoot Under Par In San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 15 (AP)—Tommy Bolt rapped out a six under par 66 today to take the lead at the end of the first 18 holes of the $10,000 San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

Exactly 32 players shot under the par 36-36—72, 6,600-yard layout, playing before a gallery of several thousand under a hot sun.

Bolt put together nine hole scores of 32-34 in what he called "one of my better rounds of golf."

Tied at 68 were four formidable challengers—Lloyd Mangrum, Jimmy Demaret, Jim Turnesa and Doug Ford.

But Houbregs moved into fourth place with 26.2 by scoring 35 Friday and 49, single-game high for the season in major competition, Saturday. The previous high was Beck's 47 against Duke. Bevo Francis Sets National Scoring Mark

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 15 (AP)—Clarence "Bevo" Francis of tiny Rio Grande College, set a new national collegiate single season basketball scoring record of 1,072 points, as Rio Grande defeated Bliss College, 102-53, here tonight. Francis scored 51 points.

The six-foot, nine-inch Francis, who learned his basketball in a barn near his family home in Hammondsville, O., broke the record of 1,051 points set by five-foot, nine-inch Johnny O'Brien of Seattle University in the 1951-52 season.

Francis is already holder of the national college single game record of 116 points set against Ashland, Ky., College, Jan. 9. He still has 18 games left in which to add to his already phenomenal total.

Seixas Bows To Rosewell

Aussies Reach Finals In Melbourne Tourney

MELBOURNE, Jan. 15 (AP)—Young Ken Rosewall administered a shocking defeat to Vic Seixas of Philadelphia today in the semi-finals of the Australian tennis championships, leaving two Aussies to fight it out for the title and raising hopes the Davis Cup will remain Down Under another year.

Rosewall clipped Seixas, U. S. Davis Cup playing captain 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4. It was the same Rosewall who ousted Seixas from the U. S. Nationals last fall at Forest Hills, N. Y. 3-6, 6-2, 7-5, 5-7, 6-3.

His opponent in Saturday's finals will be lefthander Mervyn Rose, seeded first among Australians. Rosewall was second. Australia's hopes of retaining the Davis Cup next December will rest heavily with this pair.

Rose, after trailing badly against Ian Ayre, won 4-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4.

Some slight solace was seen in the fact that Maureen Connolly of San Diego, U. S. and Wimbledon champion, and Julie Sampson of San Marino, Calif., are cleaning up in their division. They entered the finals in both women's singles and doubles.

Miss Connolly defeated Mary Bawton 6-2, 6-1, while Miss Sampson eliminated Dron Fegarty, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4. In doubles they defeated Dwen Thiele and Helen Angwin, 6-3, 6-3. The meet Miss Hawton and Beryl Penrose in the doubles.

Pitt's Win Over Irish Is Eighth In Annual Poll Conducted By AP

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Long shadows were creeping across Hemingway Stadium at Oxford, Miss. in the fourth quarter of a football game between mighty Maryland and Mississippi Nov. 15. The score was tied 14-14, and an excited partisan crowd of some 33,000 hadn't quite yelled itself hoarse.

The Rebels had the ball. Quarterback Jimmy "King" Lear, split T specialist, faded back and pitched a 42-yard pass to End "Bud" Slay. Mississippi, a three touchdown underdog, was on the Maryland four and two plays later Halfback Wilson Dillard slammed over from the three and the ball game.

Mississippi 21, Maryland 14 was the final score. Maryland's Terrapins had lost their first football game since Oct. 4, 1950, and a 21-game victory string was snapped.

Game Gets 189 Points

This was the greatest upset of 1952, the nation's sports writers and sportscasters decided today in the annual year-end Associated Press poll.

College football, in fact, provided the top four upsets of the year, the 156 ballots showed. Of these, 49 listed Maryland's downfall No. 1. With points scored on a 3-2-1 basis, this game received 189 points. Notre Dame's football team was involved in three of the upsets.

Notre Dame's surprising 27-21 victory over Oklahoma, Iowa's 8-0 victory over Ohio State, which knocked the props from under the Buckeyes' Rose Bowl dream, and Notre Dame's 9-0 shellacking of powerful, unbeaten Southern California, were the No. 2, 3 and 4 upsets.

The Notre Dame-Oklahoma outcome barely shaded the Iowa-Ohio State upheaval, 102 points to 95. Both games rated 23 first place votes as the year's biggest upset. Notre Dame over Southern California, the Far West's Rose Bowl representative, got 10 firsts and 51 points.

Vic Seixas Surprises

The fifth big upset of 1952 was the two victories scored by Vic Seixas of Philadelphia over Australia's Frank Sedgman, who had just won the Wimbledon and U. S. Nationals. This received 49 points. Seixas won the Pacific Southwest tourney in Los Angeles 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, then went to Australia and beat Sedgman again in the Victorian Finals 8-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The rise from obscurity of Julius Beros to win both the National Open golf championship at Dallas and the $25,000 first money in the Tam O'Shanter "World Championship" at Chicago was sixth with 43 points.

Horace Ashenfelter, former Penn State runner, was seventh with 24 points for defeating Russia's Vladimir Kazantsev on the last lap of the Olympics 3,000 meters steeplechase at Helsinki in record 8:45.4 time.

Pitt Upset Win 8th

Pittsburgh's 22-19 upset of Notre Dame received 22 points and eighth place; No. 9 with 17 points was the 63-7 drubbing the Pittsburgh Steelers handed the New York Giants in the National Football League.

The No. 10 upset with 15 points was the 64-57 victory for St. John's of Brooklyn over Kentucky's basketball team in the N. C. A. A. regional tourney at Raleigh, N. C. after being trounced by Kentucky early in the season 81-40.

Strickland Signs Pact

CLEVELAND, Jan. 15 (AP)—Shortstop George Strickland today became the seventh Cleveland Indian to sign his 1953 contract.

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (INS) — Nobody is surprised when an athlete in any sport wins a title. They "follow the book" to perfection. Their style is flawless; their every move gracefully perfect.

Offhand, you probably could name hundreds of them like the Sam Crawford of tennis and the Tommy Loughrans of boxing.

But what about the unorthodox brigade? The rugged individualists who do everything wrong according to the book?

You can name any number of these who also became champions despite their own peculiar and even awkward styles.

We were thinking of this the other day when somebody mentioned the fact that Billy Cox, the Dodgers' wonderful third baseman, violates every rule in the infielder's manual. He backs up on grounders, lets the ball play him but he gets away with it because his hands are so sure and his reflexes so fast.

And the woods were full of great hitters who didn't follow the book. You recall, of course, Al Simmons with his foot in the bucket, Heinie Groh facing the pitcher with his bottle bat and even the mighty Babe Ruth with his pigeon-toed stance and his body half turned away from the mound.

Lindy Remigino of Manhattan College surprised the world by winning the 100 at Helsinki last summer, and his style is not one for a youngster to copy.

He runs hunched up with his head hanging away over in front. All wrong, of course, but he gets there just the same. And we recall Abe Kiviat, one of our greatest milers, who not only toed in but ran so much on the outside of his foot that he had to have a special shoe with an extra spike in it!

Joe Fulks of the Philly Warriors, one of the all-time great pros of basketball, is another who scorns the book. Joe rarely is in position for a shot and he gets them off from bad angles but he scores nevertheless.

Years ago we saw Allen Behr, one of our top 10 tennis stars, knock off the world's best now and then while making every shot in his own peculiar unorthodox style. Behr later taught tennis but you may be sure he taught his pupils to do as he said not as he did.

Most hockey players are orthodox but Maurice Richard, star of the Canadiens, plays right wing, although he is a left-hand shot. And the same team had a goalie, Bill Durnam, who used his stick both right and left, the only goalie we ever saw do that.

Sammy Angott, the former lightweight champion, was about the most unorthodox boxer we ever saw, but he got results.

As for golf, well, what is an orthodox golfer? Virtually all of them have their own pet style for making certain shots. You might say they are all unorthodox.

Perhaps Rogers Hornsby had the right idea when he said, "I don't care how a guy hits just so he hits."

Middleweights Paired

Carl Furillo Signs

Spartan Valor Wins $50,000 Florida Race

42-Day Session Ends At Tropical Park

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 15 (AP)—William G. Helis Jr., Spartan Valor, staging a spectacular comeback to the racing wars after a long period of idleness, captured the 12th running of the $50,000 added Tropical Park today, as the 42-day meeting of the Gables Association came to a successful close before 13,916.

Displaying the speed that established him as one of the nation's outstanding handicap performers before going wrong last summer, the plucky 5-year-old son of Attention-Arisbi set all the pace and was never headed in this thrilling mile and a furlong renewal of Tropical's richest race.

Herman B. Delman's How, the only mare in the field of twelve stars, came from last place to finish second, beaten a length and a half by Spartan Valor, while Charfran Stable's Crafty Admiral, the highweight at 128 pounds and betting favorite, was a wilting third in this, his first start of the winter. He was a length and a half back of How, then came Greentree's Big Stretch.

Back of Big Stretch followed Recline, Alerted, Crystal Boot, Topside, a stablemate of Spartan Valor; Oil Capitol, Auditing, Roaring Bull and Gushing Oil. The lone withdrawal from the classy field was Sky Ship, a stablemate of Roaring Bull. Spartan Valor paid $9.00, $5.00 and $3.50. How returned 512 and $5.10, while Crafty Admiral was $2.70 show.

Spartan Valor won 7 of 12 races and $177,900 in 1952, while Crafty Admiral bagged 9 of 16 races and earned $277,225, the biggest money winning thoroughbred of last season. How carried only 106 pounds and was ridden by Logan Batcheller.

Pirates In Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates will report for spring training at Guanabacoa, 20 miles from here, on February 22 and will remain until early April. Their only Florida exhibition game will be played in Jacksonville against the Jacksonville Tars on April 4. While in Cuba they will make their headquarters at the Club Marbello.

Only Kiner Left From '47 Pirates

Ole Miss Victory Over Terps Voted 1952's Greatest Upset

Pitt's Win Over Irish Is Eighth In Annual Poll Conducted By AP

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Long shadows were creeping across Hemingway Stadium at Oxford, Miss. in the fourth quarter of a football game between mighty Maryland and Mississippi Nov. 15. The score was tied 14-14, and an excited partisan crowd of some 33,000 hadn't quite yelled itself hoarse.

The Rebels had the ball. Quarterback Jimmy "King" Lear, split T specialist, faded back and pitched a 42-yard pass to End "Bud" Slay. Mississippi, a three touchdown underdog, was on the Maryland four and two plays later Halfback Wilson Dillard slammed over from the three and the ball game.

Mississippi 21, Maryland 14 was the final score. Maryland's Terrapins had lost their first football game since Oct. 4, 1950, and a 21-game victory string was snapped.

Game Gets 189 Points

This was the greatest upset of 1952, the nation's sports writers and sportscasters decided today in the annual year-end Associated Press poll.

College football, in fact, provided the top four upsets of the year, the 156 ballots showed. Of these, 49 listed Maryland's downfall No. 1. With points scored on a 3-2-1 basis, this game received 189 points. Notre Dame's football team was involved in three of the upsets.

Notre Dame's surprising 27-21 victory over Oklahoma, Iowa's 8-0 victory over Ohio State, which knocked the props from under the Buckeyes' Rose Bowl dream, and Notre Dame's 9-0 shellacking of powerful, unbeaten Southern California, were the No. 2, 3 and 4 upsets.

The Notre Dame-Oklahoma outcome barely shaded the Iowa-Ohio State upheaval, 102 points to 95. Both games rated 23 first place votes as the year's biggest upset. Notre Dame over Southern California, the Far West's Rose Bowl representative, got 10 firsts and 51 points.

Vic Seixas Surprises

The fifth big upset of 1952 was the two victories scored by Vic Seixas of Philadelphia over Australia's Frank Sedgman, who had just won the Wimbledon and U. S. Nationals. This received 49 points. Seixas won the Pacific Southwest tourney in Los Angeles 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, then went to Australia and beat Sedgman again in the Victorian Finals 8-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The rise from obscurity of Julius Beros to win both the National Open golf championship at Dallas and the $25,000 first money in the Tam O'Shanter "World Championship" at Chicago was sixth with 43 points.

Horace Ashenfelter, former Penn State runner, was seventh with 24 points for defeating Russia's Vladimir Kazantsev on the last lap of the Olympics 3,000 meters steeplechase at Helsinki in record 8:45.4 time.

Pitt Upset Win 8th

Pittsburgh's 22-19 upset of Notre Dame received 22 points and eighth place; No. 9 with 17 points was the 63-7 drubbing the Pittsburgh Steelers handed the New York Giants in the National Football League.

The No. 10 upset with 15 points was the 64-57 victory for St. John's of Brooklyn over Kentucky's basketball team in the N. C. A. A. regional tourney at Raleigh, N. C. after being trounced by Kentucky early in the season 81-40.

Strickland Signs Pact

CLEVELAND, Jan. 15 (AP)—Shortstop George Strickland today became the seventh Cleveland Indian to sign his 1953 contract.

Sports Grill

By PAT ROBINSON

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (INS) — Nobody is surprised when an athlete in any sport wins a title. They "follow the book" to perfection. Their style is flawless; their every move gracefully perfect.

Offhand, you probably could name hundreds of them like the Sam Crawford of tennis and the Tommy Loughrans of boxing.

But what about the unorthodox brigade? The rugged individualists who do everything wrong according to the book?

You can name any number of these who also became champions despite their own peculiar and even awkward styles.

We were thinking of this the other day when somebody mentioned the fact that Billy Cox, the Dodgers' wonderful third baseman, violates every rule in the infielder's manual. He backs up on grounders, lets the ball play him but he gets away with it because his hands are so sure and his reflexes so fast.

And the woods were full of great hitters who didn't follow the book. You recall, of course, Al Simmons with his foot in the bucket, Heinie Groh facing the pitcher with his bottle bat and even the mighty Babe Ruth with his pigeon-toed stance and his body half turned away from the mound.

Lindy Remigino of Manhattan College surprised the world by winning the 100 at Helsinki last summer, and his style is not one for a youngster to copy.

He runs hunched up with his head hanging away over in front. All wrong, of course, but he gets there just the same. And we recall Abe Kiviat, one of our greatest milers, who not only toed in but ran so much on the outside of his foot that he had to have a special shoe with an extra spike in it!

Joe Fulks of the Philly Warriors, one of the all-time great pros of basketball, is another who scorns the book. Joe rarely is in position for a shot and he gets them off from bad angles but he scores nevertheless.

Years ago we saw Allen Behr, one of our top 10 tennis stars, knock off the world's best now and then while making every shot in his own peculiar unorthodox style. Behr later taught tennis but you may be sure he taught his pupils to do as he said not as he did.

Most hockey players are orthodox but Maurice Richard, star of the Canadiens, plays right wing, although he is a left-hand shot. And the same team had a goalie, Bill Durnam, who used his stick both right and left, the only goalie we ever saw do that.

Sammy Angott, the former lightweight champion, was about the most unorthodox boxer we ever saw, but he got results.

As for golf, well, what is an orthodox golfer? Virtually all of them have their own pet style for making certain shots. You might say they are all unorthodox.

Perhaps Rogers Hornsby had the right idea when he said, "I don't care how a guy hits just so he hits."

Middleweights Paired

Carl Furillo Signs

42-Day Session Ends At Tropical Park

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 15 (AP)—William G. Helis Jr., Spartan Valor, staging a spectacular comeback to the racing wars after a long period of idleness, captured the 12th running of the $50,000 added Tropical Park today, as the 42-day meeting of the Gables Association came to a successful close before 13,916.

Displaying the speed that established him as one of the nation's outstanding handicap performers before going wrong last summer, the plucky 5-year-old son of Attention-Arisbi set all the pace and was never headed in this thrilling mile and a furlong renewal of Tropical's richest race.

Herman B. Delman's How, the only mare in the field of twelve stars, came from last place to finish second, beaten a length and a half by Spartan Valor, while Charfran Stable's Crafty Admiral, the highweight at 128 pounds and betting favorite, was a wilting third in this, his first start of the winter. He was a length and a half back of How, then came Greentree's Big Stretch.

Back of Big Stretch followed Recline, Alerted, Crystal Boot, Topside, a stablemate of Spartan Valor; Oil Capitol, Auditing, Roaring Bull and Gushing Oil. The lone withdrawal from the classy field was Sky Ship, a stablemate of Roaring Bull. Spartan Valor paid $9.00, $5.00 and $3.50. How returned 512 and $5.10, while Crafty Admiral was $2.70 show.

Spartan Valor won 7 of 12 races and $177,900 in 1952, while Crafty Admiral bagged 9 of 16 races and earned $277,225, the biggest money winning thoroughbred of last season. How carried only 106 pounds and was ridden by Logan Batcheller.

Pirates In Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates will report for spring training at Guanabacoa, 20 miles from here, on February 22 and will remain until early April. Their only Florida exhibition game will be played in Jacksonville against the Jacksonville Tars on April 4. While in Cuba they will make their headquarters at the Club Marbello.

Only Kiner Left From '47 Pirates

PITTSBURGH — No one can say the Pittsburgh Pirates haven't been trying out a good many players as they endeavor to get out of the National League cellar.

Mary McMeekin's Rice and Pork Chop Casserole Helps the Homemaker Take a Kitchen Holiday

Pork chops and tender rice make mighty satisfying good eating! Add some prunes and the "pep" of several spices and a dish with a terrifically powerful "eating punch" is ready for a feast or a family affair.

This sweet and savory oven creation is quick-to-fix, spares the cook and pleases the family, too. All the good flavors of the seasonings, the prunes and the pork chops become "right chummy" during their stay in the oven, and the sooner the family makes the acquaintance of this rice oven dish the better.

INGREDIENTS:

6 pork chops
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 cups cooked rice
¼ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1 cup sweetened cooked prunes, pitted and diced
1½ cups water in which prunes cooked (or use water)

PREPARING THE FLUFFY WHITE RICE: To make 3 liberal cups of fluffy rice, put 1 cup of uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt into a 2 quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover the saucepan with a lid and leave over this low heat for 14 minutes. Do not remove lid nor stir rice while it is cooking. Turn off the heat.

Use exact measurements of uncooked rice and water. Time the cooking accurately.

METHOD: Brown the pork chops in a skillet. Sprinkle with the salt and pepper. Combine rice, ginger, cinnamon, butter or margarine, prunes, water and any drippings from the skillet in which the pork chops were cooked.

Place alternate layers of the rice mixture and the pork chops in a well greased 2-quart baking dish, saving 2 or 3 pork chops for the top of the casserole. Cover the baking dish and bake in a 350° F. oven for 1 hour or until the pork chops are done.

This recipe makes 6 servings.

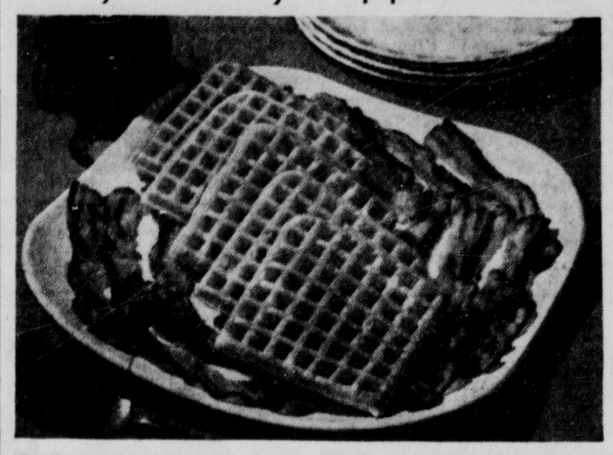
Baby Carrots With Creamy Egg Sauce

2 to 3 bunches baby carrots
4 tablespoons butter
¼ cup diced onions
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Clean carrots and cook in a small amount of boiling, salted water in tightly covered saucepan for 15 minutes, or until tender. Drain and cover to keep hot. Melt butter; add onions and cook over low heat until tender, tbout 5 minutes. Add seasonings and flour and blend. Add milk, and cook over low heat, until sauce boils and thickens, stirring constantly. Add sliced eggs and serve over baby carrots. Serves 6.

Roll sardines in cracker crumbs. Fry and serve on brown bread or toast with lettuce and tartar sauce. Garnish with lemon and radishes.

Corn Meal Waffles Provide Tasty Sunday Supper Treat



Sunday suppers in many homes mean "special eating;" something different from the work-a-day need for meat, potatoes and vegetables.

Waffles provide a welcome change, and when they are made with corn meal, a new taste treat tempts everybody into eating a healthful meal.

Bake them big, or bake them small, according to the type of waffle iron you use, and you will find the entire family asking for more.

Of course, Corn Waffles may be served in combination with many foods, for tasteful corn combines well with meat, fish and fowl. Try them with bacon or ham. Or serve them with the left-over turkey, chicken, goose, or duck, and you will find the family taking a new interest in the remains of those holiday dinners. Corn waffles really are a taste treat.

Corn Waffles

1 cup sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup corn meal
2 eggs, separated
1¼ cups milk
3 tablespoons shortening, melted

(If self-rising flour and corn meal are used, omit baking powder and salt.)

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, and salt. Add corn meal and blend well. Combine well-beaten egg yolks and milk; add to flour mixture, beating until smooth. Add shortening. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in hot waffle iron. Yield: 6 to 8 waffles or 3¾ cups batter. Use 2 cups batter for 1 large Sunbeam waffle.

A shaker of ginger is commonplace in some English bars. It's used to spice porter.

Louis XV believed no woman could be a good cook — until Mme. Du Barry's woman chef prepared him an exquisite dinner.

Try sardines, shredded or whole, on crackers for time-saving snacks. Just take them right out of the can. Instead of crackers, open slices of white or rye bread may be used.

For an easy dessert that looks gay, spoon vanilla tapioca pudding (made from a mix) into individual dessert dishes and top with canned apple slices mixed with chopped maraschino cherries.

Dinner For Drop-In Guests

For guests who breeze in without warning, it's handy to have a few possible main dishes within easy reach on the cupboard shelf. A great variety of canned meats and other main dishes are available which will wait almost indefinitely for emergency occasions.

There's baked ham, chili con carne, Vienna sausages, frankfurters in barbecue sauce and hamburger patties. For rounding out short-notice menus, smart hostesses will want to check their grocer's for other foods which keep well—canned soups and juices, packaged muffin and cake mixes, and glassed pickles and relishes which are wonderful perk-ups for any menu.

When serving an emergency meal, you can turn the simplest food into something special by using your best linens and pouring a party beverage like sparkling beer into tall goblets—or pilsener glasses, if you have them.

These menu suggestions, both built around canned and packaged foods, can be whisked together in a hurry.

NEW ENGLAND DINNER

ROANOKE BUFFET SUPPER

Rice And Turkey A La Creole Is A Budgeteer's Best Friend

Little gobblers and grown-up gobblers too—will do just that, after a glimpse and a sampling bite of this piping hot dish of rice and turkey.

This main dish of tender rice and unused turkey is fast-to-fix and helps Mom perk up tired menus. The other good companions of the rice and turkey are pantry shelf stand-bys and add their "pleasing personalities" in just the perfect proportions to make a creole combination which will become a classic in every recipe file.

INGREDIENTS

2 cups of water (use turkey broth if available)
2½ cups tomatoes (No. 2 can)
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 bay leaf
⅔ cup uncooked rice
2 cups diced cooked turkey

METHOD: Combine all the ingredients in a large saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover and cook over this low heat for 14 minutes. Remove bay leaf. Serve hot.

This recipe makes 8 servings.

Deluxe Macaroni And Cheese

2 cups broken macaroni
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 cups milk
2 cups grated American cheese
½ cup buttered crumbs

Cook macaroni in 2 quarts boiling, salted water until tender, about 10 minutes; drain and pour into a buttered 1½-quart casserole. Meanwhile, melt butter in saucepan over low heat. Blend in flour and heat until bubbly. Add seasonings and milk and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils and thickens. Remove from heat and stir in grated cheese. Pour sauce over macaroni, stirring so that all macaroni is coated with sauce. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for 20 minutes. Serves 6.

Here's He-Man Special -- Short Ribs With Vegetables

SHORT RIBS WITH VEGETABLES—The way to a man's heart is by serving him a dinner of beef short ribs with vegetables. With beef in good supply, you can serve this economical he-man dish often these days.

The old saying, "The sweetest meat is next to the bone" is appropriate when applied to beef short ribs. The tenderness of the meat will match its excellent flavor if the short ribs are cooked slowly by braising.

Plentiful supplies of beef on the market make it possible to serve the following short rib specials often these days.

Braised Short Ribs With Vegetables

2½ to 3 pounds beef short ribs
Salt, pepper, flour, fat
1 medium onion
½ cup celery leaves
2 sprigs parsley
1½ cups hot water or bouillon
6 medium carrots
8 small onions
3 to 4 medium potatoes

Have short ribs cut into individual servings. Remove any excess fat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and roll in flour. In a Dutch oven or other large heavy utensil, melt 2 tablespoons fat and in it brown short ribs thoroughly on all sides. Add sliced onion, celery leaves, parsley and liquid. Cover and simmer over low heat for 2 hours or until meat is nearly tender, adding more liquid as needed. Add vegetables, sprinkle with salt and pepper and continue cooking, covered, for 30 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Remove meat and vegetables to hot platter. Skim most of fat from liquid, dilute to the desired strength and thicken with a smooth flour and water paste. 4 servings.

Sweet-Sour Short Ribs

2½ to 3 pounds short ribs
Salt, pepper, flour, fat
1 cup sliced onions
1 clove garlic
1½ cups hot water
1 small bay leaf
¼ cup vinegar
3 tablespoons brown sugar
⅓ cup catsup

Cut short ribs into individual serving pieces. Remove excess fat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Brown well on all sides in a large skillet in several tablespoons hot fat. Remove to a Dutch oven or heavy pan. Add onions and sliced garlic to fat and cook until yellow. Add to short ribs. Combine remaining ingredients, add ½ teaspoon salt and pour over ribs. Cover tightly and cook slowly until tender, 2½ to 3 hours. Remove ribs to serving plate and keep warm. Pour off fat from gravy, stir in 2 tablespoons flour, blended to a smooth paste with a little water. Cook until thickened and add enough additional water to dilute to strength desired. Serve over hot buttered noodles. 4 servings.

Jellied Turkey Salad With Mayonnaise

You might proudly set out this jellied turkey triumph on a buffet supper table; or count on it as a "conversation piece" for a luncheon party. Once having served it, you will probably be called upon to include it among the family favorites for Sunday night suppers. Whatever the time or occasion, it will be voted wonderful eating. And it's wonderful eating you can achieve with ease and economy, using cold turkey pieces, even the bits.

Cut down in thick wedges or sliced to piquant thinness, the flavor of this salad speaks of turkey, as it should since the jelly is hearty with chunky little turkey pieces. But the real flavor fillup belongs to the jelly itself . . . a jelly made of apple juice! The very apple juice you keep on hand as a beverage! Tart and refreshing, the apple juice gives raciness, verve, to the whole salad. For the holiday season, a star-shaped mold adds festivity . . . but, whether jelled in fancy mold or plain mold, the eating's still a treat.

In serving, be generous wtih the mayonnaise or salad dressing. The bland, delicacy of the dressing is the perfect complement to the spicy savor of the jelly. From the jar of your favorite brand, spoon the mayonnaise or salad dressing in a dish to set beside the salad platter. Serve it generously. You probably will have to refill—so prepare yourself—have a large jar or more than one on hand.

Jellied Turkey Salad With Mayonnaise Or Salad Dressing

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1¾ cup apple juice
¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
*2 cups chopped cooked turkey
1 cup diced celery
¼ cup diced pimiento
Salad greens
Mayonnaise or Salad Dressing

Soften gelatine in cold water. Heat together apple juice, vinegar, sugar and salt; add gelatine, stirring until dissolved. Cool until syrupy; add turkey, celery and pimiento. Pour into 1 quart mold, which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens. Serve with mayonnaise or salad dressing. Yields 6 servings.

* Chicken, veal or ham may be substituted for the turkey.

Fuel Foods For Energy

With many wintry months ahead the "fuel" foods that give us the extra warmth and energy we need are more important than ever. And happily, the inexpensive dried bean, so easy on the budget and so delicious when properly prepared, is high on the list of the good basic protein foods. The navy or pea bean is ever popular, but the lesser known cranberry, yellow eye and kidney bean, all iron and vitamin-rich, can add appetizing variety to a hearty, well-balanced meal.

Bean Soup

1 cup dry Yellow Eye Beans
Butt end of ham
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 qts. boiling water
2 carrots, diced
2 onions, sliced
2 potatoes, sliced
1 teaspoon salt.

Cover beans with cold water and soak overnight. Add other ingredients. Cook slowly until beans are tender. Add more water if necessary. Serve with beans whole, mashed, or rub mixture through a sieve and season, adding hot water if too thick. Serve topped with lemon slices. Serves 8.

Cranberry Bean Casserole

1 cup dry Cranberry Beans
1 lb. pork sausage.
1 can condensed tomato soup
2 tablespoons chopped onion.

Soak beans overnight. Simmer til tender, season with salt and pepper. Drain and reserve liquid. Brown sausage, pour off excess fat. Add beans, tomato soup and onions. Pour into greased baking dish. Add bean liquid to cover. Top with strips of bacon and bake at 425 degrees for 30 minutes. Deviled ham may be substituted for sausage.

Kidney Bean Salad

2 cups dry kidney beans
1 cup diced celery
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 small green pepper, chopped
1 T mayonnaise and 1 T catsup, mixed
1 onion, chopped
3 or 4 cloves
Sprig of Parsley
1 bay leaf
Salt to taste

Soak Kidney beans overnight and then boil with the onion, cloves, parsley, bay leaf and salt until tender. When cooked, strain, let them cool off and bring to a low temperature in the refrigerator. Combine with all other ingredients and mix well.

Noodle Cheese Supreme

4 cups medium fine noodles, uncooked; 2 teaspoons butter, melted; 2 teaspoons onion, chopped fine; 2 cups milk; 2 eggs; 1½ teaspoons salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; 2 tablespoons parsley, chopped; ¼ teaspoon dry mustard; 1½ cups cheese, grated.

Add noodles and two tablespoons of salt to 2 quarts of boiling water. Cook until tender; drain. Cook onions in melted butter. Scald milk in top of double boiler. Beat eggs slightly; add the milk gradually, stirring constantly. Return mixture to top of double boiler. Add salt, pepper, parsley, mustard, cheese, and onion cooked in butter. Stir over slow heat until cheese is melted. Add cooked noodles; heat mixture 10 minutes. Serve at once. Serves 6.

Jellied Turkey Salad With Mayonnaise

You might proudly set out this jellied turkey triumph on a buffet supper table; or count on it as a "conversation piece" for a luncheon party. Once having served it, you will probably be called upon to include it among the family favorites for Sunday night suppers. Whatever the time or occasion, it will be voted wonderful eating. And it's wonderful eating you can achieve with ease and economy, using cold turkey pieces, even the bits.

Cut down in thick wedges or sliced to piquant thinness, the flavor of this salad speaks of turkey, as it should since the jelly is hearty with chunky little turkey pieces. But the real flavor fillup belongs to the jelly itself . . . a jelly made of apple juice! The very apple juice you keep on hand as a beverage! Tart and refreshing, the apple juice gives raciness, verve, to the whole salad. For the holiday season, a star-shaped mold adds festivity . . . but, whether jelled in fancy mold or plain mold, the eating's still a treat.

In serving, be generous wtih the mayonnaise or salad dressing. The bland, delicacy of the dressing is the perfect complement to the spicy savor of the jelly. From the jar of your favorite brand, spoon the mayonnaise or salad dressing in a dish to set beside the salad platter. Serve it generously. You probably will have to refill—so prepare yourself—have a large jar or more than one on hand.

Jellied Turkey Salad With Mayonnaise Or Salad Dressing

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1¾ cup apple juice
¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
*2 cups chopped cooked turkey
1 cup diced celery
¼ cup diced pimiento
Salad greens
Mayonnaise or Salad Dressing

Soften gelatine in cold water. Heat together apple juice, vinegar, sugar and salt; add gelatine, stirring until dissolved. Cool until syrupy; add turkey, celery and pimiento. Pour into 1 quart mold, which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens. Serve with mayonnaise or salad dressing. Yields 6 servings.

* Chicken, veal or ham may be substituted for the turkey.

Fuel Foods For Energy

With many wintry months ahead the "fuel" foods that give us the extra warmth and energy we need are more important than ever. And happily, the inexpensive dried bean, so easy on the budget and so delicious when properly prepared, is high on the list of the good basic protein foods. The navy or pea bean is ever popular, but the lesser known cranberry, yellow eye and kidney bean, all iron and vitamin-rich, can add appetizing variety to a hearty, well-balanced meal.

Bean Soup

1 cup dry Yellow Eye Beans
Butt end of ham
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 qts. boiling water
2 carrots, diced
2 onions, sliced
2 potatoes, sliced
1 teaspoon salt.

Cover beans with cold water and soak overnight. Add other ingredients. Cook slowly until beans are tender. Add more water if necessary. Serve with beans whole, mashed, or rub mixture through a sieve and season, adding hot water if too thick. Serve topped with lemon slices. Serves 8.

Cranberry Bean Casserole

1 cup dry Cranberry Beans
1 lb. pork sausage.
1 can condensed tomato soup
2 tablespoons chopped onion.

Soak beans overnight. Simmer til tender, season with salt and pepper. Drain and reserve liquid. Brown sausage, pour off excess fat. Add beans, tomato soup and onions. Pour into greased baking dish. Add bean liquid to cover. Top with strips of bacon and bake at 425 degrees for 30 minutes. Deviled ham may be substituted for sausage.

Kidney Bean Salad

2 cups dry kidney beans
1 cup diced celery
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 small green pepper, chopped
1 T mayonnaise and 1 T catsup, mixed
1 onion, chopped
3 or 4 cloves
Sprig of Parsley
1 bay leaf
Salt to taste

Soak Kidney beans overnight and then boil with the onion, cloves, parsley, bay leaf and salt until tender. When cooked, strain, let them cool off and bring to a low temperature in the refrigerator. Combine with all other ingredients and mix well.

Noodle Cheese Supreme

4 cups medium fine noodles, uncooked; 2 teaspoons butter, melted; 2 teaspoons onion, chopped fine; 2 cups milk; 2 eggs; 1½ teaspoons salt; ⅛ teaspoon pepper; 2 tablespoons parsley, chopped; ¼ teaspoon dry mustard; 1½ cups cheese, grated.

Add noodles and two tablespoons of salt to 2 quarts of boiling water. Cook until tender; drain. Cook onions in melted butter. Scald milk in top of double boiler. Beat eggs slightly; add the milk gradually, stirring constantly. Return mixture to top of double boiler. Add salt, pepper, parsley, mustard, cheese, and onion cooked in butter. Stir over slow heat until cheese is melted. Add cooked noodles; heat mixture 10 minutes. Serve at once. Serves 6.

Flavor Galore Plus Looks In Butterscotch Rice Mold

A prize winner for beauty and dazzling taste — this molded rice desert is rich with butterscotch flavor and generous with goodness worth singing about. The rice mold is surrounded by a cloud of whipped cream which is sprinkled with brilliant red cherries.

A really easy dessert—to make—on the market money—on the eye—this Butterscotch Rice Mold puts meals in the company class. Make a grand entrance when you bring this delicious rice dessert to the table. Serve it with a flourish and enjoy the compliments which will fly your way.

Ingredients

- ¾ cup uncooked rice
- 4 cups milk
- 2 cups dark brown sugar, well packed
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ pint whipping cream
- 2 tablespoons beet or cane sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup chopped maraschino cherries

Method: Mix the rice and milk in a 2-quart saucepan and bring to a boil. Immediately turn the heat as low as possible, cover the saucepan, and leave over this low heat for 1 hour or until the rice has absorbed the milk. Stir several times during the cooking.

Cook the sugar, salt and margarine, stirring constantly, until syrupy. Add the vanilla. Stir this mixture into the cooked rice. Chill before serving. To serve, whip the cream, fold in the sugar and vanilla and serve with the Butterscotch Dessert. Sprinkle the cherries over the whipped cream.

For a dessert masterpiece, press the warm rice into a well greased dessert mold. Chill until firm. Whip the cream and fold in the sugar and vanilla. Unmold the rice by dipping mold into hot water, placing a plate over the mold and inverting plate and mold together. (If the mold has been well greased, it may be posible to shake the dessert loose without heating the mold.)

Arrange the whipped cream on the plate around the molded dessert. Sprinkle the cherries over the whipped cream.

Ames Laboratory Seeks To Remove Mysteries From Supersonic Flight

By CHARLES J. THOBABEN
Central Press Staff Writer

MOFFETT FIELD, Calif.—The jet and rocket planes of today and tomorrow are not products only of the drawing board and the production line.

They are even more the products of the laboratory, the wind tunnel and the best scientific brains that can be procured.

Proof of this lies in a place like the Ames Aeronautical laboratory of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics at Moffett field.

One of three NACA research centers, Ames brings to bear all the knowledge and research tools that science can devise to meet, wrestle with and solve the problems and mysteries of aerodynamics encountered at transonic and supersonic speeds.

In co-ordination with the laboratory work, the Ames staff also flies research aircraft at Edwards Air Force base in southern California. These include such planes of tomorrow as the Douglas Skyrocket, known to have flown at a speed of nearly 1,300 miles an hour, and the Bell X-5, on which the angle of the wings can be changed in flight from 20 to 60 degrees.

Flight in the supersonic range has enormously complicated the problem of designing the aircraft that can operate at such speeds, remain under control of the pilot, accomplish a mission and land safely.

To give a rough idea of what the sceientists and engineers are up against, here are just a few of the problems being worked on at Ames:

Design of lifting surfaces capable of high speed flight that still provide enough lift at low speeds for safe landing; perfection of automatic control and stabilization devices, needed because supersonic speeds do not permit a pilot time to operate the controls himself; control of boundary layer air, which affects both heating of the surface and efficiency of lift; development of propellors for turboprop engines.

One of the toughest problems confronting the researchers is that of heat. They have found that the temperature of the boundary layer of air rises about 600 degrees at three times the speed of sound and 1,600 degrees at five times the speed of sound. To show what this could do to the structure, not to mention the pilot, aluminum alloys lose most of their strength at 600 degrees and even steel would be dangerously weakened at 1,600.

The problem becomes apparent even at lower speeds. At Mach 1.5 (approximately one and a half times the speed of sound), heat becomes so great that an aircraft needs refrigerating equipment to cool the pilot equivalent to the capacity of the cooling plant of a theater seating 4,000 persons.

Experiments have shown that the problem of skin friction and heat transfer has two very different aspects, one involving the laminar, or smooth flowing, boundary layer and the other the turbulent layer found on the aft surfaces of a plane.

The theories about the laminar portion have been shown by experimentation to be accurate but it is an entirely different matter where the turbulent area is involved. Little is known about the nature of this flow with the result that theories concerning skin friction and heat transfer vary widely.

The NACA's research in this field presently is aimed at proving one of the theories is right or evolving a new one. Past performances give assurance that eventually they will come up with the right answers and the United States will be a step closer to getting practical supersonic aircraft.

Long Puts All City Parking In Same Class

Parking and traffic problems in downtown Cumberland were discussed at an informal session of the Mayor and Council Monday morning in Mayor Roy W. Eve's office.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long had requested the meeting Monday as a follow-up to the complaint registered by Miss Margaret H. Neumann, State Health Department nurse, after she had been fined in Police Court on an illegal parking count.

Commissioner Long stated that city, county and state employes are no more entitled to parking privileges than are lawyers, businessmen, doctors, office workers, store clerks and others employed in the downtown section. He and the other members of Council did concur in the need for parking space for emergency vehicles of city, county and state employes.

Not For Parking

In answer to blasts by Miss Neumann and Robert J. Burkey, North Centre Street grocer, against tagging practices of the local Police Department, Commissioner Long stated city streets are not parking lots and that the job of the Police Department is to keep traffic moving safely.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public buildings, suggested the city, county and state units requiring parking space in the City Hall Plaza draw up a list of the vehicles which are required to stop there each day and that Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, draw up a plat of the parking spaces which could be made available.

Commissioner Long said he had been informed by Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, that the city could legally set up a parking space for city-owned vehicles.

Nuzum's plat will also include parking space on the Bedford Street side of the City Hall, any space available in the rear and inside of the Public Safety Building and also on the west side of the building in the alley leading to the Police Department garage.

Other Problems

Among other problems discussed was parking on the West Side and it was suggested that Nuzum also make an estimate of the cost of black-topping the area in the rear of the Girl Scout House on Greene Street so as to make this space available for parking.

Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan said that the greatest need is to accommodate eight-hour parkers—those who find it necessary to drive to work and leave their vehicles as close to their work as possible.

In his statement, Commissioner Long declared the police do not make the city ordinances but only endeavor to enforce them fairly, impartially and with common sense. Any complaints about ordinances should be brought to the Mayor and Council for consideration, he added.

Long also said:

Red lines are universally "no parking" areas.

Lot Owner Complains

The operator of Roeder's parking lot located on George Street (within one or two blocks of the central business section) continues to complain that cars park on red lines on George Street and refuse to use their facilities.

Merchants located in the business section have a responsibility too in finding parking space for their customers. (Millenson's Furniture Company, Keech's Drugstores, Second National Bank and others have already acquired land for customer parking.)

In the City Hall and Public Safety Building area, parking spaces should be kept open for emergency cars of the Water, Street, Health, Police, Fire and other City Departments.

The placement of red and yellow lines, parking meters, no parking signs are placed by the Chief of Police who directs traffic in the Police Department.

Board Delays Firemen's Request For Funds

A delegation from the Allegany County Volunteer Firemen's Association was left up in the air by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners recently on their request for increases in appropriations.

The main point at issue is a 1.6-cent tax increase on each $100 of assessable property in the county to pay for this request.

The firemen's delegation presented their case for a raise in money and the county commissioners stated they would at a later date give their official opinion of the request.

Up To Association

William H. Lemmert, president of the county commissioners, told William A. Wilson, of Midland, one of the delegation, the board has agreed not to sponsor any legislation, but it was up to the association.

Wilson then asked Lemmert: "If the commissioners approve the idea, you will not block it when it is presented to the legislature. If you don't approve the plan, you will block it at Annapolis.

Lemmert answered: "That is correct."

With that the firemen's delegation left the meeting.

On Tuesday, the association had the delegation comprised of Wilson, Cromwell C. Zembower, of LaVale, Joseph Stuckey of Corriganville, and Nelson W. Russler of Cumberland present its plan to the commissioners.

Asked For Figures

The board then asked the delegation to return with figures. Yesterday the firemen presented a sample financial statement together with a resolution that would set the plan in action.

The statement showed the county gives the 22 volunteer fire companies $15,675 annually. It showed that the 1.6 cents per $100 on the assessable basis of last year, $133,500,000, would result in an increase of $5,685. This would boost the total appropriations to $21,360.

The fire units are paid as follows:

$1,275 to Frostburg; $1,075 to Good Will Department of Lonaconing; $950 to Potomac Company of Westernport, $775 each to Mt. Savage, Midland, Barton, Luke, LaVale and Cresaptown.

Bowman's Addition, Clarysville, Flintstone, District 16, Bedford Road, Ellerslie, Bowling Green, Bordon Shaft, McCoole and Corriganville get $675 each while Chapel Hill and Cumberland Hose Company each get $150.

Fire Loss Down

The delegation also presented statistics from the State Insurance Department showing Allegany County including Cumberland had total fire loss in 1951 of $77,052 as compared to $90,000 in 1950. In the same two years, Washington County's total fire loss rose from $108,000 in 1950 to $372,000.

The delegation noted price increases in equipment since January 1950 when the last $100 increase was given the firemen by the county board.

Hose has gone up 12 per cent; boots, 15 per cent; extinguishers, 10 to 15 per cent; brass goods, 20 to 30 per cent; gas masks, 12 per cent; coats, 15 per cent; hand lights, 12 to 20 per cent; fire apparatus, 50 per cent, and portable pumps, 15 per cent.

The delegation's proposal called for the commissioners to levy the 1.6 cents per $100 for the benefit of the fire companies.

This money will be used solely for the purchase, repair, or maintainance of equipment, or for the repair, maintenance or upkeep of buildings.

Woman Indicted For False Pretenses

An indictment charging Goldie Nazelrod, this city, with obtaining $490.50 from the Allegany County Welfare Board under false pretenses was placed on the open docket in Circuit Court here this week.

The woman is accused of obtaining the nearly $500, to which she allegedly was not entitled, between October 10, 1951, and March 10, 1952.

How To Tell A Thoroughbred

When I was a boy, there was a theory prevalent in our town that you could tell a thoroughbred dog by picking him up by the tail. If he hollered and yelped, he was a mutt, but, if he took it without a whimper, he was okay. Of course, there were some hazards in this test. We had a bull terrier which had been raised to fight in pits, and, if a stranger tried the experiment, he was liable to eat the man's arm off up to his elbow.

John Wheeler

One of the favorite Christmas gifts, especially for families living in city flats, is a puppy that is not house broken. I don't recommend that the receivers of these sentimental presents go around hoisting them by their tails to see whether they are the 24-carat real things. Naturally, if you got a saddle horse or a pony in your stocking, don't use this yardstick to determine its breeding. And the same goes for a new bride or a baby.

Continuing the theme, there is a disagreeable disease called shingles which takes the form of great red boltches that follow a nerve, usually around the victim's middle. Once it was believed, if this abdominal decoration met, the wearer of the radiant wreath would croak. I asked a doctor about it.

"Nothing to it," he answered firmly. "They say if you pick a guinea pig up by the tail, he dies, but he hasn't any handle there. The same is true of shingles which follow a nerve that never meets end to end."

Once there was a young lady, a friend of mine, who got a job on the New York Evening Journal, doing feature stories and, of course, she was very anxious to make good. She asked me how she could attract a lot of mail.

"Write a piece," I suggested, "saying that dogs are a nuisance in New York and ought to be barred by law. They dirty up the streets and are unsanitary, spreading bacteria in apartments. It isn't fair either to the canines or their owners."

She took my advice and went to town. The response was overwhelming and indignant. The postman staggered in with letters addressed to both the editor and her. Some demanded that she be fired forthwith for abusing "man's best friend." Others assured her that if she ever came near the neighborhood, their dogs would bite her to bits. She had to put on dark glasses for a few days as a disguise to get to the office. Eventually, the boss gave in and discharged her.

Feeling sorry and fully responsible, I hired her as the Hollywood reporter for the North American Newspaper Alliance, where she has been ever since. Her name is Sheilah Graham, and she does a fine job. Now she writes about Hollywood hams instead of mutts.

An editor of a big paper in a Middle Western city was asking me the other day about starting a Sunday edition. Of course, the problem in a new publishing enterprise is to get circulation.

"I'll give you a tip," I said in reply. "Run some kind of a contest and offer pedigreed dogs for prizes. Any time a newspaper prints a little story about a stray puppy looking for a home, there is a big response from readers offering him the hospitality of their houses—in fact more people seem to want a dog than an orphan.

"Look back in the old Liberty magazine files for a contest we used when I worked there. There were 50 prizes, and the winners could select their favorite breeds. We jumbled up parts of dogs of all kinds, and the idea was to paste them together correctly.

"Only don't do it in the summertime. We arranged with a kennel to ship the animals and unfortunately there was a terrific hot spell. As a result a lot of the poor puppies arrived dead. We got protests, by mail, wire and courier. As soon as the weather cooled off we made good with duplicates. Put it in your book. A dog means circulation. Nearly everybody is sentimental about them."

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (INS)—I'm back again in the big town which never fails to thrill me! But, I'll just have a day or so, actually until Sunday night, to enjoy the panorama from my Waldorf Towers apartment. Sunday I'm off for Washington, D. C. — and the inauguration.

But, New York, I'll be back to renew our love affair!

The first gossip to reach my ears is exciting. I hear that both Jose Ferrer and Sir Ralph Richardson are up for the role of the Reverend Davidson in "Miss Sadie Thompson" with Rita Hayworth.

This is the musical version of "Rain" but I doubt if either Jose or Sir Ralph will be expected to warble.

You'd think they were guarding a new development of the atom bomb in the secrecy with which Warners are putting their own newly perfected formula for third dimension before the cameras.

I feel as though I were peeking in the top drawer secrets in telling you that their initial venture in third dimension is "Mystery at the Wax Works" with Vincent Price starred.

Yep, if you are an old timer, "Mystery at the Wax Works" is the same chiller which scared the wits out of audiences as far back as the nickelodeon days.

Marguerite Padula, who entertains at Charley Foy's, and who admits to 63, and Jerry Lipman, who admits to 23, called off their engagement. But Maggie says she wants me to know she's the one who called off the marriage.

"He's too young and too unimportant," sniffed Maggie. Well, Maggie, it's smart to call it off in time.

Charley Foy says he'd hate to be hanging the 20 years since she was 63. If she is older than 63 my hat's off to her—she doesn't look it or act it.

Efforts of their friends to get Teresa Wright and Niven Busch back together seem doomed to failure, I'm sorry to say.

I hear Niven is willing and eager to get his wife and children back and that he's carrying a great, big torch.

If Teresa is, too, she's using it to burn her bridges behind her. Without waiting to sell their former home in San Fernando Valley, she's moved into an apartment in Beverly Hills for two reasons.

Teresa wants to get away from the memories of the past and the apartment is closer to MGM where she's making a picture with Spencer Tracy.

Lana Turner and Lex Barker leave for a week of skiing in Aspen, Colorado, when she finishes "Latin Lovers."

Lana's ex, Bob Topping and his bride are on a ski honeymoon in Sun Valley.

That sweet guy, Joe Pasternak, gave Dorothy an ermine bolero with a jeweled neckline for their eleventh anniversary.

Congratulations to Coy and Bob Hunter (Pappy is a sports writer on the Los Angeles Examiner) on the birth of their second son named Billy Ray.

Jane Powell celebrates her birthday April 1 breaking ground for the new 21-unit apartment house she and Geary Steffen are building in North Hollywood. These young people are very smart with their money. They already own an 18-unit dwelling.

Now it's Fred Astaire, Jr., who wants to get in the act. He'll beat the drums on a recording with his old man tap dancing.

Of all things — Mrs. Lew Landers didn't discover until she arrived in New York that the vitamin pills she'd been taking across country were the ones the veterinarian had prescribed for her bull dog!

Joan Crawford is in Palm Springs, Calif., resting up for her almost certain nomination for "Sudden Fear."

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

When I was a boy, there was a theory prevalent in our town that you could tell a thoroughbred dog by picking him up by the tail. If he hollered and yelped, he was a mutt, but, if he took it without a whimper, he was okay. Of course, there were some hazards in this test. We had a bull terrier which had been raised to fight in pits, and, if a stranger tried the experiment, he was liable to eat the man's arm off up to his elbow.

John Wheeler

One of the favorite Christmas gifts, especially for families living in city flats, is a puppy that is not house broken. I don't recommend that the receivers of these sentimental presents go around hoisting them by their tails to see whether they are the 24-carat real things. Naturally, if you got a saddle horse or a pony in your stocking, don't use this yardstick to determine its breeding. And the same goes for a new bride or a baby.

Continuing the theme, there is a disagreeable disease called shingles which takes the form of great red boltches that follow a nerve, usually around the victim's middle. Once it was believed, if this abdominal decoration met, the wearer of the radiant wreath would croak. I asked a doctor about it.

"Nothing to it," he answered firmly. "They say if you pick a guinea pig up by the tail, he dies, but he hasn't any handle there. The same is true of shingles which follow a nerve that never meets end to end."

Once there was a young lady, a friend of mine, who got a job on the New York Evening Journal, doing feature stories and, of course, she was very anxious to make good. She asked me how she could attract a lot of mail.

"Write a piece," I suggested, "saying that dogs are a nuisance in New York and ought to be barred by law. They dirty up the streets and are unsanitary, spreading bacteria in apartments. It isn't fair either to the canines or their owners."

She took my advice and went to town. The response was overwhelming and indignant. The postman staggered in with letters addressed to both the editor and her. Some demanded that she be fired forthwith for abusing "man's best friend." Others assured her that if she ever came near the neighborhood, their dogs would bite her to bits. She had to put on dark glasses for a few days as a disguise to get to the office. Eventually, the boss gave in and discharged her.

Feeling sorry and fully responsible, I hired her as the Hollywood reporter for the North American Newspaper Alliance, where she has been ever since. Her name is Sheilah Graham, and she does a fine job. Now she writes about Hollywood hams instead of mutts.

An editor of a big paper in a Middle Western city was asking me the other day about starting a Sunday edition. Of course, the problem in a new publishing enterprise is to get circulation.

"I'll give you a tip," I said in reply. "Run some kind of a contest and offer pedigreed dogs for prizes. Any time a newspaper prints a little story about a stray puppy looking for a home, there is a big response from readers offering him the hospitality of their houses—in fact more people seem to want a dog than an orphan.

"Look back in the old Liberty magazine files for a contest we used when I worked there. There were 50 prizes, and the winners could select their favorite breeds. We jumbled up parts of dogs of all kinds, and the idea was to paste them together correctly.

"Only don't do it in the summertime. We arranged with a kennel to ship the animals and unfortunately there was a terrific hot spell. As a result a lot of the poor puppies arrived dead. We got protests, by mail, wire and courier. As soon as the weather cooled off we made good with duplicates. Put it in your book. A dog means circulation. Nearly everybody is sentimental about them."

Long Puts All City Parking In Same Class

Parking and traffic problems in downtown Cumberland were discussed at an informal session of the Mayor and Council Monday morning in Mayor Roy W. Eve's office.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long had requested the meeting Monday as a follow-up to the complaint registered by Miss Margaret H. Neumann, State Health Department nurse, after she had been fined in Police Court on an illegal parking count.

Commissioner Long stated that city, county and state employes are no more entitled to parking privileges than are lawyers, businessmen, doctors, office workers, store clerks and others employed in the downtown section. He and the other members of Council did concur in the need for parking space for emergency vehicles of city, county and state employes.

Not For Parking

In answer to blasts by Miss Neumann and Robert J. Burkey, North Centre Street grocer, against tagging practices of the local Police Department, Commissioner Long stated city streets are not parking lots and that the job of the Police Department is to keep traffic moving safely.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public buildings, suggested the city, county and state units requiring parking space in the City Hall Plaza draw up a list of the vehicles which are required to stop there each day and that Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, draw up a plat of the parking spaces which could be made available.

Commissioner Long said he had been informed by Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, that the city could legally set up a parking space for city-owned vehicles.

Nuzum's plat will also include parking space on the Bedford Street side of the City Hall, any space available in the rear and inside of the Public Safety Building and also on the west side of the building in the alley leading to the Police Department garage.

Other Problems

Among other problems discussed was parking on the West Side and it was suggested that Nuzum also make an estimate of the cost of black-topping the area in the rear of the Girl Scout House on Greene Street so as to make this space available for parking.

Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan said that the greatest need is to accommodate eight-hour parkers—those who find it necessary to drive to work and leave their vehicles as close to their work as possible.

In his statement, Commissioner Long declared the police do not make the city ordinances but only endeavor to enforce them fairly, impartially and with common sense. Any complaints about ordinances should be brought to the Mayor and Council for consideration, he added.

Long also said:

Red lines are universally "no parking" areas.

Lot Owner Complains

The operator of Roeder's parking lot located on George Street (within one or two blocks of the central business section) continues to complain that cars park on red lines on George Street and refuse to use their facilities.

Merchants located in the business section have a responsibility too in finding parking space for their customers. (Millenson's Furniture Company, Keech's Drugstores, Second National Bank and others have already acquired land for customer parking.)

In the City Hall and Public Safety Building area, parking spaces should be kept open for emergency cars of the Water, Street, Health, Police, Fire and other City Departments.

The placement of red and yellow lines, parking meters, no parking signs are placed by the Chief of Police who directs traffic in the Police Department.

Board Delays Firemen's Request For Funds

A delegation from the Allegany County Volunteer Firemen's Association was left up in the air by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners recently on their request for increases in appropriations.

The main point at issue is a 1.6-cent tax increase on each $100 of assessable property in the county to pay for this request.

The firemen's delegation presented their case for a raise in money and the county commissioners stated they would at a later date give their official opinion of the request.

Up To Association

William H. Lemmert, president of the county commissioners, told William A. Wilson, of Midland, one of the delegation, the board has agreed not to sponsor any legislation, but it was up to the association.

Wilson then asked Lemmert: "If the commissioners approve the idea, you will not block it when it is presented to the legislature. If you don't approve the plan, you will block it at Annapolis.

Lemmert answered: "That is correct."

With that the firemen's delegation left the meeting.

On Tuesday, the association had the delegation comprised of Wilson, Cromwell C. Zembower, of LaVale, Joseph Stuckey of Corriganville, and Nelson W. Russler of Cumberland present its plan to the commissioners.

Asked For Figures

The board then asked the delegation to return with figures. Yesterday the firemen presented a sample financial statement together with a resolution that would set the plan in action.

The statement showed the county gives the 22 volunteer fire companies $15,675 annually. It showed that the 1.6 cents per $100 on the assessable basis of last year, $133,500,000, would result in an increase of $5,685. This would boost the total appropriations to $21,360.

The fire units are paid as follows:

$1,275 to Frostburg; $1,075 to Good Will Department of Lonaconing; $950 to Potomac Company of Westernport, $775 each to Mt. Savage, Midland, Barton, Luke, LaVale and Cresaptown.

Bowman's Addition, Clarysville, Flintstone, District 16, Bedford Road, Ellerslie, Bowling Green, Bordon Shaft, McCoole and Corriganville get $675 each while Chapel Hill and Cumberland Hose Company each get $150.

Fire Loss Down

The delegation also presented statistics from the State Insurance Department showing Allegany County including Cumberland had total fire loss in 1951 of $77,052 as compared to $90,000 in 1950. In the same two years, Washington County's total fire loss rose from $108,000 in 1950 to $372,000.

The delegation noted price increases in equipment since January 1950 when the last $100 increase was given the firemen by the county board.

Hose has gone up 12 per cent; boots, 15 per cent; extinguishers, 10 to 15 per cent; brass goods, 20 to 30 per cent; gas masks, 12 per cent; coats, 15 per cent; hand lights, 12 to 20 per cent; fire apparatus, 50 per cent, and portable pumps, 15 per cent.

The delegation's proposal called for the commissioners to levy the 1.6 cents per $100 for the benefit of the fire companies.

This money will be used solely for the purchase, repair, or maintainance of equipment, or for the repair, maintenance or upkeep of buildings.

Woman Indicted For False Pretenses

An indictment charging Goldie Nazelrod, this city, with obtaining $490.50 from the Allegany County Welfare Board under false pretenses was placed on the open docket in Circuit Court here this week.

The woman is accused of obtaining the nearly $500, to which she allegedly was not entitled, between October 10, 1951, and March 10, 1952.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (INS)—I'm back again in the big town which never fails to thrill me! But, I'll just have a day or so, actually until Sunday night, to enjoy the panorama from my Waldorf Towers apartment. Sunday I'm off for Washington, D. C. — and the inauguration.

But, New York, I'll be back to renew our love affair!

The first gossip to reach my ears is exciting. I hear that both Jose Ferrer and Sir Ralph Richardson are up for the role of the Reverend Davidson in "Miss Sadie Thompson" with Rita Hayworth.

This is the musical version of "Rain" but I doubt if either Jose or Sir Ralph will be expected to warble.

You'd think they were guarding a new development of the atom bomb in the secrecy with which Warners are putting their own newly perfected formula for third dimension before the cameras.

I feel as though I were peeking in the top drawer secrets in telling you that their initial venture in third dimension is "Mystery at the Wax Works" with Vincent Price starred.

Yep, if you are an old timer, "Mystery at the Wax Works" is the same chiller which scared the wits out of audiences as far back as the nickelodeon days.

Marguerite Padula, who entertains at Charley Foy's, and who admits to 63, and Jerry Lipman, who admits to 23, called off their engagement. But Maggie says she wants me to know she's the one who called off the marriage.

"He's too young and too unimportant," sniffed Maggie. Well, Maggie, it's smart to call it off in time.

Charley Foy says he'd hate to be hanging the 20 years since she was 63. If she is older than 63 my hat's off to her—she doesn't look it or act it.

Efforts of their friends to get Teresa Wright and Niven Busch back together seem doomed to failure, I'm sorry to say.

I hear Niven is willing and eager to get his wife and children back and that he's carrying a great, big torch.

If Teresa is, too, she's using it to burn her bridges behind her. Without waiting to sell their former home in San Fernando Valley, she's moved into an apartment in Beverly Hills for two reasons.

Teresa wants to get away from the memories of the past and the apartment is closer to MGM where she's making a picture with Spencer Tracy.

Lana Turner and Lex Barker leave for a week of skiing in Aspen, Colorado, when she finishes "Latin Lovers."

Lana's ex, Bob Topping and his bride are on a ski honeymoon in Sun Valley.

That sweet guy, Joe Pasternak, gave Dorothy an ermine bolero with a jeweled neckline for their eleventh anniversary.

Jane Powell celebrates her birthday April 1 breaking ground for the new 21-unit apartment house she and Geary Steffen are building in North Hollywood. These young people are very smart with their money. They already own an 18-unit dwelling.

Now it's Fred Astaire, Jr., who wants to get in the act. He'll beat the drums on a recording with his old man tap dancing.

Of all things — Mrs. Lew Landers didn't discover until she arrived in New York that the vitamin pills she'd been taking across country were the ones the veterinarian had prescribed for her bull dog!

Joan Crawford is in Palm Springs, Calif., resting up for her almost certain nomination for "Sudden Fear."

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Daily Bridge Lesson

DO YOU SAY TOO MUCH

WHEN your bidding tells the opponents too much about your hand, there is a danger that you may be hoist by your own petard. In your efforts to describe all salient features to your partner, they may learn that there is little or no chance to beat some contract you reach. As a consequence, they may sacrifice against you, and thus oblige you to settle for a few points, whereas otherwise you would have had a basketful.

6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl.

There, in order, you see how the North-South top on this deal was bid-for, as per sequence 1, the East-West top, as per sequence 3, and the middle score, as per sequence 2. The 7-Hearts contract was made because South naturally finessed against East for the club strength after hearing West bid two other suits so strongly. Obviously only 6-odd could be made in spades, with the diamond A a sure winner, so the 7-Spades contract was beaten one trick.

The most interesting contrast about this freak assortment was involved in the reasons why West sacrificed against the 7-Hearts at Table 2, whereas the player in that position did just the reverse by doubling the 7-Hearts at Table 1. Why was that?

If you review the progress of the two styles of bidding, you will note that at Table 2 South cue-bid both hostile suits, indicating no losers in them and thus impelling the opponents to sacrifice. At Table 1, South gave no such information, so was not only allowed to play his 7-Hearts contract, but was fortuitously doubled in it. He gave fewer facts.

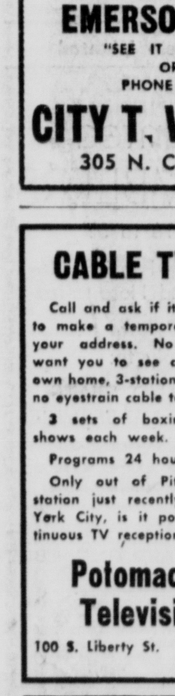
Radio And Television

by John Crosby

The Girls Are Doing Well

Female singers never amounted to much in radio. They sang, if they worked at all, on other people's programs, not on their own. Mostly, they didn't even do that. If the producers craved song, they usually prowled around in search of a baritone like Bing Crosby or Perry Como.



John Crosby

Television has changed all that. Nowadays, the girl singers are all over the place, singing away like crazy. I don't quite understand why an invisible girl singer couldn't attract a crowd and a visible one can. Something to do with sex appeal, I imagine, a subject I'm unlettered in.

At any rate, the girl singers with their own shows now include Dinah Shore, Jane Froman, Mindy Carson, Patti Page and (starting soon) Jo Stafford. (Have I missed anyone?) The girls are doing all right — better, in fact, than the men. The only male singer around with his own show is Perry Como. Of the girls, Miss Shore still leads the way by quite a margin both vocally and as a show. As someone once said of her, "When she sings a song, it's been sung." — a tribute I couldn't hope to improve on. Simply as television, the Shore program is a witty, relaxed, urbane operation teeming with production — sometimes a little too much production. Miss Shore is surrounded by able practitioners who occasionally suffer from more imagination than is quite good for them.

And since Miss Shore has been under scrutiny here at some length on prior occasions, that will be enough of that. Let's turn to Mindy Carson who is a pert little number with a whisper of a voice and about a ton of technique. A song stylist is the phrase, I believe, for Miss Carson. Miss Carson has just taken over Club Embassy (NBC-TV 10:30 p. m. EST Tuesdays) which used to be the special province of Bob and Ray, two very funny fellows. While I'm happy that Miss Carson's career is progressing so splendidly, I rather wish it hadn't been at the expense of Bob and Ray who are now off television entirely except for an irregular stint on "Today."

Here, too, production runs rife. Miss Carson is likely to sing to (and be sung at by) a quartet of four men in top hats and white ties, a costume that is now seen on television and virtually nowhere else. If the song is "Wish You Were Here," the production people will provide a couple embracing way in the background. (Love is being illustrated in more ways on TV these days.)

When Miss Carson isn't singing, there is a violinist named Florian Zabach who plays the fiddle a mile a minute. You'll hear some real good songs, expertly on this show but I still miss Bob and Ray. Incidentally, there is another of those cigaret commercials where they blow smoke right at you to contribute to your deep down smoking enjoyment. Much more of this and I'll quit cigarets forever.

Miss Froman's show is more of the same thing except that it's called "Jane Froman's Canteen" and its "for service men everywhere." That means that her fellow singers are dressed up as Marines and sailors and soldiers and gives the show an air of quasi-patriotism which is virtually unassailable so I won't. Miss Froman, I guess everyone knows, was so badly smashed up in an air crash that it was doubtful she'd ever sing again and I'm overwhelmed with admiration that she can manage a whole show of her own. My only complaint is that the producers have a deplorable weakness for posing soldiers and sailors and Marines in little picturesque tableaux like those still lifes we used to see in the circus. For television, it's altogether too self-conscious.

Another new filmed drama series, and a pretty good one, is

DO YOU SAY TOO MUCH

WHEN your bidding tells the opponents too much about your hand, there is a danger that you may be hoist by your own petard. In your efforts to describe all salient features to your partner, they may learn that there is little or no chance to beat some contract you reach. As a consequence, they may sacrifice against you, and thus oblige you to settle for a few points, whereas otherwise you would have had a basketful.

	♠ 9 8 3 2 ♥ K 9 7 4 ♦ 7 3 ♣ Q 10 8
♠ A K J 7 6 5 ♥ None ♦ K J 9 8 6 5 4 ♣ None	N W E S	♠ Q 10 4 ♥ Q 5 3 ♦ Q 10 2 ♣ K 9 6 3
	♠ None ♥ A J 10 8 6 2 ♦ A ♣ A J 7 5 4 2

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1. 1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	3 ♥
4 ♦	4 ♥	4 ♠	6 ♥
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	7 ♥
Dbl.
2. 1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	2 ♠
3 ♦	3 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♦
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	7 ♥

3. 1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Dbl.
3 ♦	Pass	3 ♠	4 ♥
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♣
5 ♦	5 ♥	5 ♠	6 ♥
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl.

There, in order, you see how the North-South top on this deal was bid-for, as per sequence 1, the East-West top, as per sequence 3, and the middle score, as per sequence 2. The 7-Hearts contract was made because South naturally finessed against East for the club strength after hearing West bid two other suits so strongly. Obviously only 6-odd could be made in spades, with the diamond A a sure winner, so the 7-Spades contract was beaten one trick.

The most interesting contrast about this freak assortment was involved in the reasons why West sacrificed against the 7-Hearts at Table 2, whereas the player in that position did just the reverse by doubling the 7-Hearts at Table 1. Why was that?

If you review the progress of the two styles of bidding, you will note that at Table 2 South cue-bid both hostile suits, indicating no losers in them and thus impelling the opponents to sacrifice. At Table 1, South gave no such information, so was not only allowed to play his 7-Hearts contract, but was fortuitously doubled in it. He gave fewer facts.

Radio And Television

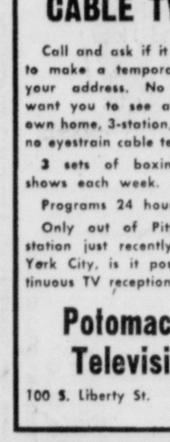
The Girls Are Doing Well

Female singers never amounted to much in radio. They sang, if they worked at all, on other people's programs, not on their own. Mostly, they didn't even do that. If the producers craved song, they usually prowled around in search of a baritone like Bing Crosby or Perry Como.



John Crosby

Television has changed all that. Nowadays, the girl singers are all over the place, singing away like crazy. I don't quite understand why an invisible girl singer couldn't attract a crowd and a visible one can. Something to do with sex appeal, I imagine, a subject I'm unlettered in.

At any rate, the girl singers with their own shows now include Dinah Shore, Jane Froman, Mindy Carson, Patti Page and (starting soon) Jo Stafford. (Have I missed anyone?) The girls are doing all right — better, in fact, than the men. The only male singer around with his own show is Perry Como. Of the girls, Miss Shore still leads the way by quite a margin both vocally and as a show. As someone once said of her, "When she sings a song, it's been sung." — a tribute I couldn't hope to improve on. Simply as television, the Shore program is a witty, relaxed, urbane operation teeming with production — sometimes a little too much production. Miss Shore is surrounded by able practitioners who occasionally suffer from more imagination than is quite good for them.

And since Miss Shore has been under scrutiny here at some length on prior occasions, that will be enough of that. Let's turn to Mindy Carson who is a pert little number with a whisper of a voice and about a ton of technique. A song stylist is the phrase, I believe, for Miss Carson. Miss Carson has just taken over Club Embassy (NBC-TV 10:30 p. m. EST Tuesdays) which used to be the special province of Bob and Ray, two very funny fellows. While I'm happy that Miss Carson's career is progressing so splendidly, I rather wish it hadn't been at the expense of Bob and Ray who are now off television entirely except for an irregular stint on "Today."

Here, too, production runs rife. Miss Carson is likely to sing to (and be sung at by) a quartet of four men in top hats and white ties, a costume that is now seen on television and virtually nowhere else. If the song is "Wish You Were Here," the production people will provide a couple embracing way in the background. (Love is being illustrated in more ways on TV these days.)

When Miss Carson isn't singing, there is a violinist named Florian Zabach who plays the fiddle a mile a minute. You'll hear some real good songs, expertly on this show but I still miss Bob and Ray. Incidentally, there is another of those cigaret commercials where they blow smoke right at you to contribute to your deep down smoking enjoyment. Much more of this and I'll quit cigarets forever.

Miss Froman's show is more of the same thing except that it's called "Jane Froman's Canteen" and its "for service men everywhere." That means that her fellow singers are dressed up as Marines and sailors and soldiers and gives the show an air of quasi-patriotism which is virtually unassailable so I won't. Miss Froman, I guess everyone knows, was so badly smashed up in an air crash that it was doubtful she'd ever sing again and I'm overwhelmed with admiration that she can manage a whole show of her own. My only complaint is that the producers have a deplorable weakness for posing soldiers and sailors and Marines in little picturesque tableaux like those still lifes we used to see in the circus. For television, it's altogether too self-conscious.

Another new filmed drama series, and a pretty good one, is

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Mrs. Blanche Schelling Paul, who passed away January 16, 1948.

Our family circle broken, still
Holding the faith that Mother taught
Before she went to sleep;
Knowing that He who tends His flock
Shelters her with His sheep.

Sadly missed by
The family.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Mrs. Blanche Schelling Paul, who passed away January 16, 1948.

Our family circle broken, still
Its bond of love shall keep.
Holding the faith that Mother taught
Before she went to sleep;
Knowing that He who tends His flock
Shelters her with His sheep.

Sadly missed by

thought Col. Nelson W. Russler might be interested in acquiring a southpaw hurler named Wicker.

"BIGGIE" MUNN, Michigan State grid mentor, complains that every Michigan State alumnus he meets demands an explanation of the 1950 loss to Maryland.

"They remember we won eight games and lost one, and want to know what happened against Maryland," Biggie says. "Nobody seems to remember that in 1949 a good Maryland team won eight games and lost one, and that one was to Michigan State."

AN IN MEMORIAM NOTICE displaying a photograph of George "Chuck" Karmarkovich appeared in the Johnstown paper the other day.

Karmarkovich was the classy young basketball player who died January 11, 1950, in an automobile mishap while the Johnstown team of the All-American League was en route from Wheeling to Johnstown.

The death of Karmarkovich resulted in the withdrawal of the Johnstown Clippers from the league and was Coach Nat Hickey's farewell to basketball.

GLENN O. WORKMAN, JR., of Keyser, calls attention to an error that was made in this column last Friday when we listed the championship teams and coaches in the Potomac Valley Conference.

The list showed John Shelton as coach of Keyser's 1947 team. It should have been Fred "Tack" Clark who has tutored three PVC championship quints instead of two.

Mr. Workman points out that Clark was the basketball coach at Keyser for four years and his teams lost only four conference games, three in 1946 and one in 1947. His other winners were in 1944 and 1945.

"Favorite Story" with Adolph Menjou as narrator. The opening story was "How Much Land Does a Man Need" which is almost a parable rather than a short story. It was written by Leo Tolstoy but neither in the large ads taken to hail the new series nor on the screen was Mr. Tolstoy given recognition. Afraid so august a name would frighten the customers away, I guess. Among the other writers who will contribute to "Favorite Story" — but don't noise it around — are Anatole France, Dostoievski, Rudyard Kipling, Edgar Allen Poe and Robert Louis Stevenson.

Seeks Beer License

Louise Gertrude Renotas yesterday filed an application with the Allegany County Board of License Commissioners for a beer license at 305 Baltimore Avenue.

The yard as a unit of measurement derives from Henry I of England. He established by royal decree that the distance from his nose to the end of his thumb (36 inches) be called a yard.

"BIGGIE" MUNN, Michigan State grid mentor, complains that every Michigan State alumnus he meets demands an explanation of the 1950 loss to Maryland.

"They remember we won eight games and lost one, and want to know what happened against Maryland," Biggie says. "Nobody seems to remember that in 1949 a good Maryland team won eight games and lost one, and that one was to Michigan State."

AN IN MEMORIAM NOTICE displaying a photograph of George "Chuck" Karmarkovich appeared in the Johnstown paper the other day.

Karmarkovich was the classy young basketball player who died January 11, 1950, in an automobile mishap while the Johnstown team of the All-American League was en route from Wheeling to Johnstown.

The death of Karmarkovich resulted in the withdrawal of the Johnstown Clippers from the league and was Coach Nat Hickey's farewell to basketball.

GLENN O. WORKMAN, JR., of Keyser, calls attention to an error that was made in this column last Friday when we listed the championship teams and coaches in the Potomac Valley Conference.

The list showed John Shelton as coach of Keyser's 1947 team. It should have been Fred "Tack" Clark who has tutored three PVC championship quints instead of two.

Mr. Workman points out that Clark was the basketball coach at Keyser for four years and his teams lost only four conference games, three in 1946 and one in 1947. His other winners were in 1944 and 1945.

"Favorite Story" with Adolph Menjou as narrator. The opening story was "How Much Land Does a Man Need" which is almost a parable rather than a short story. It was written by Leo Tolstoy but neither in the large ads taken to hail the new series nor on the screen was Mr. Tolstoy given recognition. Afraid so august a name would frighten the customers away, I guess. Among the other writers who will contribute to "Favorite Story" — but don't noise it around — are Anatole France, Dostoievski, Rudyard Kipling, Edgar Allen Poe and Robert Louis Stevenson.

Beall Fights Plan To Drop Air Service

Makes Strong Bid To Keep Cumberland On Flight Schedule

Senator J. Glenn Beall yesterday told officials of Allegany Airlines, who seek to drop this city from its route, that the site of the Cumberland Municipal Airport they were criticizing, was selected by Civil Aeronautics authorities.

And the Maryland senator reminded AA, at the Civil Aeronautics Board hearing in Washington, that conditions have not changed at the local airport since the airline applied for and secured permission to include the city on its route.

Senator Beall testified at the request of Thomas B. Finan, city solicitor, who is representing Cumberland at the hearing.

Appeals For Service

He received strong backing from the Postmaster General's Office, whose attorney testified that stops at Cumberland were of great importance from the standpoint of airmail service.

Senator Beall and Richard Jameson, of the state aviation board, urged that Allegany be required to serve Cumberland and that Ocean City be continued as a designated stop so services there can be provided as soon as airport facilities permit.

Oppose Local Stops

Beall said he was speaking also for Senator Butler (R-Md) and Rep. Hyde, (R-Md).

During yesterday's testimony before the CAB, Allegany Airlines officials objected to stops at Cumberland, citing safety factors and that the high ceiling set by the CAA caused too many overflights.

Finan said the communities, including Cumberland, will continue their testimony in the case today.

Hitchcock Begins Full Time Duty At Water Plant

Mayor Eves Reports On Qualifications

George M. Hitchcock, who was appointed full time superintendent of Evitts Creek Water Company, has started to move his effects from the Smoke Abatement Office at City Hall to Lake Gordon.

William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and electric light, said Hitchcock assumed charge of the city's water system yesterday.

He said one of the new duties of the post will be for Hitchcock, or Charles Brotemarkle, assistant superintendent, to collect samples of water from the city water system each day and turn them over to the laboratory at Lake Gordon for analysis.

Hitchcock's appointment as full-time waterworks superintendent was approved by a three to one vote of the Mayor and Council Wednesday.

Lists Qualifications

His qualifications as a waterworks engineer were given by Mayor Roy W. Eves Wednesday morning, prior to his request for a vote on the appointment.

A native of Philadelphia, Hitchcock graduated from Norristown, Pa., High School in 1924 and from the University of Pennsylvania in 1928 with the degree of bachelor of arts in architectural engineering.

From 1928 to 1930, he did postgraduate work in electrical engineering at Drexel Institute.

From then until 1933, he was a member of the firm of Hiltner and Hitchcock, registered engineers, in Norristown, designing municipal and federal hydroelectric and sewage projects.

From 1934 to 1935, Hitchcock was employed by the War Department at Aberdeen Proving Ground on reconstruction work and the following two years by Pennsylvania as project engineer on the construction of the Norristown State Hospital.

He was a superintendent of construction projects in the Keystone state.

In 1943, he supervised Naval construction work at Port Deposit and the next year, was chief statistician for a Pittsburgh plane firm.

Was On VA Projects

After a year in private engineering practice, he was chief appraiser for Veterans Administration projects in Pennsylvania from 1945 to 1947.

He is registered as a civil and mechanical engineer in the State of Maryland and as a professional civil engineer in the State of Pennsylvania.

Hitchcock is a member of the National Society of Professional Engineers, American Waterworks Association, Maryland Commission on Noxious Fumes, American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Society of Military Engineers.

He is also a registered land surveyor in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Qualifies For Job

After Hitchcock was employed as smoke abatement engineer and superintendent of the water company, he qualified as a water engineer, passing a preliminary examination and, after a year on probation in the new field, was fully qualified by the Pennsylvania health department's board of review.

He recently adopted a new system for feeding chlorine in one ton containers, saving the city about $10.35 a day over the cost of the chemical in small quantities.

Plan To Streamline Legislature Begins

Home Rule Charter Bill For Counties Introduced By State Senate President

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 16 (AP)—The General Assembly was asked today to rid itself of the overwhelming burden of passing laws for Baltimore City and the counties.

Sen. Della of Baltimore's Sixth District introduced a bill to limit the Legislature to passage of only general laws.

Commission Favors

The Senate president's bill is based on recommendations of the commission studying administrative organization of Maryland.

The commsision reported 70 per cent of the bills passed by the 1951 legislature were local in nature.

Della's bill instead would set up the procedure for counties to adopt a charter form of government.

The election of five charter board members could be asked by the county commissioners or petitions signed by 20 per cent of the voters.

Charter Form

If a majority of the voters approve five members, then they would prepare a charter form of government. The General Assembly in turn would grant the county council authority to make its own laws.

The General Assembly also would group counties into three classes based on population. The Legislature could pass laws applying only to all counties in one of the classes.

As an example of the local legislation which the General Assembly has to consider, a bill introduced today would let the commissioners of Sharptown increase their borrowing power.

West Virginia PSC Turns Down C & P Rate Boost

Interim Increase Hearing Scheduled

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 15 (AP) — A Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. request for a rate increase designed to add nearly two million dollars to yearly West Virginia revenues was turned down by the Public Service Commission today.

The PSC at the same time granted the company a hearing on a petition for a $550,000 rate boost, which C. and P. originally intended to be an interim increase while the application for the larger amount was pending. The hearing was set for next Tuesday.

The proposed scale of higher rates still pending before the PSC varies with different locations.

The telephone company told the PSC in its petition that it needs higher rates to cover increased labor costs and proposed construction designed to improve service and that its present rates do not yield a fair return.

Set for hearing Friday, Jan. 23 was an application by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Co. for a temporary natural gas rate increase in 10 counties.

The proposed increase, designed to boost gross annual revenues by at least $388,619, would be of an interim nature, pending final action by the PSC on a request for a $783,000 permanent increase.

Retail customers would be affected in Barbour, Braxton, Grant, Harrison, Lewis, Mineral, Preston, Randolph, Tucker and Upshur counties. The application for a permanent increase has been protested by the cities of Elkins, Philippi, Buckhannon and Keyser.

Nearly 4,000 Trees Removed From Forests

Johnson Reports On 1952 Operations

Some 3,880 evergreen trees were cut off state forests in Garrett and Allegany Counties for Christmas use last month, according to District Forester William H. Johnson who reported that the state derived an average gross price of 80 cents per tree.

This figure represents thinning operations on 13 acres of forest land. Trees cut included 1,548 Norway spruce, 970 red pine, 900 white pine, 404 white spruce and 58 red spruce.

About three-fourth of these Christmas trees were cut from the Savage River Forest, from which 2,990 were removed. Also cut were 474 from Swallow Falls, 307 from Potomac State Forest, all in Garrett County, and 109 from Green Ridge Forest, in Allegany County.

Stumpage prices for the trees ranged from 35 cents to $1.25, Johnson said.

The district forester also divulged figures on other cutting operations conducted in state forests in Garrett and Allegany Counties in 1952.

Some 500,000 board feet of wood were cut from the forests last year. About 210,000 of this was removed in harvest cutting and the rest came from salvage operations such as trees taken down for electric power and road rights-of-way and timber damaged by fire, insects, ice and other causes.

About 89,000 board feet of this total came from Green Ridge Forest in this county and the rest was from the Garrett County forests.

Some 51,000 mine props also were harvested in salvage and improvement cuttings. About 70 cords of pulpwood and 11 cords of locust pinwood also were removed.

College Seniors Tour Education Building Here

Some 28 students in Dr. Harold L. Reese's class called "The Teacher and The Public School," at Frostburg State Teachers College, spent Wednesday afternoon at the Allegany County Board of Education building on Washington Street talking with officials and touring the building.

Dr. Reese, who is chairman of the college's Department of Education, teaches this one-semester class primarily for seniors who soon will be accepting public school teaching jobs.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, began the meeting by discussing what is expected of a beginning teacher in Allegany County, possible vacancies that may be filled by college graduates of the Class of 1953, salary schedules and the services offered to teachers by various supervisors.

Others who met with the college seniors were Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent; Lewyn C. Davis, supervisor of junior high schools; Miss Jane Botsford, Miss Winifred Greene and Miss Mildred Willison, supervisors of elementary schools.

During the tour of the building Webster pointed out various features of the old structure which was built as a residence in an era of "gracious living" more than 80 years ago.

The visit to the Board of Education building was the final project for the class which winds up its semester of work, Friday, January 23.

Clothing Talk Series Begins

More than 30 women living in the area of Gephart School have enrolled for a six-week demonstration of clothing construction being conducted by Miss Ruth C. McColly, supervisor of home economics in the county schools.

The first session was held from 2 until 3:30 p. m. Wednesday in the school cafeteria. Miss McColly began the demonstration with a brief discussion of the Bishop Method of clothing construction and then began making an apron.

Measurement for patterns will be discussed at the second session from 2 until 3:30 p. m. next Wednesday. Meetings will be held on six successive Wednesday afternoons.

This first demonstration of its type will be repeated at other schools if it proves popular, Miss McColly said. The purposes are to help women make clothes which look more professional and to give them as many shortcuts as possible.

Queen City Will Celebrate 166th Birthday Next Week

The Queen City of the Alleghenies will mark its 166th anniversary next Tuesday.

Destined for greatness due to its location as the gateway to the West, Cumberland was already an important community when it was incorporated by an act of the General Assembly January 20, 1787.

The settlement which included some 35 families, was located on the west side of Wills Creek and most of the homes were built on Braddock Road, now Greene Street.

White traders who came to trade with the Indians were calling it Wills Creek by 1728.

It was called the "New Storehouse" about 1750, after the Ohio Company established an outpost here.

Several years later, the Ohio Company named the post Charlottesville.

The town took the name of Fort Pleasant in 1754, when a fort was built near the site of Fort Cumberland.

A year later, the name was changed to Fort Cumberland by General Braddock after the fort was rebuilt and enlarged.

By 1775, the inhabitants were calling it Washington's Town.

Moose Legion Will Initiate Class Sunday

The Potomac Valley Legion of the Moose, which includes Cumberland Lodge 271, will conduct its annual ceremonial Sunday at the home of Romney Lodge 1371.

The tentative program for the affair calls for the meeting to start at 1:30 p. m.; a dinner at 5 p. m.; entertainment at 7 p. m., to be followed by dancing at 8 p. m. The dinner will be for all members of the Potomac Valley unit and their wives or lady friends.

The ceremonial will feature an initiation of a large class of candidates, to be known as the Carl A. Weis Class. Weis is the current grand herder for the Legion of Moose and is expected to be present Sunday. The initiation will mark the closing of a membership campaign.

Weis, who is also deputy supreme secretary of the Moose organization, is a native of St. Peters, Ohio. Following graduation from Aquinas College, Columbus, Ohio; Greer Aeronautical College, Chicago, and Ohio State University he worked at various positions before organizing his own publishing company in Columbus.

He became affiliated with the Loyal Order of Moose in 1934 while in Boston. He was transferred to the Kalamazoo, Mich., lodge after moving to that city and his work as secretary of the lodge there brought him to the attention of the Supreme Lodge.

He was soon appointed Supreme Lodge auditor, a position he held for five years. After being named to his present Supreme Lodge post in 1942, Weis was made a life member of Alliance (Ohio) Lodge 362.

The entertainment at the Romney meeting will feature a floor show from Pittsburgh. Master of ceremonies will be Ralph Dusic, director of the West Virginia Moose Association, and a member of the Pilgrim Degree of the order. Music for dancing is being arranged by a committee headed by Robert Hamilton, secretary of the Romney lodge.

Besides the Romney and Cumberland lodges, other towns represented in the Potomac Valley Legion are Berkeley Springs, Keyser, Charles Town, Piedmont and Moorefield, all in West Virginia, and Oakland and Frostburg, Maryland.

Apple Blossom Festival Is Set April 30-May 1

WINCHESTER, Va., Jan. 15 (AP)—This city's 26th annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival will be held April 30-May 1, a festival official said today.

C. F. Schenck, festival president, said committees already are hard at work on plans for the annual event, which draws upwards of 200,000 persons from every part of the country.

Schenck said colleges in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia now are selecting campus beauties to serve as princesses in the court of Queen Shenandoah, whose identity won't be known until shortly before the festival.

In addition to the coronation, a pageant, night and day parades and fireworks, Schenck said, the festival program will include dinners and luncheons, well-known speakers, dances, music by nationally-known bands and scenic and historic tours.

Paw Paw Man Kills Wife, Then Shoots Himself

Charles Bullett In Critical Condition

Charles Bullett, 30-year-old Paw Paw, W. Va., packing plant worker, remained in critical condition last night after he reportedly shot and killed his wife, then shot himself in the head.

Attaches at Morgan County (W. Va.) Memorial Hospital at Berkeley Springs said Bullett had a rifle slug wound in the forehead.

Morgan County Sheriff William C. Simmons said Bullett shot and killed his wife, Evelyn, 30, with a .22 caliber rifle, then turned the gun on himself.

Mrs. Pauline Redman, who lives next door to the Bullett home on Potomac Street, said she heard shots at about 9 a. m., but did not investigate. Some children playing in the yard came across Mrs. Bullett's body in the back yard. Bullett was lying in the road in front of the house.

Sheriff Simmons said he found Mrs. Bullett lying in a pool of blood, a bullet in her back, another in the back of her head. She was dead.

Mrs. Redman said the Bulletts had been having domestic difficulties, but that she had not noticed anything out of the ordinary for the past several days.

She said Mrs. Bullett had recently returned from a visit to the home of a sister in North or South Carolina. The Bulletts were the parents of a four-year-old daughter, Evelyn.

Mrs. Redman said she had seen Bullett in the yard of his home for the past several days, since he had not been working at his job with Consolidated Orchards at Paw Paw.

Police Order More Bicycle Tags After Supply Is Exhausted

The Police Department will start issuing bicycle licenses again on Monday, Mrs. Marolyn Welsh, police clerk, announced yesterday.

Mrs. Welsh said another 150 tags were ordered after the city's supply of 1,600 was exhausted last week. They will be ready for issue Monday morning.

Last year, the city bought 1,700 tags, but used only 1,600, so the 1952 order included only that many. Apparently more youngsters got bikes for Christmas this year, because the license supply gave out shortly afterward.

Police have told children they will not be required to have licenses on their bikes until Monday. After that, all bikes in the city must be licensed if they are to be ridden on public streets.

Tickets On Sale For Barter Play Students Matinee Here

Tickets for the students' special staging of the Barter Theater production, "The Virginian," were put on sale at Allegany and Fort Hill high schools yesterday by the Junior Association of Commerce committee, sponsors of the play.

Committeemen said additional students' tickets to the stage production will be distributed to other schools in the area today. The students special rate tickets may be purchased at the two local schools or other area public or parochial institutions.

The special matinee will be staged Wednesday, January 21, at 3:30 p. m. in Allegany High School auditorium. The entire production will be staged during the afternoon performance.

Tickets for the evening show which will begin at 8:30 o'clock are currently on sale at S. T. Little Jewelry Company, Baltimore Street.

The committee also announced last night that two local girls will have roles in a square-dancing scene of the production. The two local performers will be announced later, committeemen said.

The Mt. Royal School PTA yesterday purchased 43 tickets for the school's traffic patrol boys and girls. The boys and girls who all year direct children safely across streets near the school, will be guests of the PTA at the matinee.

Robert Porterfield, famed founder and director of the Barter Theater, will head the largest cast ever taken on tour by the professional acting group.

Recognized as the first of the so-called "westerns" the Owen Wister novel and play is still unsurpassed in popular appeal. The book was written 50 years ago.

W. Md. Railway Wants To Drop Passenger Runs

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—Short-haul passenger service is following interurban electric cars and Chesapeake Bay steamboats into oblivion, the Western Maryland Railway told the Public Service Commission today.

The railroad is asking the PSC for permission to discontinue all Maryland passenger service. It says it is losing $400,000 a year trying to maintain the trains.

William C. Purnell, vice president and general manager of the WM, told the commission that "passenger travel on our railroad has just about vanished." G. R. Haworth, vice president and general manager, backed up the statement with figures.

Big Drop In Business

In 1914, Haworth said, the WM operated 62 passenger trains daily. It operates only six now. In 1920, nearly two million passengers rode the trains. In 1952, there were only a little more than 150,000.

Haworth said the railroad passenger service, like the old interurban electric cars and the bay boats, is giving way to automobiles and the bus lines. The private car, he said, is more flexible, has to go less distance, and makes better time.

Haworth recalled that the big days of passenger service were in the days of the Blue Ridge resorts such as Pen Mar Park, the Blue Mountain House and other establishments.

The death knell first sounded with the destruction of the Blue Mountain House in 1913 in a fire, he added.

Few Use Train

Purnell said a single Western Maryland train to Cumberland takes on and discharges only about three persons a day. Only a dozen more, he said, use the Baltimore-Hagerstown train daily.

"Not one of these trains is earning enough to pay the wages of its five-man crew and fuel, not to mention maintenance and other costs," Purnell added.

Purnell said the company entered its petition "with greatest reluctance" but that "the local passenger train has become a thing of the past. There is no sound economic or business justification for this continuance."

Opposition Voiced

Jacob Hornstein, assistant people's counsel for the PSC, said he would reserve cross-examination of the company witness until tomorrow.

Another protestant, Hagerstown City Attorney Bruce C. Lightner, introduced as an exhibit a resolution adopted by the Hagerstown City Council opposing the removal of the service, but offered no evidence in support of it immediately.

Others appearing in opposition to the petition were William V. Keegan, representing Cumberland: William D. Wells, Sudrock Park improvement Association; Bernard M. Savage, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and a number of individuals appearing as interested passengers.

Delegates Oppose Plan

Members of the Allegany County Delegation to the General Assembly on Tuesday adopted a resolution requesting the Public Service Commission to refuse the Western Maryland Railway's request to drop passenger service.

Charles M. See, chairman, said the PSC has acknowledged receipt of the resolution.

The delegation resolution asserted dropping the service would work a hardship on the people who depend upon the trains and would mean the possible loss of jobs for workers who run the trains.

Man Badly Burned In Odd Mishap

A 69-year-old Bedford Road man was critically burned yesterday at Green Spring, W. Va., when he tried to put out a grass fire which started when he dropped a match.

Walter Frantz of Frantztown, Bedford Road, was in "critical" condition last night at Memorial Hospital with second and third degree burns over a large area of his body.

Frantz's sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Betts, also of Frantztown, gave this account of the unusual accident.

Frantz was inspecting a Green Spring home which he had considered buying. Walking around the grounds, he lit a cigar and dropped the match in the grass.

His wife, Mrs. Lily Frantz, and Mrs. Betts tried to extinguish Frantz's burning clothing, scorching their hands in the process.

Mrs. Betts said they were making little progress until two men came along, rushed Frantz to the other side of the house, where snow still covered the ground, and rolled him in the snow.

Mrs. Betts' brother-in-law drove him to the local hospital, where attaches said he was admitted for treatment of serious burns of the arms and legs, body and face.

Dinner To Begin District Scout Week Activities

Cumberland District, Boy Scouts of America, will hold a covered dish style appreciation dinner Saturday, February 7, at St. Mary's Parish Hall, Oldtown Road.

H. C. Heineman, district chairman, said the dinner, which is expected to draw over 300 persons, will act as kickoff for activities scheduled during Boy Scout Week, February 7 to 13.

Scout officials explained that each unit will schedule individual food menus and bring their own dinners. Each troop and pack should notify the district head as to the number that will attend from each group before February 4.

Each group will also bring along its own eating equipment. The District will prepare a table for each unit and will provide coffee for adults and milk for the young folks.

Members of the District committee, executive board and the commissioners not connected with any unit, should make arrangements to have dinner with one of the Scout units, officials said. They added there will not be a district table at the event.

Guests of honor at the dinner will be the Scout leaders, Cub masters and Den mothers in the District who will be paid tribute for their outstanding activities during the past year. The District will officially thank unit leaders for their participation in Scout work.

The dinner program will include an outstanding guest speaker, a Court of Honor and entertainment.

Officials said the dinner is open to all Scouts, Cubs and their parents, and leaders, committeemen and their wives.

Beall Fights Plan To Drop Air Service

Makes Strong Bid To Keep Cumberland On Flight Schedule

Senator J. Glenn Beall yesterday told officials of Allegany Airlines, who seek to drop this city from its route, that the site of the Cumberland Municipal Airport they were criticizing, was selected by Civil Aeronautics authorities.

And the Maryland senator reminded AA, at the Civil Aeronautics Board hearing in Washington, that conditions have not changed at the local airport since the airline applied for and secured permission to include the city on its route.

Senator Beall testified at the request of Thomas B. Finan, city solicitor, who is representing Cumberland at the hearing.

Appeals For Service

The senator declared that Cumberland's strategic location demands that air service is continued to the city.

He received strong backing from the Postmaster General's Office, whose attorney testified that stops at Cumberland were of great importance from the standpoint of airmail service.

Senator Beall and Richard Jameson, of the state aviation board, urged that Allegany be required to serve Cumberland and that Ocean City be continued as a designated stop so services there can be provided as soon as airport facilities permit.

Oppose Local Stops

Beall said he was speaking also for Senator Butler (R-Md) and Rep. Hyde, (R-Md).

During yesterday's testimony before the CAB, Allegany Airlines officials objected to stops at Cumberland, citing safety factors and that the high ceiling set by the CAA caused too many overflights.

Finan said the communities, including Cumberland, will continue their testimony in the case today.

Hitchcock Begins Full Time Duty At Water Plant

Mayor Eves Reports On Qualifications

George M. Hitchcock, who was appointed full time superintendent of Evitts Creek Water Company, has started to move his effects from the Smoke Abatement Office at City Hall to Lake Gordon.

William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and electric light, said Hitchcock assumed charge of the city's water system yesterday.

He said one of the new duties of the post will be for Hitchcock, or Charles Brotemarkle, assistant superintendent, to collect samples of water from the city water system each day and turn them over to the laboratory at Lake Gordon for analysis.

Hitchcock's appointment as full-time waterworks superintendent was approved by a three to one vote of the Mayor and Council Wednesday.

Lists Qualifications

His qualifications as a waterworks engineer were given by Mayor Roy W. Eves Wednesday morning, prior to his request for a vote on the appointment.

A native of Philadelphia, Hitchcock graduated from Norristown, Pa., High School in 1924 and from the University of Pennsylvania in 1928 with the degree of bachelor of arts in architectural engineering.

From 1928 to 1930, he did postgraduate work in electrical engineering at Drexel Institute.

From then until 1933, he was a member of the firm of Hiltner and Hitchcock, registered engineers, in Norristown, designing municipal and federal hydroelectric and sewage projects.

From 1934 to 1935, Hitchcock was employed by the War Department at Aberdeen Proving Ground on reconstruction work and the following two years by Pennsylvania as project engineer on the construction of the Norristown State Hospital.

He was a superintendent of construction projects in the Keystone state.

In 1943, he supervised Naval construction work at Port Deposit and the next year, was chief statistician for a Pittsburgh plane firm.

Was On VA Projects

After a year in private engineering practice, he was chief appraiser for Veterans Administration projects in Pennsylvania from 1945 to 1947.

He is registered as a civil and mechanical engineer in the State of Maryland and as a professional civil engineer in the State of Pennsylvania.

Hitchcock is a member of the National Society of Professional Engineers, American Waterworks Association, Maryland Commission on Noxious Fumes, American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Society of Military Engineers.

He is also a registered land surveyor in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Qualifies For Job

After Hitchcock was employed as smoke abatement engineer and superintendent of the water company, he qualified as a water engineer, passing a preliminary examination and, after a year on probation in the new field, was fully qualified by the Pennsylvania health department's board of review.

He recently adopted a new system for feeding chlorine in one ton containers, saving the city about $10.35 a day over the cost of the chemical in small quantities.

Plan To Streamline Legislature Begins

Home Rule Charter Bill For Counties Introduced By State Senate President

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 16 (AP)—The General Assembly was asked today to rid itself of the overwhelming burden of passing laws for Baltimore City and the counties.

Sen. Della of Baltimore's Sixth District introduced a bill to limit the Legislature to passage of only general laws.

Commission Favors

The Senate president's bill is based on recommendations of the commission studying administrative organization of Maryland.

The commsision reported 70 per cent of the bills passed by the 1951 legislature were local in nature.

Della's bill instead would set up the procedure for counties to adopt a charter form of government.

The election of five charter board members could be asked by the county commissioners or petitions signed by 20 per cent of the voters.

Charter Form

If a majority of the voters approve five members, then they would prepare a charter form of government. The General Assembly in turn would grant the county council authority to make its own laws.

The General Assembly also would group counties into three classes based on population. The Legislature could pass laws applying only to all counties in one of the classes.

As an example of the local legislation which the General Assembly has to consider, a bill introduced today would let the commissioners of Sharptown increase their borrowing power.

West Virginia PSC Turns Down C & P Rate Boost

Interim Increase Hearing Scheduled

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 15 (AP) — A Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. request for a rate increase designed to add nearly two million dollars to yearly West Virginia revenues was turned down by the Public Service Commission today.

The PSC at the same time granted the company a hearing on a petition for a $550,000 rate boost, which C. and P. originally intended to be an interim increase while the application for the larger amount was pending. The hearing was set for next Tuesday.

C. and P. serves most of West Virginia's principal population centers, with the exception of the Bluefield, Princeton and Welch areas in the extreme south.

The proposed scale of higher rates still pending before the PSC varies with different locations.

The telephone company told the PSC in its petition that it needs higher rates to cover increased labor costs and proposed construction designed to improve service and that its present rates do not yield a fair return.

Set for hearing Friday, Jan. 23 was an application by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Co. for a temporary natural gas rate increase in 10 counties.

The proposed increase, designed to boost gross annual revenues by at least $388,619, would be of an interim nature, pending final action by the PSC on a request for a $783,000 permanent increase.

Retail customers would be affected in Barbour, Braxton, Grant, Harrison, Lewis, Mineral, Preston, Randolph, Tucker and Upshur counties. The application for a permanent increase has been protested by the cities of Elkins, Philippi, Buckhannon and Keyser.

Nearly 4,000 Trees Removed From Forests

Johnson Reports On 1952 Operations

Some 3,880 evergreen trees were cut off state forests in Garrett and Allegany Counties for Christmas use last month, according to District Forester William H. Johnson who reported that the state derived an average gross price of 80 cents per tree.

This figure represents thinning operations on 13 acres of forest land. Trees cut included 1,548 Norway spruce, 970 red pine, 900 white pine, 404 white spruce and 58 red spruce.

About three-fourth of these Christmas trees were cut from the Savage River Forest, from which 2,990 were removed. Also cut were 474 from Swallow Falls, 307 from Potomac State Forest, all in Garrett County, and 109 from Green Ridge Forest, in Allegany County.

Stumpage prices for the trees ranged from 35 cents to $1.25, Johnson said.

The district forester also divulged figures on other cutting operations conducted in state forests in Garrett and Allegany Counties in 1952.

Some 500,000 board feet of wood were cut from the forests last year. About 210,000 of this was removed in harvest cutting and the rest came from salvage operations such as trees taken down for electric power and road rights-of-way and timber damaged by fire, insects, ice and other causes.

About 89,000 board feet of this total came from Green Ridge Forest in this county and the rest was from the Garrett County forests.

Some 51,000 mine props also were harvested in salvage and improvement cuttings. About 70 cords of pulpwood and 11 cords of locust pinwood also were removed.

W. Md. Railway Wants To Drop Passenger Runs

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15 (AP)—Short-haul passenger service is following interurban electric cars and Chesapeake Bay steamboats into oblivion, the Western Maryland Railway told the Public Service Commission today.

The railroad is asking the PSC for permission to discontinue all Maryland passenger service. It says it is losing $400,000 a year trying to maintain the trains.

William C. Purnell, vice president and general manager of the WM, told the commission that "passenger travel on our railroad has just about vanished." G. R. Haworth, vice president and general manager, backed up the statement with figures.

Purnell said a single Western Maryland train to Cumberland takes on and discharges only about three persons a day. Only a dozen more, he said, use the Baltimore-Hagerstown train daily.

"Not one of these trains is earning enough to pay the wages of its five-man crew and fuel, not to mention maintenance and other costs," Purnell added.

Purnell said the company entered its petition "with greatest reluctance" but that "the local passenger train has become a thing of the past. There is no sound economic or business justification for this continuance."

Opposition Voiced

Jacob Hornstein, assistant people's counsel for the PSC, said he would reserve cross-examination of the company witness until tomorrow.

Another protestant, Hagerstown City Attorney Bruce C. Lightner, introduced as an exhibit a resolution adopted by the Hagerstown City Council opposing the removal of the service, but offered no evidence in support of it immediately.

Others appearing in opposition to the petition were William V. Keegan, representing Cumberland; William D. Wells, Sudrock Park improvement Association; Bernard M. Savage, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and a number of individuals appearing as interested passengers.

Delegates Oppose Plan

Members of the Allegany County Delegation to the General Assembly on Tuesday adopted a resolution requesting the Public Service Commission to refuse the Western Maryland Railway's request to drop passenger service.

Charles M. See, chairman, said the PSC has acknowledged receipt of the resolution.

The delegation resolution asserted dropping the service would work a hardship on the people who depend upon the trains and would mean the possible loss of jobs for workers who run the trains.

Dinner To Begin District Scout Week Activities

Cumberland District, Boy Scouts of America, will hold a covered dish style appreciation dinner Saturday, February 7, at St. Mary's Parish Hall, Oldtown Road.

H. C. Heineman, district chairman, said the dinner, which is expected to draw over 300 persons, will act as kickoff for activities scheduled during Boy Scout Week, February 7 to 13.

Scout officials explained that each unit will schedule individual food menus and bring their own dinners. Each troop and pack should notify the district head as to the number that will attend from each group before February 4.

Each group will also bring along its own eating equipment. The District will prepare a table for each unit and will provide coffee for adults and milk for the young folks.

Members of the District committee, executive board and the commissioners not connected with any unit, should make arrangements to have dinner with one of the Scout units, officials said. They added there will not be a district table at the event.

Guests of honor at the dinner will be the Scout leaders, Cub masters and Den mothers in the District who will be paid tribute for their outstanding activities during the past year. The District will officially thank unit leaders for their participation in Scout work.

The dinner program will include an outstanding guest speaker, a Court of Honor and entertainment.

Officials said the dinner is open to all Scouts, Cubs and their parents, and leaders, committeemen and their wives.

College Seniors Tour Education Building Here

Some 28 students in Dr. Harold L. Reese's class called "The Teacher and The Public School," at Frostburg State Teachers College, spent Wednesday afternoon at the Allegany County Board of Education building on Washington Street talking with officials and touring the building.

Dr. Reese, who is chairman of the college's Department of Education, teaches this one-semester class primarily for seniors who soon will be accepting public school teaching jobs.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, began the meeting by discussing what is expected of a beginning teacher in Allegany County, possible vacancies that may be filled by college graduates of the Class of 1953, salary schedules and the services offered to teachers by various supervisors.

Others who met with the college seniors were Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent; Lewyn C. Davis, supervisor of junior high schools; Miss Jane Botsford, Miss Winifred Greene and Miss Mildred Willison, supervisors of elementary schools.

During the tour of the building Webster pointed out various features of the old structure which was built as a residence in an era of "gracious living" more than 80 years ago.

The visit to the Board of Education building was the final project for the class which winds up its semester of work, Friday, January 23.

Moose Legion Will Initiate Class Sunday

The Potomac Valley Legion of the Moose, which includes Cumberland Lodge 271, will conduct its annual ceremonial Sunday at the home of Romney Lodge 1371.

The tentative program for the affair calls for the meeting to start at 1:30 p. m.; a dinner at 5 p. m.; entertainment at 7 p. m., to be followed by dancing at 8 p. m. The dinner will be for all members of the Potomac Valley unit and their wives or lady friends.

The ceremonial will feature an initiation of a large class of candidates, to be known as the Carl A. Weis Class. Weis is the current grand herder for the Legion of Moose and is expected to be present Sunday. The initiation will mark the closing of a membership campaign.

Weis, who is also deputy supreme secretary of the Moose organization, is a native of St. Peters, Ohio. Following graduation from Aquinas College, Columbus, Ohio; Greer Aeronautical College, Chicago, and Ohio State University he worked at various positions before organizing his own publishing company in Columbus.

He became affiliated with the Loyal Order of Moose in 1934 while in Boston. He was transferred to the Kalamazoo, Mich., lodge after moving to that city and his work as secretary of the lodge there brought him to the attention of the Supreme Lodge.

He was soon appointed Supreme Lodge auditor, a position he held for five years. After being named to his present Supreme Lodge post in 1942, Weis was made a life member of Alliance (Ohio) Lodge 362.

The entertainment at the Romney meeting will feature a floor show from Pittsburgh. Master of ceremonies will be Ralph Dusic, director of the West Virginia Moose Association, and a member of the Pilgrim Degree of the order. Music for dancing is being arranged by a committee headed by Robert Hamilton, secretary of the Romney lodge.

Besides the Romney and Cumberland lodges, other towns represented in the Potomac Valley Legion are Berkeley Springs, Keyser, Charles Town, Piedmont and Moorefield, all in West Virginia, and Oakland and Frostburg, Maryland.

Apple Blossom Festival Is Set April 30-May 1

WINCHESTER, Va., Jan. 15 (AP)—This city's 26th annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival will be held April 30-May 1, a festival official said today.

C. F. Schenck, festival president, said committees already are hard at work on plans for the annual event, which draws upwards of 200,000 persons from every part of the country.

Schenck said colleges in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia now are selecting campus beauties to serve as princesses in the court of Queen Shenandoah, whose identity won't be known until shortly before the festival.

In addition to the coronation, a pageant, night and day parades and fireworks, Schenck said, the festival program will include dinners and luncheons, well-known speakers, dances, music by nationally-known bands and scenic and historic tours.

Police Order More Bicycle Tags After Supply Is Exhausted

The Police Department will start issuing bicycle licenses again on Monday, Mrs. Marolyn Welsh, police clerk, announced yesterday.

Mrs. Welsh said another 150 tags were ordered after the city's supply of 1,500 was exhausted last week. They will be ready for issue Monday morning.

Last year, the city bought 1,700 tags, but used only 1,600, so the 1952 order included only that many. Apparently more youngsters got bikes for Christmas this year, because the license supply gave out shortly afterward.

Police have told children they will not be required to have licenses on their bikes until Monday. After that, all bikes in the city must be licensed if they are to be ridden on public streets.

Man Badly Burned In Odd Mishap

A 69-year-old Bedford Road man was critically burned yesterday at Green Spring, W. Va., when he tried to put out a grass fire which started when he dropped a match.

Walter Frantz of Frantztown, Bedford Road, was in "critical" condition last night at Memorial Hospital with second and third degree burns over a large area of his body.

Frantz's sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Betts, also of Frantztown, gave this account of the unusual accident.

Frantz was inspecting a Green Spring home which he had considered buying. Walking around the grounds, he lit a cigar and dropped the match in the grass.

The grass caught fire. Frantz tried to stamp out the blaze with his feet, but his trousers ignited. He bent over to slap at the burning trouser cuffs, and his shirt caught fire.

His wife, Mrs. Lily Frantz, and Mrs. Betts tried to extinguish Frantz's burning clothing, scorching their hands in the process.

Mrs. Betts said they were making little progress until two men came along, rushed Frantz to the other side of the house, where snow still covered the ground, and rolled him in the snow.

Mrs. Betts' brother-in-law drove him to the local hospital, where attaches said he was admitted for treatment of serious burns of the arms and legs, body and face.

This first demonstration of its type will be repeated at other schools if it proves popular, Miss McColly said. The purposes are to help women make clothes which look more professional and to give them as many shortcuts as possible.

Tickets On Sale For Barter Play Students Matinee Here

Tickets for the students' special staging of the Barter Theater production, "The Virginian," were put on sale at Allegany and Fort Hill high schools yesterday by the Junior Association of Commerce committee, sponsors of the play.

Committeemen said additional students' tickets to the stage production will be distributed to other schools in the area today. The students special rate tickets may be purchased at the two local schools or other area public or parochial institutions.

The special matinee will be staged Wednesday, January 21, at 3:30 p. m. in Allegany High School auditorium. The entire production will be staged during the afternoon performance.

Tickets for the evening show which will begin at 8:30 o'clock are currently on sale at S. T. Little Jewelry Company, Baltimore Street.

The committee also announced last night that two local girls will have roles in a square-dancing scene of the production. The two local performers will be announced later, committeemen said.

The Mt. Royal School PTA yesterday purchased 43 tickets for the school's traffic patrol boys and girls. The boys and girls who all year direct children safely across streets near the school, will be guests of the PTA at the matinee.

Robert Porterfield, famed founder and director of the Barter Theater, will head the largest cast ever taken on tour by the professional acting group.

Recognized as the first of the so-called "westerns" the Owen Wister novel and play is still unsurpassed in popular appeal. The book was written 50 years ago.
